Above the fading echoes of a war-torn world, peoens of peace and international friendship will rise from national shrines today—the twelfth anniversary of the Armistice. Looking to Washington for leadership, the country will find the Capital the theater for dozens of ceremonies, arranged to impress upon a forgetful world that those who fell in France should not have died in vain.

President and Mrs. Hoover, accompanied by high military and naval officials, will place wreaths upon the Unknown Soldier's Tomb at 10 a. m., and later the President will address what is perhaps the most significant gathering of the day—the good-will congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship, meeting in the Washington Auditorium at 11 o'clock. Included in the presidential party to visit Arlington will be Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of the Navy Adams, Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff; Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and George Akerson, the President's secretary.

Numerous Ceremonies Listed.

Churches, civic bodies and patriotic societies will stage numerous ceremonies, most of them centering at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery. Honoring the 5,000,000 sons and daughters who served in the World War, the American War Mothers will raise the United States service flag on the east front of the Capitol at 10:20 a. m. An Army bugler will sound a salute, and then taps, after two minutes of silence are observed at 11 o'clock, the hour when the guns were stilled.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: We are celebrating the twelfth anniversary of Armistice Day. As the war recedes into the past the material loss becomes more apparent. The destruction of life, the maimed and the orphaned reaching many millions, the loss of scores of billions of property, the crushing debts and taxation and the human misery of the time which will be projected into the distant future, reveal what a crime it was to permit such a catastrophe to envelop the world. No nation profited by it.

If there was any gain it must be sought for in spiritual values. Even those appear to be diminishing. The unselfish patriotic fervor of that day has suffered a relapse. Instead of a willingness to give all for one's country there is too much disposition in the world to avoid meeting all the different kinds of national obligations here and abroad imposed by the war. People should realize that they can not be avoided. In some way they will have to be discharged. The nations can only recover from the war by a continuous exhibition of the spirit of sacrifice which those terrible times produced. Unless the increased moral power then created is preserved the war will be a total loss.

CREDIT UNIONS HELD CURB FOR LOAN EVIL

Capper Measure, Proposing 12 Per Cent Interest, to Be Introduced.

QUICK ACTION UNLIKELY

Credit unions, authorized by law and under government supervision, may deal the deathblow to the loan shark business in Washington and provide sources of cheap loans to persons of small means.

The unions are authorized in a bill which Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, is expected to push for enactment at the coming season of Congress.

Under the bill, groups of persons resident in Washington or employed here or doing business here would be authorized to frame and incorporate a credit union and make loans to its membership at not more than 12 per cent interest annually. Funds for the loans would come principally from shares purchased by members, although investments would be authorized.

The unions would be exempted from District and Federal taxation except taxes on their real personal. They would be under supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency, as are national banks, and their charters and by-laws would have to be approxied by the District of Columbia commissioner.

The 1 per cent per month interest rate on loans, authorized in the Capper measure, would be assessed only on unpaid balances and would include all charges incident to making the loan.

This interest rate is in marked contrast to that authorized in the so-called Bowman bill, introduced at the last session of Congress and sponsored by the Russell Sage Foundation as a measure deigned to induce extension of the small loan business in the National Capital. That measure provided for a maximum interest rate of 3½ per cent per month, and there developed considerable opposition to it, its critics protesting that results of its enactment into law would be as bad as conditions were before Congress undertook to put the loan shark out of business several years ago.

The Bowman measure, however, may have a material effect on the Capper credit union bill. Former Representative Ralph Gilbert, of Kentucky, has been one of those who interested themselves in explaining the Bowman bill and seeking to get

CRASHES SHOW ROAD IS "NO MAN'S LAND"

Police of Four Jurisdictions Refuse Highway Bridge Responsibility.

VICTIM STARTS INQUIRY

That strip of the Washington-Richmond highway from the south end of Highway Bridge to the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks again assumed a status of "no man's land" when three automobiles were involved in crashes early yesterday morning. The police of four jurisdictions disclaimed responsibility for patrolling the road.

The first crash occurred about 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when an automobile bearing tags issued to Herbert Carter, of 2026 Wisconsin avenue, crashed into a telephone pole and over the bank near the plant of the Southern Oxygen Co., stretching a tangled mass of live telephone wires across the road.

A few minutes later, R. L. Madison, of 2401 Third street northeast, drove up to the scene and stopped short when he came upon the wreckage. So short did he stop, in fact, that his car was rammed from the rear by an automobile operated by Mrs. Zoe P. Libby, of 68 U street northwest.

The occupants of Carter's machine in the meantime had fled the scene. It was revealed later by John H. Hover, of 1216 North Capitol street, watchman at the oxygen plant, that immediately after the first accident, three men, one of whom was injured, had asked him for permission to wash up, after which they had vanished without giving any names or explanation.

Mrs. Libby was slightly injured, and decided to notify the police of the accident. She called the Metropolitan Police Department, she said, but was informed that the District officials had no jurisdiction over the road on the Virginia side, other than to keep it in repair as far as the railroad tracks. Mrs. Libby was advised to call the Alexandria police.

The Alexandria police, she said, replied that it was entirely out of their line, and after some debate suggested that it was a matter for the Arlington County, Va., authorities. They, however, apparently couldn't see it that way, and finally told Mrs. Libby that possibly the United States Park Police could do something about it.

Mrs. Libby called the park police, and was advised that although that branch of the Governmetn was entirely without any jurisdiction over the scene of the accident, they would

PARTY CHIEFS DEBATE OFFER OF DEMOCRATS

Proposal to Cooperate May Apply Only to Short Session.

ADDED STRENGTH OF MINORITY YEAR OFF

No Indication Rivals of G. O. P. Will End Farm Relief, Tariff Fights.

EXTRA MEETING NOT LIKELY UNDER PLAN

Promise Also Insures Help for Hoover on Economic Relief Measures.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

So much confusion has been caused by the now famous cooperation statement of the seven Democratic leaders that some responsible persons in both the Democratic and Republican camps were inclined yesterday to wonder whether cooperation is possible between any two minds, not to mention two political parties.

Almost as many interpretations have been placed on the statement as there were words in it. In some quarters it was taken as a meaningless political gesture, in others as a coalition of the two major parties for the duration of the emergency, and in still others, an abandonment of Democratic policies.

This last phase was disturbing to some prominent Democrats on Capitol Hill, and among them was resentment that the statement was issued. There were countless rumors about the origin of the statement and about it not having voiced the sentiments of this Democrat and that one.

Added Strength Year Away.

All this being true, a clarification of the statement would seem to be important.

It is learned from an unquestionably authoritative source that the statement was prepared in the light of the fact that the Democrats will not have their increased strength in either House or Senate until December, 1931, more than a year away. It did not attempt, and does not intend, it was explained, to commit the Democratic party to any procedure at that time.

This procedure will be shaped up at that time by the responsible leaders in the light of conditions at that time.

No question is involved of the abandonment of the Democrats' fight on the tariff or of its abandonment of their advocacy of the debenture plan of farm relief, to cite two concrete examples.

Applies to Short Session.

Neither is there any promise that these two fights will be pressed in the December, 1931, session.

The statement was written in the

Butts Begins His Story How He Trapped Man in Green Hat

Placed in Stationery Room by Curtis to Check on Rum.

Watched Operations of Cassiday for Four Months, He Says.

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles by Rogers Butts, the prohibition agent, who spent four months in the office building of the United States Senate, by order of Vice President Curtis, spying on bootleg liquor purchases on Capitol Hill.

Young Butts trapped George L. Cassidy, "The Man in the Green Hat," and caused the seizure of his bootleg customer list, which was filed with Federal authorities.

Special Agent Butts told the details of his story when assured he was under no obligation to the Federal Government to withhold the truth regarding his experiences from the public.

By ROGER BUTTS.

On Saturday, December 14, I reported to the headquarters of the U. S. Prohibition Bureau in the Treasury Department at Washington and received the assignment to go after the bootleggers in the Senate Office Building.

The following Monday I went to work as an employee in the Senate stationery room, where Vice President Curtis had arranged in advance to place me. My real job until late in the session was that of an "under cover" agent for the Prohibition Bureau.

Employment of Butts Right, Curtis Asserts

(Associated Press.)

Vice President Curtis said yesterday that his part in the stationing of an undercover prohibition agent in the Senate Office Building several months ago was a minor one, but he thought "the right thing was done."

"Several complaints were made that a bootlegger was using the Senate Office Building," Mr. Curtis said. "I was told about it and said I thought the thing to do, if he was violating the law, was to catch him. My opinion was asked about placing him in the building and I also said I thought that was all right if it was absolutely necessary to stop the law violations."

Mr. Curtis said he did not sign an order to place the agent in the building.

"I had no authority to sign that order," he added, "but I did say that if he was selling liquor in the Senate Office Building something should be done to stop it, and I haven't changed my mind. I did not know when the agent was placed in the building, nor when he left."

Authorities, He Avers, Were Ready to Go Limit in Case.

I worked every day for four months in the stationery room, reporting regularly to the bureau, and checking up every day on the movements of George L. Cassidy, "The Man in the Green Hat."

The Prohibition Bureau had proof that Cassiday had been selling liquor for years on Capitol Hill to senators, congressmen and their secretaries. My instructions from the bureau were to watch his operations closely and to try to trap him into a sale at the Senate Office Building.

Last August I left the prohibition service after receiving the best of recommendations from my superior officers in the bureau. I am only telling my story now because Vice President Curtis and Commissioner Doran have stated a prohibition agent was placed in the Senate Office Building at the last session, and I believe the public is entitled to know the facts of what I saw and did there. Moreover, I have been informed a prohibition agent, like any other public officer, is under no obligation

President's Address to Convention Here Is Broadcast.

ELECTION ANALYZED BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Chief Executive Tells Delegates Demand Cheapens Cost.

PRAISES THEIR WORK POLICING BUSINESS

Created Desire Is Factor Leading to Mass Production, Session Told.

President Hoover told the Association of National Advertisers last night that from creation of desire, through the medium of advertising, there emerges additional demand, and with demand comes increasing production and distribution.

From enlarged diffusion of articles and services, President Hoover said, costs are cheapened, and thereby advertisers become a part of the dynamic force which creates higher standards of living.

Soon after the Chief Executive closed his address, which was broadcast over a network of 39 stations by the National Broadcasting Co., he heard David Lawrence, a Washington publisher, interpret the elections of last Tuesday as indicative that the people wanted neither party to have control of the legislative branch of government "for the very good reason that the Nation expected equal performance from both."

The President was greeted by enthusiastic applause when he was introduced by Bernard Lichtenberg, president of the Association.

Text of Mr. Hoover's Address.

President Hoover spoke as follows:

"It gives me great pleasure to extend greetings to you upon your assembly in Washington. Advertising is one of the vital organs of our entir economic and social system. It certainly is the vocal organ by which industry sings its song of beguilement. The purpose of advertising is to create desire, and from the torments of desire there at once merges additional demand, and from demand you pull upon increasing production and distribution. By the stimulants of advertising which you administer you have stirred the lethargy of the old law of supply and demand until you have transformed cottag industries into mass production. From enlarged diffusion of articles and services you cheapen costs and thereby you are a part of the dynamic force which creates higher standards of living.

"You also contribute to hurry up the general use of every discovery in science and every invention in industry. It probably required 1,000 years to spread the knowledge and application of that great human invention, the wheeled cart, and it has taken you only 30 years to make the automobile the universal tool of man.

"Moreover, your constant exploitation of every improvement is every article and service spreads a restless pillow for every competitor and drives the producer to feverishe actions in new invention, new sevice, and still more improvement. Incidentally, you make possible the vast distribution of information, of good cheer and tribulation which comes with the morning paper, the periodical and the radio. And your contribution to them aids to sustain a great army of authors and artists who could not otherwise join in the standards of living you create.

Contribution by Radio.

"Your latest contribution to constructive joy is to make possible the hourly spread of music, entertainment, and political assertion to the radio sets in 12,000,000 homes.

"At one time advertising was per-

DOHENY OIL LEASES VALIDATED BY COURT

660 Acres in Elk Hills Naval Reserve Among Richest Potential Sources.

VALUED AT $29,000,000

Los Angeles, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The leases negotiated by Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, for the Pan-American Western ePtroleum Co. to 660 acres of oil lands in the Elk Hills Naval Reserve, No. 1, were held valid and free of fraud in a decision today by Federal Judge Frank H. Norcross, of Nevada.

The judgment was the outcome of the civil suit instituted by the Federal Government against the company on grounds of alleged fraud last winter. The suit wata one of the last of the long line of court actions begun after the disclosure of the oil scandals of the Harding administration.

By the decision, the leases, now controlled by the Richfield Oil Co. of California through purchases of the Doheny interests, remain undisturbed and give Richfield the right to explo-

Former Envoys Hold American Ills Internal

Houghton and Schurman Tell Goodwill Congress of Menace to Peace; Canadian Diplomat and Shortwell Also Address Capital Parley.

An admonition to America to look within itself for the answer to the question of its peace with the world was sounded last night by two former Ambassadors at a banquet closing the first session of the three-day Goodwill Congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship at the Willard Hotel. They were Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to Germany and England and Jacob Gould Schurman, former Ambassador to Germany and Minister to China.

At 10 o'clock today in the Washington Auditorium, the organization will hear the Armistice day address of President Hoover.

Mr. Houghton last night declared that if America really desires a more durable peace, "it behooves us, each of us, to pay a little less attention to the dangers which apparently threaten us from without and a little more attention to the dangers which actually threaten us from within. The enemies of peace here in America are those, within, who foster hate and create suspicion and stir up distrust."

Remaining his hearers that "it was left to America" to remind Soviet Russia and China of their obligations under the Briand-Kellogg pact last year, Mr. Schurman said, "that is an unfair burden for us to undertake." He advocated American adherence to the World Court and formulation of a plan to be followed by signatories to the Kellogg pact in case war was threatened among signatory nations.

Justice Florence E. Allen, of the Ohio Supreme Court, traced the course and fortunes of antiwar treaties and strongly advocated American entrance into the World Court. To make the Briand-Kellogg Treaty "a force in the world," she advocated erection and perfection of permanent machinery for adjudication and settlement of controversy, enactment of further international law, and scrupulous observance of the second covenant of the pact by all signatory antions.

Arthur Meighen, former prime minister of Canada, declared that the only substitute for competitive armaments consists in a universal association of nations, including the United States, "within which means will be found to define and identify a guilty power and hold that power in restraint."

Col. Raymond Robins, of Florida, advocating early universal reduction of armaments and entry of the United States into the World Court. "It is idle to talk about outlawing war," he said. "If we do not organize means for pacific settlement of questions that arise among nations of the world."

The first day of the congress saw formal discussions looking toward effective coordination of agencies through which attainment of world peace might become a reality.

Declaring that disarmament, of it-

Reed Smoot's Son Divorced by Wife

Mental Cruelty Alleged; Wins Alimony, Custody of One Child.

Special to The Washington Post.

Salt Lake City, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Alice Nibley Smoot today was granted a divorce from Harold Smoot, son of United States Senator Reed Smoot, on the ground of mental cruelty. The suit in District Court, filed an hour before the decree was granted, was not contested.

Mrs. Smoot, the daughter of Charles W. Nibley, second counselor in the first presidency of Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), alleged that her husband was fault-finding, nagged her, was abusive and that he had stated that he had ceased to love or care for her.

The court granted Mrs. Smoot the custody of 9-year-old Harold Nibley Smoot, while Charles Reed Smoot, 15, is to be allowed to choose which parent he wishes to live with. Half of Mr. Smoot's monthly salary, not to exceed $350, is to constitute the alimony, the court ruled. The complaint set forth that his average salary is $500 a month. Mr. Smoot is to pay all debts for which she is jointly liable. The household furniture also was awarded to Mrs. Smoot.

They were married September 21, 1910. Mrs. Smoot, who is living with her parents here, plans to remain in Salt Lake, friends say.

Indictment Gordon Banned Like One of His, Brief Says

Government Cites Writ Drawn by Justice When District Attorney in Fighting His Action in Denison Liquor Charge.

An odd state of affairs is brought out in the brief which the Government filed yesterday in District Court of Appeals in its efforts to have the higher court overrule the action of Justice Peyton Gordon, of District Supreme Court, in sustaining demurrers to the indictment in which E. E. Denison, dry Republican, of Illinois, is charged with violating the prohibition act.

Justice Gordon held that the indictment—one of the briefest ever filed in the court—did not sufficiently apprise the defendant with the offense with which "he stood charged" and intimated that unless the indictment was more specifically drawn the defendant, even if tried and acquitted, could be reindicted on the same charge.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, however, were not satisfied and after gaining from the Department of Justice permission to appeal delved back into the records.

This research showed that several years ago, while the present Justice Gordon was United States Attorney Gordon, an indictment charging Lena Jacobs with violation of the prohibition law was drawn in practically the same verbiage and sparse length as that of the Denison indictment. The only difference that could be found was that the indictment against the Jacobs woman contained the word "feloniously" and the name of Peyton Gordon as United States Attorney instead of Leo A. Rover, as in the Denison indictment.

In this connection the Government points out that the Jacobs indictment was upheld by the Court of Appeals in a decision written by Justice Charles H. Robb on March 5, 1923.

Mayor's Parade Elephants Charge at London Crowd

Dummy Lion on Float Enrages Huge Beasts Which Demolish It and Turn on Spectators; None Seriously Hurt.

London, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Three frightened elephants stole the "Lord Mayor's Show" today as they caught sight of a make-believe lion in the parade ahead of them and charged into the crowd which thronged the Thames embankment. Fifty spectators were pretty badly jostled as those at the curb sought safety.

It was the most gorgeous parade in years and not the least colorful spectacle in the parade was Sir Phene Neal himself, the new Lord Mayor of London, in the ornate carriage which has carried his predecessors to their inaugurations for generations.

The elephants, in a tableau representing India, plodded along behind a group of Kings College students who carried a model lion as their mascot. Suddenly the elephants' leader saw the traditional jungle enemy and rushed toward it, trumpeting.

The great beast seized the lion in his trunk as the students scattered, and dashed it to the pavement. Then he and the two others headed for the crowd. Mounted police soon headed them back into line, however, and the pageant proceeded.

Up to that point the most exciting feature of the parade had been a real covered wagon, used by British pioneers who participated in the opening of the American West. It was convoyed by a band of American Indians in full regalia.

The crowd cheered itself hoarse as the glittering parade moved through close-packed lines of spectators who dispersed only when the sun came down on the end of a glourious day.

In the evening there was the traditional banquet in the ancient Guild Hall, where half the great men of England dined together in the lord mayor's honor.

haps looked upon as an intrusion, a clamor to the credulous. But your publicity and beguiling methods have long since overcome this resentment. From all of which the public has ceased to deny the usefulness of advertising and has come to include you in the things we bear in life.

"But in more serious turn, the very importance of the position which advertising has risen to occupy in the economic system is in direct proportion to the ability of the people to depend upon the probity of the statements you present. The advertising executive and the medium through which he advertises must see to it that the desire you create is satisfied by the article recommended.

"The good will of the public toward the producer, the goods, or the service is the essential of sound advertising—for no business succeeds upon the sale of an article once. And to maintain this confidence of the public you and the medium which you patronize have an interest that others do not violate confidence and thereby discredit the whole of advertising.

Responsibility Recognized.

"You have recognized that responsibility. The Better Business Bureau and the vigilance agencies which you have set up to safeguard the general reputation of advertising are not only sound ethics but sound business. In the policing of your own business you are contributing soundly to self-government by curing abuse without the interference of Government. I wish you success in your convention and in the purposes for which you are assembled."

In his interpretation of the congressional elections in terms of current business, Mr. Lawrence asserted that both political parties are equally interested in developing for this country a return of prosperity, and therefore nothing will be done to injure legitimate business.

He declared that the leaders of the two major parties are bound to submit legislative programs which will command the support of their respective groups. Fro all practical purposes, he asserted, the election of last Tuesday amounted to a tie in both houses of Congress.

By eliminating the small number in Congress, Mr. Lawrence said, who might be termed radical, there remain in both houses a vast number of nonradicals—which is more than enough to prevent passage of any legislation that would be injurious to the course of American business.

Mentions Veto Power.

Even though there should be a difference of opinion between the rival parties over legislation, he reminded his audience that the Chief Executive holds a veto power, and supplemented this declaration with the reminder that in ten years not a single piece of legislation which might be considered harmful to American business had been passed over the presidential veto.

In the opinion of Mr. Lawrence, Republicans and Democrats are just the same under the skin. On the premise that the public rightly or wrongly blames the party in power for depressions, he concluded that the rivalry of the hour is, therefore, a challenge which party can do more to bring the country back to normal economic conditions.

In his recollection there was never a time when the partisan spirit subsided so quickly as after the elections last week. The announcement of the leaders of both parties that they desire an era of cooperation suggests to him that the leaders of both parties want the Government to function smoothly and constructively in this "period of great emergency, a crisis unparalleled in world history."

Sees Mandate for Recovery.

Then swinging from a negative consideration of the interpretation of the elections to the other extreme, he declared that if the country spoke any mandate, it was a word to legislators to assist in organizing America for the recovery process.

Discussing proposed legislation that will bring again economic stability, Mr. Lawrence averred there are industries which will look forward to relief only through revision of laws that will promote consolidation of units. There are constructive steps that will be proposed, he added, to give industry as well as agriculture an opportunity to adjust itself to new conditions and new markets.

Underlying all of the discussions of the elections, Mr. Lawrence observed evidences that both of the political parties recognize the gravity of the task that lies ahead, and that "we can look to the future with confidence and assurance, feeling that the spirit of American patriotism is rising above party and above individualism."

President Stays to Hear.

"Some day," Mr. Lawrence concluded, "we will look back upon the elections of 1930 and say that neither party was granted control of the legislative branch of the Government for the very good reason that the Nation expected equal performance from both."

Contrary to his custom, President Hoover remained to hear the next address on the program, which was that of Mr. Lawrence. At the conclusion of the adddress the Chief Executive left for the White House.

Graham McNamee, announcer for the National Broadcasting Co., directed the broadcasting of the dinner and meeting, which was held at the conclusion of the first day's business of the association, which is hold a three-day session at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Postage Increase Forecast.

An increase in the rate of first-class mail from 2 cents to 2½ cents an ounce will be recommended to Congress in the annual report of the Postmaster General on December 1, Assistant Postmaster General Frederic A. Tilton told the association yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Tilton analyzed for the 400 representatives the problems confronting the Postoffice Department. "We find a governmental business," he said, "which was intended to be self-sustaining, now operating at a loss of $98,000,000. Of this amount $30,000,000 is attributable to services which are either foreign to the primary objects or otherwise not compensating."

Mr. Tilton said that the only way that the revenue and expenses of the department can be balanced is through an increase of rates on first-class mail.

Wants Cost Distributed.

Mr. Tilton asserted that the character of the Postoffice services can be placed upon a compensating basis by distributing the cost to the users. "The whole cost," he said, "should be borne by those for whom service is rendered, and no part should be shifted to the general fund or involved in the matter of levying taxes."

Edward L. Bernays, a member of the President's emergency committee of employment, urged the advertisers to use all their local influences and leadership to handle the employment problem in their own communities.

Mr. Bernays asked that the advertisers put slogans in their advertisements to aid employment, such as "Give a Job to a Worker" and "Organize to Fight Unemployment."

Business Interest Is Cited.

"Business," he said, "can't expect markets to stand up under present conditions. Unless business itself gets to work finding jobs for the unemployed it must expect a falling off in its distribution."

Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont welcomed the advertisers in a brief address. Dr. Frank M. Surface, assistant director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, then discussed every phase of industrial distribution.

Mr. Lichtenberg, president of the association and vice president of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, discussed the vast field for the elimination of waste in distribution.

Trade Commission Work.

The work of the Federal Trade Commission in protecting the public against fraudulent advertising was explained by William E. Humphrey, a member of the commission. He also discussed the progress being made by the commission in the chain-store inquiry, the progress made in the resale price maintenance investigation and the policy of the commission on trade practice conferences.

Today's session will be open only to members of the association. The business will be devoted to a discussion of distribution problems.

W. A. Grove, of the Edison General Electric Appliance Co., and vice president of the association presided at the afternoon session.

DRYS IN CONGRESS PREPARE FOR FIGHT

First Step in Their Program Will Be Campaign of Education.

FESS OUTLINES PLAN

(Associated Press.)

Drys are mobilizing on Capitol Hill for the prospective prohibition battle in Congress and the first step in their contemplated program is a national educational campaign. Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, a staunch prohibitionist, sounded the call yesterday for the educational drive and he emphasized as he did so that it must be conducted by a reorganized prohibition staff.

Senator Fess indicated that the drys are going to build over their organization. There is an indication also that the work will not be left to the Antisaloon League, which has shouldered the political activity of the dry cause for so many years.

Salvation of the eighteenth amendment is the one banner under which all the prohibitionists are united. They easily have the votes in Congress now to sustain that.

Holds Amendment Is Safe.

"The people will never stand for the return of the saloon," said Senator Fess, "nor will they give up the eighteenth amendment. We need a national campaign for education."

The stand by Fess was interpreted by some as a warning that any move made by the Republican party against the eighteenth amendment in the 1932 presidential campaign would bring a split in the party. Fess is chairman of the Republican national committee.

Senator Fess, however, conceded that the increased penalties recently imposed for liquor violators had failed to be of the benefit he had hoped.

Commission Support Waited.

"The bootlegger is without character and doesn't mind going to jail to be supported by the public," commented the Ohioan. "We are filling the jails, but I am afraid that is not the necessary deterrent."

Like Congress itself, however, the prohibition question and what those on Capitol Hill will do about it are enigmas that only the future can solve. Most of those members now in Washington are withholding the formulation of plans until the President's Law Enforcement Commission completes its report, which may come about the first of the year.

Heflin Lays Fraud Charge Before Nye

Defeated Senator Alleges Election Probe Will Uphold Him.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, yesterday laid charges of fraud in the Alabama election before Chairman Nye, of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee.

Mr. Nye told Mr. Heflin that he would present the charges to the full committee when it meets in Denver Thursday, and a decision made later. Mr. Heflin, running as an independent Democrat, was beaten by John H. Bankhead, Democrat.

Mr. Heflin said that he was sure that at least 75,000 votes had been taken from him by "skulduggery." He said that thousands of votes by Republicans weer thrown out contrary to law, and that there had been widespread intimidation of his supporters. He said that one instance of this had come to his attention from Montgomery, where employes of an industrial concern had been "threatened with dismissal" if they voted for him.

The Alabama senator said that he was sure that an investigation by the committee would disclose that he won the election.

Bethesda Firemen Elect Officials

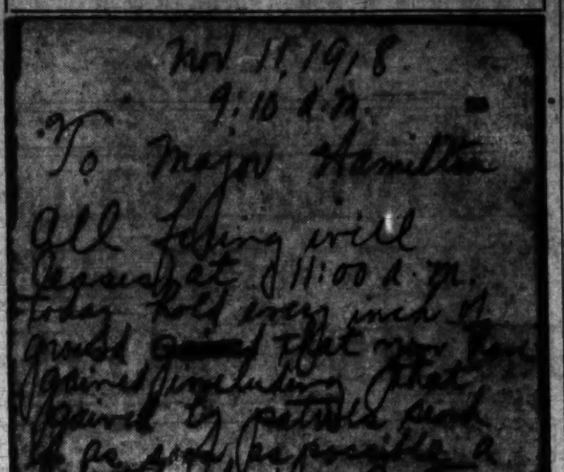
J. Fred Imire Is Named to Head Volunteer Organization.

J. Fred Imirie was elected chief of the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department at its annual meeting last night in the fire house. Arthur Oldfield was elected assistant chief and John L. Imirie was elected secretary and treasurer.

Company officers were elected as follows: No 1 Company, Andrew Pugh, captain; Francis Gloye, lieutenant, and Henry Pugh, sergeant. No. 2 Company, John Murdock, captain; Frank Stone, lieutenant, and Hiram Musgrove, sergeant. No. 3 Company, James Per-, captain; William Tyles, lieutenant, and Burt Heil, sergeant.

J. L. Imirie was elected captain of the rescue squad. John Smith was elected lieutenant, and George Pugh was elected sergeant. It was reported that the ten members of the rescue squad have passed the standard and advanced courses in first aid of the American Red Cross. A smoker followed the election, at which E. C. Benson, president of the Cabin John Volunteer Department, and the newly elected officers spoke.

"CEASE FIRING" ORDER DELAYED



The late Maj. George Wallis Hamilton was the son of Charles Hamilton, Washington newspaper man. He was born here and was educated at Central High School. On the morning Maj. Hamilton received the "cease firing" order from Gen. Feland he was in command of troops in the vicinity of Bois Flaviers on the Meuse River, near Moulins, which was occupied by the Germans. Maj. Hamilton did not receive the order until 11:45 a. m. and, because of the delay in transmission, it was after noon before some of the American outposts ceased firing.

Note Asked Allied Soldiers "What Are We Fighting For?"

A yellowed and tattered sheet of paper which was dropped from a German airplane on the allied front line at Meuse Argonne, France, on October 12, 1918, is now in the possession of Ernest I. Hernandez, of 526 H street northeast. Bearing information on negotiations for peace between Germany and the United States, these pamphlets, which were scattered by the hundreds, gave the first intimation to many of the soldiers that the end of the World War was near.

Following is a facsimile of the text of the paper:

What are we fighting for?

The German note:

The German Government requests the President of the United States of America to take in hand the restoration of peace, acquaint all belligerent States with this request, and invite them to send plenipotentiaries for the purpose of opening negotiations.

It accepts the program set forth by the President of the United States in his Message to Congress on January 8, 1918, and in his later pronouncements, especially his speech of September 27, as a basis for peace negotiations.

With a view to avoiding further bloodshed, the German Government requests the immediate conclusion of an armistice on land and water and in the air.

Berlin, October 4, 1918.
(Signed) MAX PRINCE OF BADEN,
Imperial Chancellor.

Wilson's answer:

Department of State, October 8, 1918.

Sir—I have the honour to acknowledge on behalf of the President your Note of October 6 enclosing a communication from the German Government to the President and I am instructed by the President to request you to make the following communication to the Imperial German Chancellor:

"Before making a reply to the request of the Imperial German Government and in order that the reply shall be as candid and straightforward as the momentous interests involved require, the President of the United States deems it necessary to assure himself of the exact meaning of the Note of the Imperial Chancellor.

"Does the Imperial Chancellor mean that the Imperial German Government accepts the terms laid down by the President in his address to Congress of the United States on the 8th of January last, and in his subsequent addresses, and that its object in entering into discussions would be only to agree upon the practical details and their applications.

"The President feels bound to say with regard to the suggestion of an armistice that he does not feel at liberty to propose the cessation of arms to the Governments with which the Government of the United States is associated against the Central Powers, so long as the armies of those Powers are upon their soil.

"The good faith of any discussion would manifestly depend upon the consent of the Central Powers immediately to withdraw their forces everywhere from the invaded territory.

"The President also feels that he is justified in asking whether the Imperial Chancellor is speaking merely for the constituted authorities of the Empire who have so far conducted the war. He deems answers to these questions vital from every point of view."

Accept, Sir, the renewed assurances of my high consideration.
ROBERT LANSING.

Germany's answer:

The German Government, replying to the questions of the President of the United States of America declares:

The German Government has accepted the terms laid down by the President in his address on the 8th January last, and in his subsequent addresses, as the basis of a lasting peace of justice. Its object in entering into discussions would be only to agree upon practical details of the application of those terms.

The German Government assumes that the Governments with which the Government of the United States is associated also stand on the ground of President Wilson's pronouncements.

The German Government, in agreement with the Austrian-Hungarian Government, declares itself ready to comply with President Wilson's proposals for evacuation in order to bring about an armistice.

It leaves it to the President to effect the meeting of a mixed commission which would have to make the necessary arrangements for evacuation.

The present German Government, responsible for the peace step, has been formed by negotiations and in agreement with the great majority of the "Reichstag."

The Imperial Chancellor, supported in each of his dealings by the will of this majority, speaks in the name of the German Government and of the German people.

Berlin, October 12, 1918.

Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Germany Ignores Armistice Yearly

Never Observed as Day on Which War Terrors Ceased, Berlin Paper Says.

Berlin, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The twelfth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice was expected to pass unnoticed in Germany tomorrow, as has been the case each year.

Oratory and comment on the outcome of that momentous day generally are reserved for November 9, when the Reich changed from a monarchy to a republic, and to some extent for Busstag, or the day of repentance, a movable church observance falling this year on November 19. "It is a beautiful idea to keep Armistice Day in America as a day of peace," said a German spokesman, "but to us it heralded years of sore trouble and distress."

The Vossische Zeitung tomorrow will print a descriptive story of a typical English Armistice celebration with its two minutes of silence. The paper heads it thus: In Germany, November 11, on which the onerous Armistice terms were imposed upon us, which later were embodied in the Treaty of Versailles, has never been observed as a day on which the terrors of war ceased and the world laid down its arms."

England Honors Unknown Soldier

Crowds Visit Cenotaph at Whitehall; Prince Makes Address.

London, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The crowds which stood this afternoon to watch the parade of the "lord mayor's show" paused on the way home tonight to pay their own Armistice Day tribute at the cenotaph in Whitehall and late this evening there was still a long line winding toward the shrine of the nation's war dead.

Not in recent years has there been such an early demonstration to the memory of the men who fell in the war, many in the crowd wore the red poppies, 40,060,000 of which have been made by blind and maimed veterans for sale tomorrow.

The Prince of Wales tonight broadcast a special appeal in aid of this veterans' fund.

"The war cost us millions of our finest lives," he said, "and left us with a responsibility to their survivors which will remain while there is a man or a dependent needing our help."

IMPOSING SERVICES PLANNED FOR BLISS

Funeral Tomorrow Will Be Marked by Military Honors of Rank.

NATION EXPRESSES GRIEF

On a picturesque wooded knoll overlooking the Potomac River, Gen. Tasker H. Bliss will be laid to rest tomorrow morning in a funeral with full military honors befitting the rank he achieved in a distinguished career as a soldier-statesman.

The funeral will be imposing, comparable in many ways to that of Chief Justice William Howard Taft, for whom the last state funeral here was held. All active troops at Forts Myer, Washington and Humphreys, about 1,000 in number, have been ordered mobilized for the event.

The plot selected for Gen. Bliss lies between the grave of Taft and that of Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the Civil War President, in the northeast corner of the cemetery close to the memorial plaza marking the Virginia end of the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

The grief of the Nation at the passing of the war-time chief of staff was voiced in a message of condolence sent to the Bliss family by President Hoover coincident with similar communications sent by notables in the public and private life of the Nation with whom Gen. Bliss had been associated in his almost half century of service.

Letter From Hoover.

The letter of President Hoover to Mrs. Bliss follows:

"I am profoundly grieved at the death of my dear friend your husband, and Mrs. Hoover and I send you our deepest sympathy in your loss. His long record of distinguished service to our country and to the world is known to all and assures him an enduring fame, but to those of us who worked with him and came to know him intimately he will remain in memory first as a loyal and lovable companion."

President Hoover, according to a White House announcement, will be represented at the funeral by his military aid, Lieut. Col. Campbell B. Hodges, accompanying an army of notables who will serve as honorary pallbearers. In conformity with the wish of Gen. Bliss, his active pallbearers will be the six enlisted men who attended him during his six months' illness at Walter Reed Hospital, where he died early Sunday morning from an intestinal ailment, which became acute early last week.

Brief Private Services.

After lying on a bier throughout today and tonight in the Bliss home at 1842 Kalorama road northwest, where brief private services will be held about 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, the body will be placed on a caisson in the funeral procession, which will proceed slowly to Washington Cathedral, where rites will be performed by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, at 10:15 o'clock.

A military escort from the home to the church and thence to the cemetery, will be commanded by Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding the Third Corps area. Troop E, of the Third Cavalry at Fort Myer, with Capt. H. J. FitzGerald in command, will act as escort, while the caisson bearing the body of Gen. Bliss will be guarded by a detachment commanded by First Lieut. L. E. Downing, of the Sixteenth Field Artillery.

Guns to Sound Requiem.

Services at Washington Cathedral concluded, the procession will file down Wisconsin avenue to the Key Bridge and thence into Fort Myer, where guns will boom a requiem for the dead warrior. A pretentious escort there will be provided, including the Army Band, the Third Battalion of the Twelfth Infantry, commanded by Maj. A. M. Patch, jr.; the Thirteenth Engineers, co manded by Maj. Edward A. Bethel; the Second Squadron, Third Cavalry, commanded by Maj. John T. McLane, and the Sixteenth Field Artillery, commanded by Capt. George D. Shea.

At the grave, brief services will be conducted by Julian E. Yates, chief of Chaplains, United States Army.

HIT-AND-RUN AUTO CRASH KILLS WOMAN

avenue southeast, was fatally injured last night about 6:50 o'clock in Highlands, Ca. She died exactly an hour later at Emergency Hospital of a fractured skull and internal injuris.

Police of Washington, Alexandria and Arlington County last night had united in a search for a Hudson coupe, Virginia license plates the first three numbers of which were 184, believed to have been the automobile which struck Mrs. Weiss.

Mrs. Weiss and her husband, Conrad H. Weiss, also 57 years old, had been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Louise Burke, in Virginia Highlands yesterday afternoon. About 6:30 o'clock they walked down to Frazier avenue and the Washington-Richmond highway to await a bus running to Washington.

According to Mr. Weiss, the first warning of any danger came when he glanced down the road leading from Washington to be blinded by the headlights of a rapidly approaching car. He said he started to leap back and to pull Mrs. Weiss out of the way when the auto rushed past.

In a daze, he discovered that Mrs. Weiss had disappeared. He immediately ran down the road toward Alexandria, finding his wife crumpled in a heap about 100 feet away. Realizing that she was critically hurt, Mr. Weiss ran to the Virginia Highlands fire station, where he found Frank McCoy, John C. Williams and Walton Sweikhert, all of that place, who brought Mrs. Weiss to Emergency Hospital in a private car.

While physicians at the hospital were still laboring in a vain effort to save Mrs. Weiss' life, Albert Hurshman, 27 years old, of 400 King street, Alexandria, Va., reported to First Precinct police that he was near the scene when the accident occurred.

He gave the report on the make of the car and the first three figures of the license, stating that this machine passed him going more than 60 miles per hour. When Hurshman reached the place where Mr. Weiss was picking up his wife, the other car had sped out of sight. No other machine passed him or entered the highway from a side road, Hurshman declared.

Mr. Weiss was reported near collapse from grief and shock.

self, is neither a short cut nor a direct road to peace, Prof. James T. Shotwell, of Columbia University, yesterday afternoon called for a rational understanding among nations, and a friendship which would make war impossible.

During the morning session, Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, of New York, general secretary of the alliance, had declared that now appears "more gloom and cynicism in regard to the possibility of peace" than at any time since the close of the World War. Religious principles, Dr. Atkinson said, may prove a partial remedy for world unrest.

His view, to those who look upon international disarmament as the panacea for war, may have seemed supported by the address of Prof. Shotwell. The Geneva conference, Prof. Shotwell pointed out, is even now engaged in finding out what is comparable in the fighting machines of the world and in determining the respective values of fighting units.

Other Points Stressed.

As the first day's session moved toward a comparative grouping of various agencies for peace—church, press and school—other speakers pointed out from the standpoint of each its probable weight in bringing about abolition of war.

Religion, as a spirit, an attitude of determined friendliness, pervading all that religious bodies do and think can do much toward making war less likely, Dr. William P. Merrial, president of the alliance, declared. The part education can play in the furtherance of the peace movement was stressed by Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College.

"Never has there been an age," she said, "when education with regard to world relations was so critically needed. There is no real preparedness today against international disaster except the preparedness of good will. A crusade in home and church and school is the most important thing in all God's world."

The morning session received the annual report of Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, general secretary of the alliance, in which he declared that, if official documents mean anything, we are now living in a warless world under the Briand-Kellogg treaty. He pointed out, however, that even now the margin between peace and war is a narrow one.

Program of Alliance.

"The program of the alliance," said Dr. Atkinson, "is based on the recognition that world peace can be secured only by creating right relationships and developing friendship between the peoples of the various countries. The name of the organization defines its program—it is an alliance for international friendship."

A truly international tone, with a somewhat ominous note, was given to the afternoon's discussions by Yusuke Tsurumi, of Japan, who analyzed relationships between the East and the West. The actual place of contact between the two hemispheres, he said, is not on the eastern side of the Pacific, but on the western.

"There," he said, "you have the untold millions of people rapidly coming to the consciousness of their importance and power in the great drama of the world—a rejuvenated China, a revolting India and a fast-maturing Russia. Situated in the midst of these peoples, bristling with new problems demanding new solutions, lies the Island of Japan."

"Will the growing importance of the western Pacific induce the American public to pay more serious attention to the cultures of the Far East with its background of 30 centuries? That, I think, is the basic point for the future harmonious contact of the new types of civilization on the Pacific Ocean."

He was taken to the hospital where his condition is said not to be serious.

Efforts to learn the name of the operator of the car by the police failed. A woman was said to be driving the car.

CONFESSED BUCKLEY SLAYER DIES IN CELL

Millwright Received Fatal Injuries by Falling, Police Say.

ANOTHER UNDER ARREST

Detroit, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—William Jones, 40, a millwright, died of head injuries in a police cell tonight two hours after he had appeared at police headquarters and announced he was the man who killed Gerald E. "Jerry" Buckley, radio political commentator.

Police said he had received his fatal injuries when he fell off a bench in his cell. They said he could have had no connection with the Buckley slaying.

According to police, Jones was intoxicated when he arrived at headquarters, unaccompanied, and said he was Buckley's slayer. They said they saw no traces then of the injuries which caused his death two hours later.

Suffered Skull Fracture.

When he was taken to receiving hospital, where a futile attempt was made to revive him, Jones had a fractured skull, a broken jaw and a badly lacerated eye.

Patrolman John Norris, who was in charge of the information desk, quoted Jones as saying, "I killed Jerry Buckley; you better lock me up," when he walked up to the desk.

Buckley's assassination, just after he had announced over station WMBC, the recall of Mayor Charles Bowles last July 22, precipitated the grand jury investigation of crime in Detroit and environs which is still in progress.

Another Is Arrested.

Ernest G. McMath, 50, was arrested late last night by Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox's squad of secret operatives. Commissioner Wilcox said that a search of McMath's pockets revealed notebooks and papers containing references to Buckley. In addition, Wilcox said, a promissory note for $2,500, signed by Paul Buckley, brother of the slain announcer and a former assistant prosecuting attorney, also was found.

Paul Buckley explained he had signed the note with his brother as an 'accommodation" endorser in connection with a land company which his brother operated. He said neither he nor his deceased brother had ever profited from the note.

Police said they believed McMath is a partner of Chester LaMare, gang leader, who has been in hiding since the outbreak of a series of Sicilian gang slayings last summer.

McMath owned a brewery here before prohibition. Police said he sold it later to LaMare and Angelo Meli, who now is sought as head of a syndicate supplying machine guns to gangsters.

McMath is repted to be a millionaire. He owns a large estate on Lake Erie and a yacht.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

Hi, there, Tom! What brings you back to the Nation's Capital so soon? Trying to get the Nye committee to go down to Alabama and rescue your political fortunes, eh?

A fat chance you've got, Tom.

We all laughed, Tom, a few days ago when, after the returns had come in, you shouted that you were coming to Washington and get the Senate investigators to come down and get those Democrats who ousted you. We thought you were just having a lot of fun. None of us thought you could possibly be serious.

Now, lo and behold, here you are really making the demand that the Nye committee go to Alabama and apparently confident that it will do so.

• • • •

I ALWAYS thought you were a more practical man than that, Tom. Do you really believe there is a chance in a million of the committee doing any such thing?

Why, Tom, the members have heard so much about your State that it is doubtful if a single one has the nerve to go down there.

What assurance have they that you wouldn't have them tarred and feathered as you threatened—facetiously I'll admit—to have done to Senator Robinson that time?

JUST why you should think your fellow senators will help you out when it has not been so long since they refused to disapprove the action of some Massachusetts folk in throwing a beer bottle at you, is more than I can understand, Tom.

You should remember the vote that day. It was a memorable one. A very delicate matter of state policy was at stake. The question was finally divided into two parts, remember, Tom.

One was whether the Senate approved of the throwing of beer bottles and the other was whether it approved of throwing beer bottles at you. Unless I wholly misinterpreted the vote, it was in the negative on the first question and rather in the affirmative on the second.

• • • •

NO, Tom, your carryings-on make it impossible to help you now. Tell you what to do. You go down there in Alabama and live quietly for two years. Then submit your application again and if you have shown a disposition to do right, maybe our attitude will be changed. After all, it is not our desire to pursue a man all his life.

Creecy Held Sane By Naval Board

Result of Inquiry in Slaying and Suicide by Marine Officer Announced.

A board of inquiry of the Navy Department yesterday announced its ruling in the case of Col. Richard B. Creecy, of the Marine Corps, who fatally wounded his wife in the Mayflower Hotel September 28 and then took his own life. The verdict of the board was that Col. Creecy was sane at the time of his act.

The official ruling, as announced by Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, judge advocate general, said in part "in the absence of material evidence of insanity—the deceased must be held sane at the moment of taking his life."

An additional report made by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke said "the Navy Department holds the death of the late Col. Richard B. Creecy was incurred as the result of his own misconduct." Mrs. Creecy died of hatchet wounds several days after her husband ended his life.

WAGNER TO PRESS EMPLOYMENT BILLS

Senator Voices Renewed Hope for Measures After Talk With Woods.

ADVERTISERS' AID ASKED

(Associated Press.)

Senator Wagner, of New York, voiced renewed hope for his three-point legislative program for permanent unemployment relief yesterday, while the President's emergency employment committee sought the aid of advertisers to augment and intensify remedies for the present.

Edward L. Bernays, public relations counsel for the committee, warned the Association of National Advertisers that "business stands to lose its market if it does not assume the job of helping to find jobs for jobless," and urged the members to use their influence in local programs.

To Chairman Woods, of the committee, Senator Wagner and Representative Prall, of New York, brought a plea for intervention to forestall cessation of work on a construction job on Staten Island, which the New Yorkers said would throw 2,500 men out of work unless plans were altered before January 1. Col. Woods promised to ask the Gulf Refining Co. to go forward with the project.

Wagner to Press Measures.

Senator Wagner said after the conference that he would press the three measures sponsored by him and passed by the Senate last spring, but crippled by the House. He favored a Federal relief appropriation to meet an extremity if one should develop, he said, and added that an appropriation authorization of $150,000,000, stricken from a bill now in conference, probably would be increased to $250,000,000.

Senator Wagner and Col. Woods did not confer on unemployment legislation, but in response to queries following the conference, Col. Woods said:

"Of course we are in favor of any sound legislation that will help the situation."

Public Works Furthered.

"The matter of public works is being diligently furthered by all the Government departments, by the President's committee and, as far as I can see, by the States and municipalities. This is something that was initiated by President Hoover a year ago, both by the Government and with industry, and I am convinced the situation would be today much worse, if it had not been for the action of the President."

The Wagner program includes three bills providing enlargement of Government machinery for unemployment statistics; an advance-planning program to regulate public construction in accordance with business trends, and a system of Federal employment exchanges to cooperate with the States.

Senator Wagner said he believed the program would be enacted in full.

"The House passed only one bill," he added, "and that carried no appropriation for the statistics. The House leaders agreed to let the advance planning bill through—but in such a mutilated form it would have been a mere declaration of policy. The bill providing for employment exchanges went to the morgue, in the House."

Second Measure In Conference.

The second measure now is in conference between the House and Senate.

Chairman Woods yesterday asked employers throughout the country to "tell their employes whenever practicable how much work is ahead of them."

"While all industry may not be in a position to act on this suggestion," he added, "many industries where buying is not from hand to mouth may be in a position to keep their employes informed on this, to them, most vital matter. In this way normal buying with its consequent effect on general activity will be stimulated."

Two Groups Join Drive.

Meantime the National Education Association and the National Catholic Welfare Conference joined the crusade against unemployment.

The administrative committee of the Catholic Conference adopted a resolution asking all departments, including thousands of affiliated lay organizations, to "take an active and immediate interest in seeking to relieve and improve the condition of the unemployed; to cooperate with President Hoover's national committee on unemployment and with local official bodies."

President Willis A. Sutton, of the Education Association, urged superintendents and commissioners of education to cooperate. His education-week message, marking the annual observance this week, asked every member to use his influence to speed up public building, and to assist local committees "as you assisted Mr. Hoover in food conservation in 1918."

Interracial Group To Sponsor Essay

High School Pupils Asked to Write on Negroes' Part in History.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The commission on interracial cooperation announced today that a cash prize of $100 will be awarded the Southern high school pupil submitting between now and April 1, 1931, the best paper dealing with the Negro's part in American history.

An additional prize of $100, the announcement said, will be awarded the school making the best use of the commission's project for study of "America's Tenth Man." The title of the papers and of the project, the commission announcement said, was chosen to call attention to the fact that Negroes comprise one-tenth of the population of the United States.

The announced purpose of the prizes is to encourage the study of the Negro's part in American history, in the belief that this will be helpful to both races, promoting more intelligent attitudes on the one side and wholesome race pride on the other. The commission said more than 150 high schools participated in a similar contest last year.

Senator Goldsborough Appeals on Tax Ruling

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—United States Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough today carried to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals of the Fourth circuit his fight to have deducted from his income tax $5,757 given his mother-in-law to reimburse her for loss on securities recommended by him.

When the senator first attempted to have the deduction made an adverse ruling was made by the commissioner of internal revenue, who held the deduction was not proper, as the senator could not have realized a profit on the transaction had the securities fulfilled his expectations. Senator Goldsborough had told his mother-in-law, Mrs. N. W. Showell, he would make good any loss she might sustain through the securities.

JAMES AGAIN HEADS MONTGOMERY BODY

Civic Federation Passes On Resolutions at Meeting in Bethesda.

ROAD CHANGES FAVORED

Stephen James, of Woodside, was reelected president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation at the annual meeting last night in the Bethesda Elementary School.

Following the declination of Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, who has been vice president for three years, Frederick P. Lee, was elected vice president.

Other officers elected are Walter B. Armstrong, recording secretary; Orville M. Kile, corresponding secretary, and John A. P. B. Farnham, treasurer.

Members elected to the executive committee are John A. Dickinson, Col. Alvin B. Barber, Ralph Lee and Frank B. Severance.

Oliver F. Busby, chairman of the public safety committee, reported that his committee had been in conference with Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, county commissioner, and other county officials regarding the construction of a sidewalk on the east side of Wisconsin avenue. He reported that the project appeared favored by county officials.

A resolution from the Chevy Chase Citizens Association, section 8, asking that the federation investigate a report that the Maryland Public Service Commission has refused to permit the gas companies to lower their rates, was referred to committee.

A resolution was received from the Garrett Park Citizens Association asking the federation to indorse improvement of the road leading from the Rockville Pike to Kensington through Garrett Park. The resolution states that the road is dangerous and insufficient to care for the heavy traffic on it because of its narrow and crooked position and because of a one-way bridge over Rock Creek. It asks that the road be widened and that dangerous curves be eliminated and construction of a two-way bridge over Rock Creek, and extension of the road to secure the more direct entrance to Kensington by intersecting with Lincoln avenue in Kensington near the approach to the proposed overhead crossing over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks.

Wife Allowed Bail On Killing Charge

15-Year-Old Charlottesville Girl Testifies in Father's Death.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 10.—Mrs. Essie C. Smith, accused of having killed her husband, John Alexander Smith, Chesapeake & Ohio fireman, last Friday night, was ordered released late this afternoon on $5,000 bail by Judge A. B. Dabney, of the corporation court.

The bail appeal, the third made by attorneys for the woman, was held privately and the testimony produced has been closely guarded. The principal witness was the daughter of the couple, Clarice Smith, 15 years old, only other person present when the woman is said to have fired a volley of bullets into the body of her husband. The case will probably go to a special grand jury of the corporation court, which will open next Monday.

Quiet of demeanor, Mrs. Smith's appearance accords with the first words she uttered after the tragedy, "I hope and believe I have done the right thing." She is a member of the Presbyterian Church, where for a time she was a teacher in the Sunday school.

No funeral was held for the victim. Following an autopsy, ordered by Commonwealth's Attorney Wood, hurried arrangements were made for the burial.

PASTOR, 82, WEDS CHURCH HELPER, 53

Rev. Levi Gamet Is Sure They Will Achieve Happiness.

NOW THIRD ADVENTURE

Special to The Washington Post.

Kansas City, Nov. 9.—The Rev. Levi Gamet, 82 years old, a retired minister of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, has definite views on marriage.

The reason so many marriages fail, the cause of the congestion of the divorce machinery, is that many enter into marriage without due consideration of the sanctity of the marriage covenant, Mr. Gamet preaches.

Yesterday Mr. Gamet, a dignified figure, with his van dyke beard, walked into the office of Judge Henry Meade, in the Wyandotte County Probate Court. He was accompanied by a woman, 27 years his junior.

"Old Enough to Vote."

"I would like to see about a marriage license," Mr. Gamet, a twinkle in his eye, informed the clerk.

Mr. Downing took the name, the address, Inman, Nebr., and inquired as to his age.

"Well, I'm old enough to vote," Mr. Gamet commented and smiled.

His bride, she informed the clerk, is Mrs. Pearl M. Carr, 401 North Seventh street, Kansas City, Kans. She is 53 years old.

Last April, Mr. Gamet was a delegate to the centennial convention of his church at Independence. Mrs. Carr, a devoted worker in the church, was present also. Their romance had its inception there.

Sure of Happiness.

"Our marriage will be happy," Mr. Gamet said, "because we both look on marriage as a sacred covenant, not to be loosely entered into.

"The big cause of divorce today is the destruction of this view. The sanctity of marriage has been desecrated by the sentiment of trial marriages and such tommyrot. Honesty is the greatest contribution of a successful marriage. Honesty and sterling qualities."

When Mr. Gamet and Mrs. Carr were married at the home of his bride, it was the third ceremony for Mr. Gamet. Mrs. Carr had been married once before.

Mr. Gamet's first wife died in 1902. Ten children were born of the first marriage. His second wife died in 1929.

Race Horse Owner Found Dead in Bed

Lonely, Aged Man Failed to Appear at Benning Track.

Samuel Johnson, 60 years old, who lived in a cabin in Barnes lane southeast, was found dead in bed in the cabin late yesterday afternoon by Patrick McSweeney, an employe of the Brady Stables at Benning race track.

Johnson was said by police to have been the owner of two race horses at the track, and when he failed to come to the stables to water the horses McSweeney found him. Physicians from Casualty Hospital pronounced the man dead, apparently from heart trouble.

Although police say that there was nothing suspicious about the death, Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt ordered the body removed to the District Morgue. Eleventh Precinct police are trying to locate relatives.

Man Arraigned on Rum Count Filed by Woman

Charged with sale and possession as a result of a complaint made by a woman informer almost three months ago, Cliff Johnson was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. He was committed to jail in default of $1,500 bond for appearance at hearing today.

Johnson has been sought since August 12, according to police. He was apprehended on a sale warrant sworn to by Sergt. J. R. Leach, former vice squad head. The sergeant affirmed that Aldys F. Larimer and Margherite Martini witnessed the alleged purchase. The Larimer woman has been instrumental in a number of apprehensions of alleged liquor law violators recently.

Mrs. Rust said, in announcing the award, that work of rebuilding would be started shortly. Four other bidders were Claiborne & Taylor, Richmond, Va., $45,800; Davis, Wick & Rosengarten, Wishington, $55,992; C. H. Tompkins, Washington, $56,000, and E. S. Bankman, Mount Rainier, Md., $92,645.

District Industries Held "Satisfactory"

Bulletin of Department of Labor Gives Report for October.

The majority of District industries were operated during October on a "fairly satisfactory" schedule, with "their usual forces in most instances," the Department of Labor announces in the Industrial Employment Information Bulletin. The text of the report follows:

"The majority of the industrial establishments of the District operated on fairly satisfactory production schedules with their usual forces employed in most instances; however, a surplus of labor prevailed throughout the month, including building tradesmen, sales persons, white and Negro domestic help and unskilled workers. The volume of public utility work under way the past 30 days exceeded that of the previous month, with prospects for a further increase during November.

"The hotels and stores expect to increase their forces during the next few weeks in preparation for the holiday trade. The 1930 street improvement program was nearing completion toward the close of the month. Quite a number of the men that have been employed on this work will be retained throughout the winter on a five-day-week basis, instead of being released as in the past winter periods. Federal and private building projects continued to offer employment to large numbers of skilled and unskilled laborers."

Witness Acquitted Of False Pretense

Jury Acts on Charges Made of Obtaining $500 From Real Estate Man.

Loren H. Wittner, formerly employed in the District Traffic Bureau, was found not guilty by a District Supreme Court jury yesterday before Justice Jesse C. Adkins, on a charge of false pretenses in connection with a building operation.

Wittner, who was discharged from the Traffic Bureau in 1928 "for the good of the service," was alleged to have obtained through false representations $500 for Irwin Owings, a real estate broker. He pleaded not guilty, and through his attorney, Fred P. Myers, fought the charge bitterly.

The District Court of Appeals last week upheld the action of the District Commissioners in dismissing Wittner. The Commissioners' action followed charges he had used office time for his own benefit and had shown women employes his book dealing with free love and companionate marriages.

British Railroad Wage Row Looms

Agreements to Expire at Midnight; Upward of 1,000,000 Affected.

London, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Existing wage agreements with English railroads expire at midnight tomorrow and the unions, representing upward of 1,000,000 workmen, are preparing to submit demands for higher pay.

At the end of the strike of 1926 both sides agreed to a truce during which time neither would move for a change in the wage scale until the truce expired.

Now the railroads seek a reduction on the strength of decreased revenue and the unions are discussing higher minimum wages and guarantee of work for the shop crafts. There is no likelihood, however, that service will be suspended. No specific date for a general conference has been set, but it is probable the discussions will begin next week.

70 Hurt in Hurricane; Loss Passes $1,000,000

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—With communication lines being gradually repaired along the north coast, reports coming in tonight from the region swept by a hurricane Saturday indicated about 70 persons were injured.

Material damage was estimated at well over $1,000,000. The storm's fury was worst in the La Ceiba Zone, where about 56,000 banana trees were destroyed on one plantation alone, that of the Standard Fruit & Steamship Co. Sugar plantations also were greatly damaged, while houses were wrecked and bridges destroyed.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Commander Ralph E. Weyerbacker, head of the Philadelphia Navy Yard aircraft factory, and Lieut. Christian F. Schilt landed at the Navy Yard today, finishing a flight from the Marine base at Managua, Nicaragua.

The fliers left here October 30 in a tri-motored Fokker monoplane to bring back a similar type plane for overhauling. Two Marines from the Managua base accompanied them here.

American Bank In Paris Closes

Oldest Firm of Its Kind in France Expects to Reopen, Is Report.

Paris, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The oldest American banking institution in France, Munroe & Co., established here before the Civil War, temporarily closed its doors today.

The bank, known among French bankers as a branch of a partnership which maintains another branch in New York, has offices in Paris and in Pau and Cannes. A notice on the door at the latter office said the institution was provisionally closing its offices and temporarily suspending payments. The Paris headquarters are directed by two French partners.

It was understood tonight negotiations are under way to have the institution resume business. Inquiring depositors were told the main difficulty existed at the New York end and that while the bank was "all right" here, it was decided best to suspend temporarily.

Philadelphian Leaves $2,000,000 to Charity

Philadelphia, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The will of John J. Tyler, probated today, provides a fund of more than $2,000,000 to establish a charitable foundation in his name. Tyler, who died October 29 at the age of 79, was prominent in Philadelphia business circles.

The purpose of the foundation was designated as being "to render the widest and most substantial charitable benefit to the greatest number of my fellow men." It is not limited to any particular type of beneficiary, except that preference is to be given those in Philadelphia and vicinity. Tyler's widow and other relatives were also beneficiaries in the will.

Two Trampled as 1,500 Flee Blaze in Theater

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Smoke from a pile of rubbish that caught fire in a corridor stampeded 1,500 patrons of a motion picture theater on the upper West Side today. Two men were trampled and slightly hurt.

The blaze was easily extinguished and the audience returned and saw the rest of the show. A carelessly thrown cigarette was believed to have caused the fire.

"The vision which we are realizing in the planning and construction of the new Waldorf—is a New Way of Living. It is interesting to note that in your process of manufacture, utilizing the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of LUCKY STRIKE tobacco, you are actuated by a similar impelling spirit of progress. Like the Waldorf, you are not content with your record of success but go on to significant new accomplishments."

CONSCRIPTION CURB ADOPTED AT GENEVA

League Commission Votes to Limit Period Service of Drafted Men.

ISSUE NOT YET SETTLED

Geneva, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—A plan for limiting the period of service of army conscripts was adopted by the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission today, thus disposing of one of the most difficult articles in the draft convention under consideration. The time limit remains to be fixed by the general conference.

After protracted debate over the merits of establishment of a universal top figure for all contracting parties and a proposal that each state fix its own maximum, the commission voted to establish a universal maximum and a maximum for each nation.

The article in the preparatory draft reads:

In each contracting state having the conscription system, the total period of service which the annual contingent is compelled to serve, whether for land, sea or air forces, shall not exceed the figures accepted by each contracting party, and in no case shall the figures exceed——months." The blank remains to be filled in.

Materials of War.

The provision that these maximums should apply to land, sea and air forces was incorporated at the insistence of the French delegation.

While technically disposing of this article, the commission, however, did not solve the political problems involved. When the general disarmament conference meets the Germans again will demand that a limit be placed on trained reserves, a matter the commission declined to do last Saturday. Also when the question arises of fixing definitely the maximum periods of service, there will be the difficulty of satisfying the defense requirements of each nation.

As the commission advances tomorrow with its readings of the projected treaty, the subject of materials of war comes up for consideration with limitation of land armament as the first step.

Limitation of Expenditures.

Germany at a previous session submitted a plan for limitation by enumeration of specific arms and weapons by categories, while France would establish a limitation by fixing a maximum budgetary expenditure. The American Government at a previous session announced its opposition to the budgetary method, and Hugh S. Gibson, the American delegate, indicated at the beginning of the present session there has been no change in this attitude.

Great Britain is said to look with favor on budgetary limitation, since construction by Germany of the Ersatz Preussen demonstrated what results can be obtained by unlimited expenditure coupled with high technical skill. The Ersatz Preussen is described as a cross between a cruiser and a battleship, fulfilling the purpose of both.

However, as there is a section further along in the draft dealing with general budgetary limitation, the commission may decide to postpone the issue of budgetary control until that later section is reached.

LEASES OF DOHENY VALIDATED BY COURT

ration of one of the greatest potential oil fields in California. The lands involved are valued at $20,000,000 and are located in Kern County.

A second important phase of the judgment was release of a reserve fund of $5,000,000, established by Richfield to meet possible Government demands for reimbursement for oil already taken from the reserve in the event that it won the case.

In its allegations the Government claimed that fraud had existed in the granting of some of the leases to Doheny by Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior and an old friend of the wealthy oil man. The Doheny interests denied this and said that the leases had been made to protect the reserve from a possible draining of its oil supplies by other companies which were drilling on adjoining land.

Judge Norcross ruled that no fraud occurred in these transactions. The decision had been under consideration by him for nearly nine months.

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Attorney T. T. C. Gregory, Richfield Oil Co. counsel, today that said the ruling of Federal Judge Frank H. Norcross, making valid oil land leases acquired in Elk Hills by Richfield, would mean a saving of from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 for the oil company. Mr. Gregory presented the Richfield defense when the Government started suit nine months ago.

The saving, Mr. Gregory said, represents the monies Richfield would have had to pay the Government for the oil already taken and the cost of producing and refining it had the decision been against the firm.

CAPPER BILL URGED TO CHECK LOAN EVIL

support for it in the last session. Mr. Gilbert was one of the Democratic members of Congress who lost his seat in the Hoover landslide two years ago, but he was reelected last week.

That fact, of course, would have only a moral effect on what might be done in the coming session, which is the last of this Congress. But the present Congress comes to an end next March 4 and between early December, when it convenes and March 4, it will have much to do, including enactment of appropriations bills, and if there develops much opposition to the credit union bill it is not very likely that its supporters will have the necessary time and inclination to fight it through, even if they have the votes.

The Capper bill defines credit unions as a "cooperative society organized for the purpose of promoting thrift among its members and creating a source of credit for them for provident purposes." They would be incorporated in the District by seven or more persons "who are actual residents of, or do business or are employed within," the District, and membership would consist of the incorporators and other "persons or organizations" subscribing for at least one share and making the initial payment, except that membership shall be "limited to groups, the members of which are actual residents of or do business or are employed within the District of Columbia, and either have a common bond or occupation or association or reside within a well-defined neighborhood or community."

M'DONALD PLEADS FOR DISARMAMENT

Doubts World Has Learned Much Since War, He Says at Banquet.

ADDRESS HEARD IN U. S.

London, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Questioning that the world had learned much since the Great War, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald pleaded for disarmament in a speech given at the lord mayor's banquet tonight and broadcast to the United States.

"The old Adam is still rampant," he said. "Words are used which make us doubt how much the world has learned by the bitter, tragic experience of 1914 to 1918.

"Great Britain, while perfectly prepared to lead the way, looks behind at the same time as she looks before her and wants to know how the other nations are following her, because she can not allow herself to be isolated in the steps she is taking to secure peace."

Hopes for Franco-Italian Pact.

He said he had "the most hopeful expectations" of the naval negotiations which have been renewed between France and Italy.

"South America has gone through revolution after revolution. The nations there are old friends of ours; it is not our business to inquire into their internal conditions, and we recognize government after government as soon as that government has shown signs it has come to stay for a reasonable time."

Referring to the work of the British imperial conference, Mr. MacDonald described the gigantic task which he and the Dominion premiers had faced. Problems of nationality, treaty making and representation in foreign countries have all been discussed, he said, as well as the question, "How his majesty is to be approached and what sacred feet are to be entitled to cross his most sacred and private threshold."

Banquet Brilliant Affair.

As to the economic deliberation, the prime minister humorously remarked that his chief trouble had been to see that R. B. Bennett, the Canadian premier, "didn't run away with too much of the swag." Presumably he referred to the Canadian premier's fight for imperial preference and reciprocal tariffs.

The lord mayor's banquet itself was a brilliant affair. Sir Phene Neal, the new lord mayor, stood in the library of the Guild Hall to receive the guests of the affair marking the beginning of his first year of office.

The presence of the Dominion premiers among the guests gave unusual interest to the occasion and they were accorded a particularly warm welcome, as the imperial conference is about to close and this was one their last public appearances.

Other guests were members of the cabinet, army and navy officers, diplomats and prominent figures of British public life.

GORDON WRIT CITED FIGHTING HIS ACTION

The Government sets out that one of the grounds urged against the Denison indictment was that the true bill "failed to state the time, place or circumstances dealing with the possession of liquor." All this information, the Government asserts, could have been obtained if he had asked for a bill of particulars, and inference is that in failing to do so places him in an easily assailable position."

Failure of Denison to ask for the bill of particulars, the Government asserts, should have precluded the court's action in holding the indictment insufficient.

Denison was indicted several months ago, almost eleven months after a trunk load of liquor is said to have been found in his office in the House Office Building. He demurred to the indictment, and after considerable delay Justice Gordon sustained the demurrer.

The indictment charged possession in violation of the national prohibition act.

World War Veterans Are Too Old To Be Considered for Army Again

Average Former Private Today at 37 Has Two Years Too Many.

Twelve years ago today Private Bill Jones, of the American Expeditionary Force, then a youngster of 25, clambered out of a trench, hailed the armistice, turned his eyes toward the States and took a solemn vow that if he ever did get home "this man's Army" would never see him again.

Well, former Private Jones may not have thought of it lately, but the truth is that this man's Army doesn't want him—wouldn't even want him if a war broke out tomorrow. Why? For the simple reason that Bill, who represents the average World War veteran, is too old.

Bill now is 37, which is just two years too many for the Army, the age limit for recruiting purposes being 18 to 35. That was the age spread in the first draft—18 to 35. The second draft included men up to 45.

The point of all this—and it must be a startling one for the Bill Jones'—is that the great army of 4,000,000 men which Uncle Sam had built up twelve years ago, and upon which he could have depended for several years thereafter, today has almost reached the stage where the War Department no longer attaches any importance to it when man power, or soldier material, is under consideration.

As has been said, the age of the average of World War veterans now is placed at 37. That would make his age at the time of the Armistice 25. There were, of course, many who were under that. A lad who enlisted, say at the age of 18 on November 11, 1917, would have been 19 on Armistice Day and 31 today.

But even so that does not mean that he is soldier material today. In the last twelve years his teeth may have fallen out, or what he used to call his "dogs" may have gone bad, or he may have drunk too much prohibition gin. In that case he would be unavailable despite his age.

There is yet another factor: Has the veteran retained what he was taught about soldiering? The chances are that he has not; that he would have to be taught many things all over again. This is another reason why the Army's general staff no longer attaches much importance to him.

With respect to officers, no age limits are set for them; at least, none within reason. However, that does not mean that all World War officers who still survive could be called upon again in case of hostilities. They, too, must meet the health test.

Thus, with the great World War army of 4,000,000 shot to pieces by the years, the Army's general staff today can only count on a rock bottom military strength made up of three forces—the regular standing army, the officers reserve corps, and the National Guard. The strength of these is as follows:

Regular Army, 132,000 men and officers. (This includes 6,000 Philippine Scouts.)

Officers' Reserve Corps, 110,000. (Many of these are war-time officers who are approaching the age where they soon will have to be discounted.)

National Guard, 180,000 officers and men.

422,000 Reserve and Active Soldiers Now Make Up Force.

This total of 422,000 active and reserve soldiers is by far the smallest fighting force of any of the major countries with the exception of Germany. That nation is compelled by the Versailles Treaty to hold its standing army down to 100,000 men. Of reserves it may have none.

France has a standing army of more than 500,000 men, and organized reserves of more than 5,000,000. She is one of the ten nations that has conscription, or compulsory military service, the others being Japan, Italy, Belgium, Szechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Poland, Spain, Switzerland and Russia.

In these countries, every fit male upon reaching a certain age, generally 21, must serve for a certain period in the army. The length of such service varies from 42 days in Switzerland to 2 years in Japan. After performing such service, he is usually subject to call for the next 20 years or so.

The question of reducing land armies now is being thrashed out at Geneva by the Preparatory Commission for a General Disarmament Conference, with American delegates taking a prominent part.

But the chances of the conference getting anywhere are said to be about as good as—well—about as good as Bill Jones going into "this man's army" again.

WOMAN FINDS ROAD IS "NO MAN'S LAND"

do what they could. They did—a few minutes later, but an hour after Mrs. Libby started telephoning—two park policemen arrived at the scene and took a report of the accident, after which they towed Carter's machine back on the highway and to the Fourth Precinct Station.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride has ruled that although the District is responsible for maintenance of the highway for a distance of 1,000 yards south of the Virginia end of the Highway Bridge, it has no police jurisdiction.

As the highway is not part of the Federal parks and parkway system, the park police have no authority, although when the new Mount Vernon Memorial Highway is completed, taking in part of the Washington-Virginia highway, they will have jurisdiction over that section.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, said last night that if there had been a question of rendering aid to injured persons the Metropolitan Police Department would have responded to Mrs. Libby's call. He explained, however, that his department could not have made any arrest, and inasmuch as it appeared that Mrs. Libby merely wanted to report the situation to the proper authorities, it was the proper thing for his department to refer her to such proper authorities, which, he pointed out, are "somewhere in Virginia"—either the Alexandria or Arlington County police.

Mrs. Libby, in the meantime, insists that she is going to investigate until she learns who, if any one, is responsible for policing that 1,000 yards of highway.

ARMISTICE DAY.

The nations would do well to search their hearts on Armistice Day. Almost universal unrest prevails, and Europe as a whole presents a melancholy picture. There is less confidence among and between European nations than there was when war hate was still burning. The conviction that intrigues and secret combinations are the safeguard of nations, and that war to make these combinations effective is both proper and necessary, still prevails in Europe. The League of Nations has for its central idea the employment of war as an instrument of international policy. Abandonment of war as an instrument of national policy is the Kellogg treaty plan. Hence there is no reconcilement between the league covenant and the Kellogg pact.

Although the League of Nations was formed ostensibly to create a new spirit in Europe, in reality it was so shaped as to perpetuate the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles. The treaty disarmed Germany, but the covenant merely breathes the pious hope that the former allies will disarm. This hope is in vain. The former allies are maintaining a sham conference, pretending to prepare plans for disarmament, when it is universally known that there is no intention on the part of any of the nations to disarm. The hypocrisy of this proceeding did not need the cynical exposure of the Red delegate, Maxim Litvinoff, nor the caustic reminder of Count von Bernstorff that Germany alone of the great nations is disarmed. The whole world knows these facts, and dismisses the proceedings of Geneva as transparent frauds.

Anxious supporters of peace in the United States are much exercised over the world situation, and seem to think that somehow it is America's fault that the world is upset. Some of them believe that the United States should accept the League of Nations plan of war as an instrument of international policy—under league direction, of course. Others look upon the league's misnamed "world court" as a peace panacea. Others think the United States should make the magnificent gesture of forgiving its debtors, although they make no demand that America's debts should be canceled. Still other pacifists would take Soviet Russia's bloody hand in friendly grip, hoping that an ecstasy of emotional good will would spread over the world and "banish war."

Throughout Europe there is hardly a voice of gratitude raised for what America has already done. It does not occur to Europeans that perhaps the United States is right and Europe wrong in the conception of the best way to maintain peace. The United States holds that the way to quit war is to renounce it and then keep the pledge. Europeans hold that this is visionary, because of the treachery of neighbors. Thus practically every nation in Europe convicts the others of insincerity when they renounce war, and in convicting them it convicts itself. All of them believe in war. Their League of Nations legitimizes war.

If Europe is not ready to renounce war, it can at least renounce hypocrisy. Why should the fraudulent conference on disarmament continue? The comparison of armies stirs up suspicion and rivalry and helps to breed war. Under the surface all kinds of secret war alliances are being formed. The nations could make a step forward toward tranquillity by quitting all pretense of trying to agree to reduce armaments and by honestly publishing their state of preparedness and their military and naval programs. Most of these programs might be found to be justifiable for national defense. If the former allies are bound to keep Germany disarmed, while they remain armed, they should say so, and give the reasons.

It is the incessant intrigue of Europe that antagonizes Americans and prevents a better international feeling. All the pacifism in the United States will not help matters, so long as European powers scheme for advantage in expected wars. The total lack of confidence among European nations makes league and security pacts worthless.

The best that the United States can do is to befriend nations that suffer natural calamities, to avoid foreign political entanglements, to treat all nations alike, to restrain the ambition to be a world peacemaker, and to maintain its strength, so that, when foreign nations become embroiled in war, they will not dare again to drag the United States in.

PROPOSED LOAN TO CHINA.

The arrival in Washington of Paul Linebarger, special envoy of Chiang Kai-shek, President of China, centers attention on the petition of the Nationalist government for a loan of $360,000,000 in silver. A subcommittee of the Senate foreign relations committee has already given attention to the question, and it is quite probable that it will be decided during the coming session of Congress.

Testimony taken by this committee last summer indicates that it may recommend participation by the United States in an international pool for the reconstruction of China. There is no occasion for the United States to assume full responsibility for financing China, and other nations interested in Chinese trade would resent such a movement. An international pool, including Great Britain, France, Japan and possibly other countries, as well as the United States, appears to be the most logical solution.

The Chinese situation appears to be more hopeful than it has been for years. Peace has been reestablished in every province through the cooperation of the Nanking and Mukden governments. Troops have been directed against the Communist hordes, and they will doubtless be dispersed within a few months.

But China is without funds for recuperation. Long periods of civil war have drained the treasury and taxed the people far beyond their capacity to pay. The government has a tremendous deficit. Even with peace prevailing, conditions can not be greatly improved until funds are available for rehabilitation.

China plans to use most of the proposed loan for construction of roads. Communication with the interior provinces is so poor at present that millions starve during winter months because food can not be shipped in to them. Construction of roads would provide employment for thousands who are destitute. China would be opened to commerce. Incidentally, America would find an immediate market for road-building machinery, and, later, for automobiles.

China is one of the great undeveloped reservoirs of trade. Sooner or later that great country must be rehabilitated, but it can be done only with foreign capital. Of course precautions would have to be taken to prevent the loan fund from falling into the hands of the war lords, but that should not be an impossible task. It seems safe to predict that a loan to restore China to the rank of a commercial nation would be one of the most profitable investments the great powers of the Occident could make.

GEN. TASKER H. BLISS.

The fact that today marks the twelfth anniversary of the ending of the World War lends solemn significance to the death of Gen. Tasker H. Bliss. He was one of the handful in whose keeping lay the destinies of the American Army in the days that ended on the 11th of November, twelve years ago. As Chief of Staff and, subsequently, as American military representative on the Supreme War Council, Gen. Bliss played a part second to no other in shaping the policies that led to the allied victory.

Gen. Bliss died early Sunday morning at Walter Reed Hospital, following an illness of six months' duration. He will be buried tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery. Gen. Pershing, Secretary Hurley, former Secretary of War Baker, Col. House and others prominent in military and civilian circles will escort the body of this distinguished soldier to its final resting place.

During the war Gen. Bliss played an outstanding part. His activity and accomplishments subsequent to the war were of a statesmanlike order. In the negotiation of the Treaty of Versailles he gave sage counsel. During the war he had argued that Germany should be disarmed to the limit of such forces as were needed for the maintenance of order. The treaty negotiated and Germany disarmed, Gen. Bliss returned to the United States, and ten years ago he was retired. After his retirement he was an active worker for peace, devoting his attention to a study of the causes of international friction, and showing particular interest in all movements which he believed would lessen the danger of future wars.

Soldier and diplomat, Gen. Bliss is honored by the Nation in whose service he spent his life. As the bugles sound forth the soldier's farewell over the open grave at Arlington tomorrow, Washington will bow its head in memory of a patriot.

AUSTRIA'S TURMOIL.

Austria's election on Sunday proved unsatisfactory to all groups. The strength of the different factions remained much as before, and the government is still faced with either deadlock or temporary leadership by an unnatural coalition. The threat of a dictatorship has by no means disappeared.

The most important outcome of the voting was the rebuke administered to the Heimwehr, the military organization of the Fascists. This faction, under leadership of Prince von Starhemberg, previously contended that it had no desire for political power, since it is opposed to parliamentary government and all other forms of democracy. But when the Hitlerites of Germany made such radical gains in the recent election the Heimwehr decided that it was an auspicious moment to win control of the government at the polls.

The electorate of Austria did not follow the German precedent. The Fascists gained only eight seats in Parliament, while their opponents, the Socialists, became the strongest party in Austria. The result is no doubt a reaction against the high-handed methods of the present administration, which is virtually dominated by the Fascist members of the cabinet. Shortly before the election these cabinet members forced a confiscation of the arms and ammunitions in possession of the Socialist Schutsbund, but allowed the Heimwehr to retain possession of its arms without questioning.

No one faction will be able to control the government, but it is difficult to tell what complexion the next coalition will take. Apparently the Christian Socialists, who now constitute the second strongest party, will negotiate with the Heimwehr and the bloc in control of former Chancellor Schober in an effort to frustrate the Socialists. Austria is torn between the radicalism of the Socialists on one hand and the Fascists' threats of overthrowing the government on the other. There seems to be nothing on the political horizon but turmoil.

CAMPAIGN EXPENSE LAW.

Senator Nye, chairman of the campaign expenditures investigating committee, says that so far as he is concerned no attempt will be made to prevent the seating of any of the newly elected senators. In the same breath, however, he adds that the election proved conclusively that new legislation to control campaign expenditures is needed and that he may introduce such legislation during the next session.

As matters stand campaign expenditures are regulated under the corrupt practices act, which requires candidates or their representatives to keep careful account of the receipt of contributions and of their disbursements, limiting payments to specified amounts but excluding payments for traveling expenses, telephone, postage and the like. As the law stands, there is no satisfactory definition of what constitute unwarranted expenditures. There is nothing to guide a searcher for corruption like Senator Nye except his personal opinion that a certain candidate is spending too much money, and there is nothing to guide a candidate in his expenditures except his conscience. There should be more specific legislation on this subject.

But can Senator Nye write a satisfactory new bill? Can he lay down a yardstick against which the improper and the proper expenditures can be measured? Campaign expenses that are fully justified in Illinois, would in all probability not be justified in Delaware. Even on a per capita basis, in view of the diversity in character of the States, it would probably be impossible to lay down a yardstick for the measurement of what is proper in campaign expenditures. It is, of course, not a proper function of Congress to attempt to regulate primary expenditures. Primaries are party matters, pure and simple.

SARAH HALE

From the Jerseyman.

Thanksgiving season is near and this gives rise to the question as to the origin of this festival day. The idea of a Thanksgiving Day goes back to antiquity. It was first observed in America by the Puritans, and was established as a national holiday through the efforts of a New England woman.

At this particular season of the year it is appropriate to tell about the woman who, after twenty years of patient effort, succeeded in having an annual thanksgiving celebration in this country observed on the same day by all of the people.

The name of this woman was Mrs. Sarah Josephine Hale. Few women, either before or since, have accomplished more big things for the betterment of men and women. How many people of the present generation have ever heard of this gifted woman? She was born at Newport, N. H., October 24, 1788, and died in Philadelphia, April 30, 1879. She was not a college woman, but was taught by her mother. In 1813, at the age of 25, she married a lawyer named David Hale, who was a brother of Salma Hale, the famous historian and at one time a member of Congress from New Hampshire. Nine years later she was left a widow with five children. She was a genuine old-fashioned American woman, and did not clamor for governmental or individual aid. She was quite content to go to work. In 1828 she became editor of the Ladies Magazine, which had recently been started in Boston. She successfully edited this publication until 1837, when it was merged with Godey's Ladies Book, published at Philadelphia. She continued with the latter publication until 1877.

Editing a magazine is usually considered a pretty big job in itself. Mrs. Hale, however, seemed to find time for many other things. She organized the Seaman's Aid Society in Boston, which is the parent of similar organizations now existing in most ports. The completion of the Bunker Hill Monument was also partly due to the efforts of this little woman. She persuaded the women of New England to raise $50,000 for that purpose.

Throughout her editorial work Mrs. Hale urged the practical advancement of women, advocating their employment as teachers and the establishment of seminaries for their higher education.

It was in the early forties that Mrs. Hale began her campaign for making Thanksgiving a national holiday and its celebration on the same day all over the country. It was then the custom for different localities to observe the occasion on whatever day happened to strike their fancy.

For twenty years Mrs. Hale wrote editorials in her magazine, and personal letters to governors and Presidents, in behalf of a national Thanksgiving Day. Her efforts and patience were rewarded in 1864, when President Lincoln saw the wisdom of her suggestion and decided to adopt her plan. From that day to this Thanksgiving has been celebrated by the whole Nation on the fourth Thursday of November.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

RE-BOUND.

He was clever. He was wise,
He was very, very shrewd,
But man's gravest danger lies
In his sympathetic mood.
And a woman's pretty face,
And a woman's pretty speech
Can drive wisdom from the place
And put shrewdness out of reach.

Thus they sat before the fire
Talking common sorrows o'er;
Black the widow's trim attire,
Black the armband which he wore.
Soft she said: "A year ago
We had homes where love was known,
Now an empty house I know,
And you're living here alone."

There is little more to tell,
Any pretty woman can Penetrate the outer shell
Of a very lonely man.
Always comes the moment when Irresistible is charm;
Now she's wearing pink again
And the band is off his arm.

Can Lost Men Trust a Guide Who Won't Tell Where He Is Going?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a man asks you for a job, he must be prepared to answer questions. You cannot, with propriety, inquire concerning his domestic affairs, his religious beliefs or any other department of his private affairs; but it is your privilege and duty to uncover every detail of his equipment that will have a direct bearing on his ability to serve you.

If you own an orchard, and he asks for a job as watchman, it is your privilege to inquire whether he would shoot or run if apple thieves should appear.

The man who offers himself as a candidate for public office is merely asking for a job. His employers, if he is chosen, will be the people, and the people will pay his salary.

Obviously, then, it is the right and duty of the people to make inquiry concerning his qualifications and to ask any questions that have direct bearing on his ability to serve them.

If the duties of the office include the care and protection of horses, it is the duty and privilege of the people to ask the job hunter whether he abominates or sympathizes with horse thieves.

And when the duties of the office require the enforcement of a law that is defended by some citizens and denounced by others, it is the right of the people to ask the job hunter with which group he is in sympathy.

What, then, of the job hunter who refuses to answer or gives an answer that is evasive and misleading?

He conceals the truth because he hopes by so doing to win the support of those whom the truth would displease.

To win the job he sacrifices his pride, his dignity and his honor.

If a man will sacrifice so much to win a job, what will he not sacrifice to hold it?

Here is a matter of far greater importance than the current method of dealing with the liquor problem.

Will you trust a man who gives evasive answers when you ask how he will conduct your business? If such an employe is thrust upon you, will you respect him or feel secure?

The security of any civilization is based upon its respect for authority. If men who compose the Government are not worthy of respect, the laws they make will not be respected. And where laws are not respected, civilization surrenders to outlaws.

Only men of unflinching courage and unswerving honor can save America from decades of shame and corruption. And men of courage and honor do not conceal the faith that is in them.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

A Stalemated Congress.
Atlanta Constitution.

It appears on the face of the unofficial returns that the Democrats have reduced the Republicans to a stalemate in the new Congress, provided intervening casualties, such as deaths and resignations, do not throw the balance definitely one way or the other by the time the new body assembles for action.

Unless the Republicans in the short session commencing next month can rush to enactment some spectacular relief measures that will pacify the farmers, employ surplus labor, speed industry and revive general business, they seem doomed in 1932 to be routed horse, foot and dragoons.

Meanwhile, the powerful Democratic minority in both Senate and House of the new Congress will need to watch their steps closely, propose rational measures, and keep the Republicans on the defensive, the voters realizing all the time that they must complete the work of this year by giving the Democrats full power by Congress and President to do some actual relief and reform work after 1932.

What Will Brazil Think?
Louisville Courier-Journal.

The State Department questions the stability of Brazil following the revolution. Now what will Brazil think of the stability of the Hoover administration following the revolution at the polls?

Votes of Protest.
Topeka Capital.

Observing the keen resentment of millions of voters when times are bad and an opportunity is offered to render a verdict of protest the question naturally arises as to what is expected, or if impossibilities are expected, from government. And if political magic is believed in, then the question comes whether the people themselves who strike vindictively at the party in power, no matter what party it may be, are to be blamed as forming their own notions of what government is able to do for them, or, on the other hand, obtain these notions from party spokesmen themselves, who habitually hold out misleading hopes. Is it the parties or the voters who create hopes that government can not, or at least, does not, fulfill?

Jeffersonian Doctrine.
Brooklyn Citizen.

The Brookharts, the Norrises, the Nyes, &c., favor putting the Government into business. Jeffersonian Democracy holds that that country governs best which governs least.

Control of the Democratic party, fortunately, is in the hands of leaders who are conservatives, but not reactionaries. None of them favors Government in business. Should the Democratic party make the mistake of allying itself with the "insurgent" Republicans in attacks on "big business," it will meet with certain defeat in 1932.

"Power Trust" in Danger.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The results of Tuesday's election showed a series of devastating reverses for the power trust on a widely scattered front.

It is evident that the power trust issue is rapidly assuming commanding proportions, and if the trend indicated Tuesday is followed in future elections, the huge electrical industry, like the railroads, will be compelled to submit to proper regulation and control.

By introducing the element of suspense in election returns, Kentucky obtains an unrivaled position in political news for one day.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Paramount Issue of 1932—Republicans Will Be Forced to Take Dry Side.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Northern Democrats have scored such a signal victory by frankly advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment, that its inclusion in the forthcoming national platform is a foregone conclusion. The Southern dry contingent, being in the hopeless minority in the national Democratic convention, will have to adjust itself as best it may to this distasteful dictation of Northern copartisans or bolt to the Republican candidate, as it did in 1928.

The wet side of the issue being preempted by Democratic priority, the Republicans will be forced to join the issue by compulsion of political necessity. Unless it does this a third dry party will emerge which will make Republican success impossible. This is clearly foreshadowed by the tactics of the ultraprohibitionists in New York and Illinois in the recent campaign.

Nor will the Republicans be able to dodge or sidestep the issue without inviting sure disaster. Republican prestige has already been greatly damaged by reason of failure to frankly face the wet issue. They can not hope to compete with the Democratic adepts at the game of wetness. The miserable debacle of the Republican campaign in New York and Illinois is due to the fact that the candidates seemed willing to run with the dry hare and hold with the wet hound. Both Mr. Tuttle and Mrs. McCormick would have made a far better showing had they stood up right and down straight on a dry platform. The only creditable Republican victories in the East were won by Hastings, of Delaware, and Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, who stood unswervingly by the eighteenth amendment.

The time has come for a clear-cut division, with the dry sheep on the right and the wet goats on the left. There is no neutral ground.

KELLY MILLER.

National Constitutional Convention to Amend the Eighteenth Amendment Might Wreck the Whole Constitution.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Impatient wets threaten that, in case Congress does not act, the legislatures of two-thirds of the States, as provided in the Constitution, are to call a convention with a view to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. As The Post has pointed out, conditions are such that this threat will cause little loss of sleep to the embattled drys.

For my part, while I would not regret the repeal of the prohibition amendment, I do not like the idea of having the subject handled by a promiscuous national convention. It would have been better if the convention mode of proposing amendments had not been incorporated in the Constitution.

The possibility of stirring unnecessary civic bitterness and the danger of demagogic upheavals in a national convention for the amendment of the Constitution would be very great.

Something like 2,000 constitutional amendments have been offered in Congress since the Constitution was adopted, and not one has been proposed for ratification by a convention. It may at least be said that the congressional mode of proposing amendments has worked tolerably well, and I think it would be unfortunate if the precedent were broken at this time. A national constitutional convention would not confine itself to the eighteenth amendment, but would open up the whole Constitution to amendment. Who can tell what wreckage would result? FEDERALIST.

Valued Reader Says Licker Planks in 1932 Will Be Twins.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The proposal of a letter-writing Democrat that in the 1932 platform of the Democratic party there should be a plank promising the repeal of the eighteenth amendment will meet the approval of hard-boiled Democratic wets. Its very boldness makes it sound good to devoted admirers of Jackson.

But I don't think the politicians who write the Democratic plank relating to prohibition will have backbone enough to come out flat-footed for overflowing wetness, no matter how much they may have been inspired by the results of the late election.

The voters of the country have been growing shy and shifty for quite a number of years, and on no question are they more uncertain than on that of how to lay the ghost of good old John Barleycorn or whether he should be resurrected.

In fact, so far as the dry-wet issue is concerned, Republicans will not be less at a loss than Democrats when it comes to the choice of a safe method of monkeying with the proletariat in 1932.

If you ask me, I would say that not many months from now the licker planks of Democracy and the G. O. P. will be twins—well-behaved, neatly trimmed, modified-prohibition twins. But, Lord help us, I wouldn't take much pride in the job if I had to write those planks. F. P. HICKS.

Let Employers Assure Workers That Jobs Are Safe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What we need today, more than anything else, is confidence—confidence in our job, in industry, and confidence that our country always lands on its feet from such a fall as we have had.

I believe that business can help to restore this confidence and get the worker to purchase the goods he really needs, by adopting a policy such as this:

Each pay envelope to contain a card, giving the employe the assurance that he need not be afraid of a layoff; that in case of a slack period, all working hours will be equally apportioned to each and every worker, from manager down, and to assure the worker that better times are just around the corner, and that he can help himself and others by purchasing what he needs now.

NEW BRAZIL LEADER OUTLINES PROBLEMS

Vargas Regime's Attention Turned to Economic Stabilization.

REVOLT HELD JUSTIFIED

Rebels to Get Planes Ordered to Fight Them

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10 (A.P.). Three seaplanes, built in Baltimore for the United States Navy, were on their way to Brazil tonight on the steamer Paranhyba, which cleared at dusk for Fernambuco. The planes, valued at $30,000 each, are equipped with machine guns.

At the outbreak of the revolution in the South American republic last month, the planes were purchased to be used against the rebel forces. Shipment was halted following the success of the revolutionists in overthrowing the government. The new government has now been established, and the planes ordered by the forces against whom they were to have been originally used.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The military government of Brazil, with political issues settled by the recent revolution, is turning its attention now to the economic stabilization of the nation, Getulio Vargas, provisional president, today told the Associated Press in an interview.

"The immediate motives of the revolution," he said, "were political, but the reconstruction work which we already have set afoot will have sound and far-reaching social and economic consequences."

He gave this interview at the Catette Palace, residence of the president, while he sat at ease, seriously considering problems which face the new government.

Revolt Held Justified.

"The unequivocal support given the revolution by the least-favored classes of our people," he said, "is ample proof of the discontent generated by the political organization which has been overthrown.

"That regime had given monopolistic privileges to certain social classes to the detriment of the interests of the nation as a whole. It was largely because of this that the revolution received the support of those whose rights had been ignored.

"The government which has been overthrow abused the electoral system; it made the judiciary an instrument for the satisfaction of political passions so that the people were without weapons against violence and sought recourse to armed resistance to invasion of their rights."

To the economic problems which confront him, Gen. Vargas also has given a ter thought.

Nationalistic in Character.

"This revolution," he said, "was nationalistic in character. It was not directed against foreigners in Brazil, but it had as one of its prime objectives the stimulation of national industry and the development of national resources.

"Up to now Brazil's economic policies have been occupied almost exclusively with the production of coffee. In years which brought poor coffee crops or low coffee prices the nation had no other resource to which it could look for support.

"Our country must cast about for such resources and develop those which are at hand. In the interests of our commercial future we must depand no longer upon coffee to the exclusion of everything else. We must be a self-contained, self-sufficient, efficient nation."

DEMOCRATS' OFFER PUZZLES POLITICS

full knowledge that those are questions a year away.

To put it bluntly, the statement applies to the short session of Congress convening next month, a session in which there will be no appreciable change in the complexions of the two parties.

Specifically, then, what does the statement promise?

Impliedly, but most important, it promises that the Democrats will not force an extra session after the adjournment of the short session.

Extra Session Possibility.

This the Democrats could do very easily simply by filibustering or holding up the appropriation bills. Then in the extra session, it being a part of the new Congress, they would seat their additional members of the Senate and House, elected last Tuesday, and be in a position to dictate the legislative course of the Government.

This was done by the Republicans in 1918, the Democrats say for purely political motives and the Republicans say in order to place the Government in responsible hands.

Regardless of the motives it was done.

It is the weapon the Democrats now have in their command and they have promised—at least, the seven outstanding men of the party have—not to use it.

Position of President.

There can be one or two other lesser tests of this promised cooperation.

At the coming short session the President may or may not have some proposals designed to relieve the economic situation. In that event, the Democratic statement promises cooperation with him. In this respect, of course, cooperation becomes an abstract term. A difference of opinion could arise as to the merits of the President's proposals.

It is doubtful, however, that the Democrats in their meanest mood, or in a most decided difference of opinion, would go so far as to turn him down on any proposals he might make. Their tendency would be to try and outdo him.

Wagner Jobless Bills.

Aside from this test in which the initiative would have to be taken by the President, it is not unlikely that at some time during the session the Democrats may resurrect the Wagner bills dealing with unemployment. They were emasculated by the administration forces at the last session. The Democrats still think they offer a sound means of relief.

Very probably, they may dig them up, talk about them a lot and possibly pass them. The President will have only to veto them and that will be the end of that.

This seems to be the full purport of the cooperation statement. In fact, there is authoritative assurance that it is.

A STATEMENT BY ROGER BUTTS

Washington, D.C.,
November 10, 1930.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The account published in a Hearst morning newspaper of Washington, D.C., purporting to be my story as a prohibition agent while assigned to the Senate Office Building, was never seen by me prior to its publication.

It is inaccurate, misleading, and unauthorized.

The truthful and correct story of what I actually did as an agent assigned to the Senate Office Building has been furnished by me to the Press Publishing Company for exclusive use in the Washington Post and other leading newspapers.

The Hearst reporter who sought to interview me had full notice of this fact.

I hereby repudiate the story appearing in the Hearst press and protest against its further publication.

to conceal the truth regarding his activities after he leaves the service.

As a matter of fact, I feel it will be a good thing for my story to be made public. A lot of mystery has been thrown around my experiences as the "Senate spy" when the truth is I found no difference in my work there as compared with operating against bootleggers in other parts of Washington and in other cities.

I want to state right here what impressed me most from the time I went up to the Senate until I left Capitol Hill. Everybody in Washington had heard reports that "The Man in the Green Hat" was being protected in his operations in the Senate and House Office Buildings by the authorities in charge. I did find that Cassiday was doing an extensive business on the Senate side.

Tribute to Curtis and Thayer.

But I would like to pay a little tribute to Vice President Curtis, Col. Edwin P. Thayer, the Secretary of the Senate, and the heads of the Prohibition Bureau for their attitude throughout the investigation. There is no question in my mind but that they were ready to go the limit to put a stop to the bootlegging up there. They had me stationed in the Senate stationery room in an effort to clean up a bad situation, and without their cooperation I could not have performed my mission.

I was born and raised in Washington and was studying accountancy when I went to work as a special agent for the Prohibition Bureau last fall. At that time I was 20 years old. I had worked as a transit clerk for the Commercial National Bank and for the Security Savings & Trust Co. at Washington. Once I remember carrying $150,000 in cash from the United States Treasury to one of the banks at the Capital.

The Prohibition Service promised better pay and more exciting work, and I was glad to get the opening last fall. I went to work under contract at $180 a month. That was the salary I received from the Prohibition Bureau during the entire period of my work at the Senate.

Reports for Service.

I reported at Washington on November 8, 1929, to the agent in charge of all special agents in the district (including Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia).

The office had the Senate assignment in mind at that time, for apparently I was being tried out for the job right from the start. The first detail I was given was to go to the House Office Building and see if I could find out anything about "The Man in the Green Hat."

I went over to the House Office Building, where the 435 members of the lower branch of Congress have their offices. It was not expected I would be able to bring "The Man in the Green Hat" back with me, but the idea was to see if he was doing any business on the House side.

It had been reported Cassiday had not been operating in that building since 1925, when he had been arrested delivering six quarts of liquor in a brief case in a representative's office. After that the police stationed at the doors had been instructed not to let him inside the building.

First Stayed Outdoors.

I did not go inside the building myself during that first week of my experience as a prohibition agent. I just hung around on the outside to see if I could find his car parked near the Capitol. I had no contacts at that time and was unable to find out anything regarding bootlegging in the lower House.

Then I was put on two or three small bootlegging investigations around Washington and had finished that work when I was called in on December 14 to be assigned to the big job at the Senate Office Building.

The agent in charge explained to me the request for an agent at the Capitol had come from the Vice President. All the necessary arrangements to get me into the stationery room had been made with his sanction and approval, I was told. Naturally, it gave me quite a thrill to feel I was going to work for the Vice President of the United States and I kept my ears open to learn just what was expected of me.

Cassiday Described to Him.

I was furnished with Cassiday's residence address, where $5,000 worth of liquor had been seized when "The Man in the Green Hat" had last been arrested at the Senate Office Building on October 30, 1929. The prohibition Bureau also furnished me with a detailed description of his appearance, his telephone number, the make of the automobile he used in his deliveries on Capitol Hill and his automobile license number.

It was explained to me the Prohibition Bureau already had a tip from a dry Senator that Cassiday was using one of the offices in the Senate Office Building as a headquarters for bootlegging. It was reported he was going to this office in the morning and using the telephone to get orders from various offices on Capitol Hill where he delivered in the afternoon. This seemed reasonable to the bureau since all telephones in the House and Senate Office Buildings and the Capitol itself are on the same exchange. If Cassiday was using an inside phone it was bound to eliminate many of the usual risks of bootlegging and to simplify his operations in the Senate.

"Planted" in Stationery Room.

My instructions were to report to Col. Edwin P. Thayer, Secretary of the Senate, who would "plant" me in the Senate stationery room in accordance with the arrangements made by Vice President Curtis.

I was told to represent myself as an employe of the Senate on the temporary roll, and to establish the confidence of the other employes there in my assumed status before attempting to catch "The Man in the Green Hat."

After finding out what he was doing and reporting back to the bureau, I was instructed to trap him into a sale so that two other agents assigned to work outside the Senate Office Building could arrest him in the act of making a delivery of liquor.

Early on the morning of December 16, I went up to Capitol Hill from the Prohibition Bureau to begin work in the Senate Office Building.

Tomorrow—Butts will tell how he was placed in the Senate stationery room, masquerading as an employe, and relate his first contacts with senators, their secretaries and the bootleg traffic in the Senate Office Building.

Under-Cover Man Held for Larceny

Virginian Declared to Have Cashed Checks and Taken Money.

Philip C. Patterson, 28 years old, said to live in Richmond, was yesterday charged with larceny after trust by members of the police bad check squad. Police say the man is an under-cover man employed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Patterson was arrested Saturday and held for investigation after police were told by John Carlson, of C street near Third street northwest, that Patterson offered to cash checks for $64 and $25, driving from the downtown section of the city to the Postoffice near Union Station in a taxicab to get the checks cashed. He was said to have entered the Postoffice and left by a side door without returning with the money or checks.

He was apprehended by police after he cashed the checks at a downtown hotel, and arrested by Detective Eugene Davis to whom he is said to have admitted the theft of the money.

At the Age Women Dread

"Three years ago I was in bed three months with a nervous breakdown. After that I had to lie down often. I have four children, the youngest 21, and I board two little schoolgirls. I try to keep my home as a mother should but I am at the age so many women dread. Since taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel 100% stronger. I am not so nervous and my appetite is better."—Mrs. Della Hutsell, 623 East 1st Street, Casper, Wyoming.

SOCIAL DEMOCRATS IN AUSTRIA HOLD ON Christian Socialists Lose Place of Leading Party, Dropping 7 Seats.

FASCISTS PICK UP 8

Vienna, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The Austrian parliamentary elections have resulted in the two oldest and strongest parties virtually changing positions, and with the Fascist Heimwehr, viewed as a threat after the recent success of the Brown Shirts in Germany, gaining only eight seats out of the 165 in the Nationalrat.

For ten years the Christian Socialists ruled the country, but in the balloting yesterday they slipped from 73 seats in the old house to 66 in the new.

At the same time the Social Democratic party, which is the strongest in the city of Vienna, and against which the thirteen other competing parties leveled their guns, held its status and even gained one mandate, climbing from 71 seats in the former Nationalrat to 72 in the new, and thereby becoming the strongest single party.

Dr. Schober Holds Balance.

The fourth principal factor was the rise of Dr. Johann Schober, who was forced to resign as chancellor this summer. He developed a national economic bloc and goes into the new Parliament with nineteen seats.

Thus Schober holds the balance of power and it is expected that the Christian Socialists, still attempting to wield their old strength, will attempt an alliance with Schober and hence form a government. In that case the present chancellor, Dr. Karl Vaugoin, probably would resign, for he brought about Schober's downfall in the summer.

Fascist Faction Gets Eight.

The Fascist Heimwehr, a militant group headed by Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg and advocating a dictatorship, ran slowly and probably would have gained no parliamentary representation had it not been for Austria's proportional representation law. First returns indicated no Fascist success, but the counting in their stronghold of Styria gave them enough plurality over the other parties to take eight mandates.

As political experts see it, Dr. Schober really was the victor. The Christian Social party "will have to eat humble pie," as one commentator put it, in its negotiations with the former chancellor, and it is predicted that he will be asked to accept the presidency of the country.

Thus Chancellor Vaugoin, who was described last summer as going out of his way to confront Schober, will have to be sacrificed if the Christian Socials are to govern with the aid of the former chancellor.

DO-X IS AT CALSHOT AFTER EASY FLIGHT

Flying Boat Crosses 400 Miles of North Sea to England.

NEXT HOP ON THURSDAY

Calshot, England, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The "flying hotel DO-X" hoisted itself by its own bootstraps off the Zuider Zee today for a running jump across nearly 400 miles of North Sea and English Channel and set itself down here smoothly at the end of the second stretch of its transatlantic flight to New York.

Fifteen men in her crew, 21 passengers, a black cat and Hans, the canary, shared the first sea-going trip this 50-ton giant has made since she flew to Amsterdam from Altenrhein, Switzerland, where she was hatched.

It was an epochal trip from the time when the big ship flirted the last of Holland's sea from its tail only to drop back on the water for a minute, while some minor engine repairs were made. Repairs made, the ship took off again for Calshot.

Flying across the open water, the scenery at first inspiring, quickly became monotonous. There were miles of English Channel to starboard and only a hazy outline of continental coast to port. The passengers took to pacing the decks as though on an ordinary steamer.

Bar Functions Early.

Up forward from where the correspondent sat, within a birdseed's throw from the cage of Hans, the canary, the American bar began to function early. The feature of life on the upper decks seemed to be a noise like a boiler factory, and the interior of the tremendous wings looked like the nightmare of a skyscraper steel worker.

All in all this was an international venture. Among the passengers, three of whom were women, were eight Germans, six Hollanders, three Americans, two Italians, one English woman and one Jugoslav. In the crew were Germans, Swiss and Americans, and the DO-X itself, built by Germans in Switzerland, burned American gasoline in American motors.

The black cat belonged to Lady Grace Drummond-Hay. She tied it to a porthole to prevent hostilities with the canary and walked the deck with the rest of the ship's company.

At the dual controls were Clarence ("Dutch") Schildhauer, an American, a destroyer officer in the war, and Norst Merz, who piloted German seaplanes during the war.

Floridian Is Engineer.

In the midst of the deafening racket from the 12 engines was Harvey Brewton, from Florida. His aid, Joe Gody, is from Mount Vernon, N. Y. Dr. Claude Dornier chuckled at the enthusiasm the spacious quarters evoked. "It's all right for a starter," he said.

At Calshot a crowd was led by officials of the air ministry and the German Embassy, Dr. Dornier, shook hands with all. The DO-X will be visited tomorrow by many British notables and possibly the Prince of Wales. It probably will leave Thursday for Bordeaux in continuation of the cruise which has New York as its ultimate objective.

Salesmen Testify In Packers' Case

Price Differences Charged by Companies Explained by Former Employes.

Former salesmen of Swift & Co. and Armour & Co., testifying yesterday as Government witnesses in the hearing before Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, on the petition of the two packing firms for modification of the packers' consent decree, admitted that they received price lists of products from their employers and that in some instances rock bottom figures were cited while on some products the price was the same as that charged by competitors.

It also was brought out that it is a general practice of shippers to solicit business from railroads over which they route their products, and that employes of the two petitioners had indulged in the practice.

Witnesses testifying yesterday were Frank Redman, of San Angelo, Tex.; Clyde T. Hayes, Elbert B. Bloodworth, W. L. Young and Howard A. Pearson, all of Lubbock, Tex., and all former salesmen, and Thomas G. Brown, a Dallas, Tex., meat packer.

TURKEY IS FACING ANOTHER REFORM

Kemal Proposes Two Party System, Freedom of Speech and Press.

NAMES OWN OPPOSITION

Angora, Turkey, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—"Brrrrr-ting-a-ling," goes the Kemalist alarm clock, and Turkey tumbles out of bed to breakfast on another reform.

The reform this time is the westernization of Turkish politics, a jump from one-man, one-party dictatorship, to a two-party system and freedom of speech and of press. It is a pretty big dish to swallow early in the morning, but careful Mustapha Kemal, president of the republic, is on hand with Fletcherizing instructions.

By creating his own opposition instead of allowing it to be created against him, the Ghazi took care that the nation should not choke over its first meal of political liberty. He was cautious, too, in the choice of an opposition leader, the accomplished but not too strong Fethi Bey, whose five years in Paris as Turkish Ambassador gave him a good idea of plural-party politics.

Despite such precautions, the Turkish nation is not breakfasting in perfect good form. Hot-headed Smyrna took up arms against opponents of Fethi Bey when he made his first appearance there, proving to an alarmed Angora that here were people too starving for liberty to munch upon a morsel of it daintily.

In Adana and other parts of Anatolia, pinched peasants interpreted Fethi Bey's promise that taxes would be lowered, as a promise that they would be abolished, and refused to pay when Angora's tax collectors appeared.

Istanbul's university students campaigned wildly for Fethi Bey's Liberal party in the municipal elections, at the same time loudly publishing their opinion that the opposition party wasn't worth two cents but should be campaigned for merely to hit back at the party of Ismet Pasha for its dictatorial sway of the past seven years.

More serious examples of bad table manners came from isolated sections of Asia Minor. In Menemen the population took its fezzes out of their hiding places. Liberty to them meant liberty to wear what headgear they pleased. At Balikesser, citizens were caught sweeping the dust of four years from the tekkes, the haunts of the dervishes whose fanatical monastic orders were abolished by Kemal. At Akhissar, on one lonely pole, the green flag of the sultan-caliphs was hoisted by unseen hands.

Kemal's two-party experiment began to look dangerous. Immediately Fethi Bey published a declaration that his party had the same secular and republican heart as the party of Kemal and Ismet Pasha. Moslem fanatics, priests, dervishes, and shieks striving to regain their lost power, were warned not to hold on to Fethi's coat-tails.

The opposition leader also squelched the ultraradicals by publishing a program essentially identical to that of Ismet Pasha, upholding his railroad policy and his refusal to pay the Ottoman debt. Fethi's promise to reduce taxes lost its thrill when Ismet told parliament that that was exactly what he was going to see to himself within the coming year.

In numbers as well as in program, the new opposition party lost its first fine careless rapture. Instead of the 70 seats which, prior to the Smyrna riot, it was rumored would be allotted to the Liberals, only 12 deputies, including Fethi Bey, actually formed the left of the Angora parliament.

However, the formation of an opposition has had one great result: It has proved to the People's party that its seven years of dictatorship had fooled it into believing that it was absolutely strong. Ismet Pasha remains premier, but the nation's reaction to the lifting of his party's dictatorship has shown him that he must tune his policies to the public's wants, and that the Turkish people will no longer nurse those wants in silence.

Taxes must come down. Government corruption must be fought. The son of the baker and butcher must have the same chance to procure scholarships in government schools as the sons of deputies. Ismet's new minister of education must see to that. Turkey's law courts must be made to function more speedily and more equitably. Ismet's new minister of justice had better see to that.

If progress is made in these realms during the next year, then it will be proved that the present commotion is not an infantile colic, but real indigestion of Turkey's political adolescence, giving promise that Kemal's young republic is coming of age.

POLICEMAN TRIED FOR DOG CRUELTY

Charged With Beating to Death Animal That Tore Trousers.

POUND KEEPER INVOLVED

Special to The Washington Post.

Hammonton, Pa., Nov. 9.—Trousers with the seat torn can not become exhibit A in the court of Justice of the Peace James E. Meyers, not even when the trousers belonged to a patrolman and he was in them when a dog began chewing on them.

The patrolman, George Patton, wanted to prove that the dog had tried to resist an officer and had ruined his uniform in so doing. But Patton's pants were thrown out, or rather, barred as evidence, when Squire Meyers considered the case of the State against Patton and James Pagano, official dog catcher for Hammonton.

On Trial for Cruelty.

Squire Meyers, in throwing out the pants, explained that the dog was not on trial, but Patton and Pagano were on trial to answer charges of extreme cruelty to animals. The dog was not present to testify, having met his doom shortly after he developed an appetite for the kind of wool used in patrolmen's pants.

John Picarra, of Tuckerton, but formerly of Hammonton, owner of the dog, and the Atlantic County representative of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, charged the two men clubbed to death Picarra's dog in an apartment in the Newberry Building, on Bellevue avenue.

The dog, according to testimony offered at the hearing, had torn a dress worn by Miss Josephine Carpo as she was walking along the street. Miss Carpo called Patrolman Patton. Patton, it is said, interceded and the dog resented the interference of the law.

Snapped at Janitor.

The animal tackled Patton from the rear and a portion of his pants parted company. Next the animal appeared at the town hall. Charles Emory, janitor of the town hall, received the guest and the guest snapped at him, so Charlie told the squire.

Patton, the testimony revealed, finally succeeded in getting the dog into a vacant room at the Newberry Building and went for reinforcements in the person of Pagona.

Pagona admitted he struck the dog once with a club to knock it unconscious, and then tossed a gas bomb into the room. The gas finished the dog, Pagona said, but he denied he had struck the dog repeatedly. Patton, Pagona said, was not in the room nor near the building when the dog started his journey to canine heaven.

In the end Squire Meyers dismissed the case, ruling there was no cause for complaint. The owner of the dog hinted he would carry the case to a higher court. Meanwhile, Patton has ordered another pair of pants.

Census Delays Election In Spain Until March

Madrid, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Spain's parliamentary election, the first since 1923, when Primo de Rivera established the dictatorship, can not be held before March 1, Ossorio Gallardo, head of the census board, announced today, because of inability to complete the electoral census much before that date.

The census board, created to study electoral conditions is expected to report its findings to the cabinet next Tuesday, and thereafter a definite election date will be set. The cabinet also must decide whether municipal elections will precede parliamentary voting.

Facing Posse With Gun, Man, Chased as Rustler, Is Slain

Modern South Dakota "Bad Man" Denied He Would Be Taken Alive; He Drove Cattle Away in Trucks, Officers Say.

Belle Fourche, S. Dak., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—True to the traditions of Western "bad men" of another era, Wayne Kelley, former convict and alleged modern cattle rustler, died with his boots on.

Facing the rifles of a sheriff's posse, Kelley, who had spread word through the sparsely inhabited Northwest range country that he would never be taken alive, reached for his gun, and a few seconds later lay dead, the victim of a deputy sheriff's aim.

The story of the "fade-out" of a real-life thriller was brought to Belle Fourche today by the officers, who had finally cornered Kelley Saturday morning at a Butte County ranch, after a search of several months through the range lands of South Dakota and Montana. A companion named Horton was arrested.

Officials who are trying to cope with the problem created by the transition in cattle-rustling methods, from the horseback roundups of cowboy days to the use of trucks, believe Kelley's death may break up a gang.

The old-time cattle rustlers, it is pointed out, rode the plains at night driving herds of cattle before them. It took them days to reach a market where they dared sell the stolen animals. Modern rustlers, under cover of darkness, drive trucks into a herd of unprotected cattle, round up as many animals as the truck will hold and rush them to market. Officers said they had traced many head of cattle stolen in this manner to Sioux City, Iowa, and other points.

Kelley had been sought since last spring when he escaped from the jail at Faith, where he was held on a rustling charge. Sheriff B. F. Long, of Butte County, said officers were told Friday that Kelley was hiding at a ranch near Reva, in the northwest range country, where there are no railroads and few inhabitants.

A posse hid in a barn on the ranch Friday night and in the morning ordered Kelley and Horton to surrender. Horton complied, but when Kelley reached for his gun, Deputy Sheriff William Short opened fire and Kelley fell dead.

Diamond Doctors to Act Today on Bullet Probe

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Physicians will decide tomorrow whether to operate on Jack "Legs" Diamond to remove the four bullets which rival gangsters shot into his body on October 12. Dr. J. G. Greeff, city commissioner of hospitals, who called the consultation, said today Diamond's condition "is just about at a standstill." The gangster, he said, is not on the hospital's list of serious cases.

The detective visited Diamond today to arrange for his appearance before a grand jury. They said he seemed to be failing steadily.

$5,000,000 in Gold Sent From Argentine

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The first official gold shipment from Argentine since December 16, 1929, arrived on the steamship Eastern Prince today, consigned to the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. from the Banco de la Nacion.

The shipment contained $5,000,000 in 160 kegs of 400,000 American eagles and 38 kegs of sovereigns and gold Napoleons. Its purpose is to strengthen the Argentine peso, which, in consequence of poor crops and other adverse circumstances, has depreciated in value.

CONTEST BOARD AAA CERTIFIED TEST

Even the women are becoming conscious of one oil brand, instead of just asking for "a quart of oil." That brand is rapidly becoming Conoco Germ-Processed.

Following the Pike's Peak Tests, where Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil was tested side by side with three other popular, nationally known oils, the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association issued Certificate of Performance number 2268, comprising 14 points, of which the point below is one.

POINT NO. 8

"That carbon deposits collected from the combustion chambers and cylinder heads and weighed by the official chemist were shown by the records of the test to be less after the use of the subject oil than after the use of the comparables."

CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY

CONOCO

The recent Pike's Peak tests disclosed some startling facts about motor oil . . . Free booklet at all CONOCO stations.

The reason is simple. For, while these women don't think much of technical discussions of "adsorption," and "Penetrative Lubricity," every one of them knows what we mean when we say: "This oil actually penetrates metal surfaces." Then, the sensational proof of Conoco Germ-Processed oil in the recent Pike's Peak Tests and at the Indianapolis and Altoona races, appeals to practical-minded women who want to be shown.

For there is just as much difference in motor oils as there is in cold cream. Some oils, as with some inferior creams, simply lay on the surfaces to which they are applied. While Germ-Processed oil, like a fine cold cream, penetrates deep into the "pores" (there are pores in metal, you know) and there performs its true function.

The assurance and peace of mind which comes from this penetrating quality of Germ-Processed oil, instantly stamps this as every woman's favorite brand. That's why we see both men and women so well represented among our customers . . . at the Sign of the Red Triangle.

largely a tale of disaster which overtook first one party and then another after they engaged in a hunt for previously lost expeditions.

On October 11, Pilot E. J. A. Burke, accompanied by Emil Kading, mechanic, and Bob Martin, a prospector, disappeared during a Northern flight.

Seventeen days later, October 28, Pilot Robin Renahan, and two companions took off from Vancouven, B. C., for Atlin to look for the Burke party. Renahan, with Sam Clerf, a mining man, and Frank Hatcher, a mechanic, both of Seattle, have not been seen since.

Saturday two Royal Canadian Air Force seaplanes, carrying five men, disappeared between Comox, Vancouver Island, and Prince Rupert, B. C. The planes were piloted by Flight Lieut. L. R. Pinney and Flying Officer C. R. Dunlap. The crew consisted of Sergt. A. H. Warner, Corpl. W. C. Atwood, and Corpl. M. Squire.

Meanwhile Capt. Zeno E. Briggs, acting commandant of the Bremerton, U. S. Navy Yard, declared incorrect reports he had recommended to the Navy Department that amphibian planes be sent north from San Diego to join in the search.

"I have turned all the information available concerning the lost fliers over to the Washington Navy officials with no recommendations or suggestions," he said.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Dawes' Bust Soon to Grace U. S. Capitol

Davidson Is Sculpturing Former Vice President for Senate.

IF Mr. Charles Gates Dawes, Ambassador to Great Britain and former Vice President, went to sleep on the job at a critical moment during his regime as czar of the Senate, failing to appear after lunch in time to cast a tie vote for the confirmation of Charles Beecher Warren, of Michigan, as Attorney General, the Senate, apparently, holds no grudge against their former leader. That incident in the history of the Republican Senate happened in 1925. Within a few weeks a marble bust of the Ambassador will reach Washington and will rest in the Senate corridors along with other effigies of former Vice Presidents.

The American sculptor, Mr. Jo Davidson, commissioned by the Senate to make a bust of the former Vice President, has completed the head and although he is "still playing around with it," the piece of art will reach America shortly.

The bust of the Ambassador is in Mr. Davidson's studio in Paris surrounded by likenesses of Mr Andrew Mellon, the late Senator La Follette, George Bernard Shaw, John D. Rockefeller Sr., and others. Ambassador Dawes, when he was sitting for the bust, said that the reason the Senate hired Mr. Davidson to do the work was that "they are glad to be rid of me!"

Mr. Davidson, who is widely known in Washington, often has told friends here of his admiration for certain great men of public life who have left their mark in the annals of American history. "John D. Rockefeller is a fine old man with a keen mind," he says. "La Follette was a purposeful leader, Woodrow Wilson a man with a small measure of weakness which characterizes all mankind—Dawes, a man of force and virile personality."

Mr. Davidson also spends much of his time in Rome.

Turkish Ambassador Returning to Capital.

The Turkish Ambassador, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, will return tomorrow from New York where he went to meet his younger daughter, Mme. Nebil, who arrived in this country on the Bremen to pass several months with her father and her sister, Mme. Envers at the Embassy. Mme. Nebil is the wife of Senator Nebil, now in Moscow.

The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and Lady Lindsay have gone to New York where they will attend the tenth annual Armistice Ball of the British Great War Veterans of America which will take place tonight at the Hotel Plaza.

The Ambassador will be guest of members who served under the British colors, at the British Commonwealth Club, at one of the largest dinners given before the ball.

Following the dinner there will be a reception in the lounge of the club, where Sir Ronald will unveil a portrait of King George, recently brought to this country by the artist, Mr. Gerald Hudson.

The ball will be attended by all ranks of ex-service men including many Americans who served with British and Canadian forces in the early days of the war.

The Minister of Portugal and Viscountess d'Alte will move from the Legation at 2340 Woodland Drive to Wardman Park Hotel on Saturday, for the remainder of the winter.

The former legation on Woodland Drive belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark Grew. Mr. Grew is American Ambassador to Turkey. The lease of Viscount d'Alte has expired.

The Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter will return today from New York where they went Saturday to attend the celebration of "Rutly Seier," a national holiday in Switzerland. Last week they had as their guests for several days their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Peter, of New York, and their small daughter, who returned to their home with the Minister and Mme. Peter.

The Minister of Sweden, Mr. Walmar Bostrom, is in New York for a visit.

The Minister of China, Mr. Chao-Chu Wu, has returned from New York where on Saturday he responded to the greetings of President Hoover addressed to the Society of Foreign Consuls at a luncheon at the Commodore Hotel in celebration of the approach of Armistice Day.

Senator and Mrs. Goff Home From Abroad.

Senator and Mrs. Guy D. Goff have returned to their home at 1606 New Hampshire avenue after an absence of several months. They passed the summer abroad, and then spent several weeks in West Virginia.

Mr. Charles C. Eberhardt, American Minister to Costa Rica, is at the Mayflower.

Royal Couple Will Sojourn With Debuchis

King and Queen of Siam Also Plan to Visit Washington.

Arriving at just the right time during the cherry blossom season, Prince Takamatsu, brother of the Emperor of Japan, and the Princess Takamatsu, will visit Washington next April, when they will be guests of the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi.

The Prince and Princess Takamatsu's visit to America will probably be official in aspect, as part of the tour they are now making of various countries. They arrived in Lisbon, Portugal, on Sunday morning, when they were greeted by President Carmona and high officials. They dined at Ajuda Palace as the guest of the president on Sunday evening.

The royal visitors are leaving today for Sevilla, and after a sojourn there, will go to Italy, Greece, the Balkan nations, thence to this country and Canada. Their return to Japan is set for next June.

Even blase Washington will be ecstatic over royal visitors, for the sojourn of Prince and Princess Takamatsu in the Capital will probably coincide with the arrival of the King and Queen of Siam, who will come to this country about April 19, for a two months' stay. Ophir Hall, the country home of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, near White Plains, in Westchester County, N. Y., will be their home for part of the time. The King of Siam is coming to this country to undergo treatment for serious trouble with his eyes. Consequently, the royal visit will be unofficial. The Siamese sovereign and his queen, Rambai Barni, will of course, be paid high honors here.

Mr. L. Lamott Belin, new chief of the State Department's division of protocol and international conferences, will have his first extraordinary task in arranging entertainment for King Prajadhipok, an important initiation to his duties, to say the least. King Prajadhipok is the first ruling king to visit this country since Albert of the Belgians was here in 1921.

Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, have returned to Washington and have opened their apartment at the Mayflower.

Mrs. Cornelius Gardner and Miss Barendina Gardener are occupying an apartment for the winter at 2540 Massachusetts avenue. Mrs. F. E. Galloway, wife of Capt. Galloway, Air Corps, of Bowman Field, Louisville, Ky., is another daughter of Mrs. Gardener. She was formerly Miss Martha Gardener.

Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, and Mrs. Harris and Miss Julia Harris have sent out invitations for a small dinner on November 27 at 2400 Sixteenth street for Mrs. Harris' niece, Miss Lucy Wheeler Buck, of New York.

Mr. Hugh Campbell Wallace, former American Ambassador to France, and Mrs. Wallace, who have been at the Savoy Plaza in New York, have returned to Washington and have opened their house on Massachusetts avenue for the winter. Mr. Wallace is convalescing from a severe illness since his return from Paris a month ago.

Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke and Miss Adele Jahncke will come to Washington on Friday from their home in New Orleans. Miss Jahncke will be presented this winter.

Mr. Lynn W. Franklin, newly appointed American Consul at Cheefoo, Shantung, China, and Mrs. Franklin and their children have left for San Francisco, where they will stop for a fortnight on the first lap of their journey to the Orient. In California Mr. and Mrs. Franklin will be guests for a short time of the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Goeffrey Bell, the latter formerly Miss Hazel Franklin, of Washington.

Officials to Attend Armistice Ball.

A notable group representing official Washington will be present tonight at the Armistice ball at the Mayflower. The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, will occupy a box, having with him Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann and a group of friends; the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, will have in his box disabled veterans of the World War; the Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley will attend the ball, as will the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams. Gen. John J. Pershing, Mrs. Goff, wife of Senator Guy Despard Goff; Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, Maj. and Mrs. James W. Boyer, who will entertain Mr. Paul C. Wolman, commander in chief of the national organization of Veterans of the World War, and Mrs. Wolman; Rear Admiral Willard Browning, Mr. William Phelps Eno and many others.

Mme. Sakano, wife of the Naval Attache of the Japanese Embassy, entertained at luncheon yesterday at Wardman Park Hotel.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles H. Bridges will present their niece, Miss Georgette Yerby, to society in Washington at a dinner dance to be given on December 8 at the Mayflower preceding the first of the 1930-31 series of Washington's Bachelors' Cotillions.

The Financial Counselor of the Polish Embassy, Mr. Witold Wankowicz, will entertain a company of ten at dinner this evening at the Shoreham Hotel.

New Residence Acquired by C. P. Dodges

Confusion Occasioned by Similarity of Names Is Ended.

Happily ensconced in the house of Mrs. H. H. Rousseau at 3238 R street, which was once the home of Gen. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Dodge, of Colorado Springs, have solved the problem which has been perplexing their friends. With two families of the same name, both from Colorado Springs and both living at the Mayflower and both active in social life, acquaintances were at their wits end to avoid confusion.

Such has been the case with Mr. and Mrs. Harold P. Dodge and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Dodge. Now each Mrs. Dodge will receive her own mail and the confusion will be at an end.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dodge have come to be near their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Eliot, who are in Washington, where Mr. Eliot is associated with Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d in the project of buildings and public parks. He is a grandson of the former president of Harvard University.

Mr. Dodge is the former publisher of the Colorado Springs Gazette. The house which the Dodges have taken in Georgetown is one of the oldest in that small area of homes and is a lovely structure of rambling architecture with a rose garden of rare varieties and a picturesque rock garden adjoining, both of which were designed by Mrs. Rosseau. Leaving Washington soon, Mrs. Rosseau will spend the winter in England.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold P. Dodge will remain at the Mayflower, having come for the winter. Their daughter, Miss Dorothy Dodge, will be among the season's debutantes.

Mrs. Melville Ingalls will be at the Savoy-Plaza in New York until she sails for Europe on the Ile de France. Mrs. Ingalls has been at Hot Springs, Va., for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. William Littauer, parents of Mrs. William Doellor, of Washington, arrived in New York today on the Bremen.

Mr. James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, and Mrs. Davis will open the sterling silver fashion show at the Hotel Willard tonight at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Davis will introduce Mr. Sinclair Weeks, son of the late Secretary of War, John W. Weeks, and president of the Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America, representing one of the Nation's oldest industries, which is sponsoring the exhibition.

Lectures will be given Mr. George E. Ball, Miss Grace Cornell, of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; Miss Helen Ufford, associate editor of the Delineater, and Mrs. Northrop, style consultant on sterling silver. Artistic arrangement has been handled by Miss Genevieve Hendricks.

Lieut. Col. J. Duncan Elliott, Military Attache at the American Embassy in Istambul, and Mrs. Elliott have returned from a journey of several weeks which included a trip to Angora where they attended a round of balls and dinners incident to the opening of the Turkish assembly where Prime Minister Venizelos was the guest of honor. Mrs. Elliott is a sister of Miss Emma Perley Lincoln, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond T. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. B. Sumner Welles, who have been in New York, have returned to Washington.

Mr. Frederic Knobel. On Diplomatic Mission.

Many distinguished orders have been conferred upon the archbishop, including the Knight of the Great Cross of the Constantin Order of St. George and the Order of the Holy Sepulchre, Officer of the Legion of Honor and others.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

CANCER AND ANARCHY.

CANCER has been called cell anarchy. Those who accept this theory say cancer cells do not differ in appearance or form, or even in chemistry, from normal cells of the same type. They are cancer cells because they do not conform to the community or social or biologic laws which should govern them, and by that token they are also characterized as anarchistic. They hog the food supply, they grow and multiply out of relation to the needs, they destroy other cells, and, finally, in some obscure way they pull down the temple on the entire social structure and on themselves as well.

All scientists do not agree with the theory that anarchy lies at the heart of what's wrong in cancer. Sometimes the opposition cites keloid as proof that cell anarchy is not synonymous with cancer. Keloid is not cancer and only rarely does it develop malignancy, and yet there is a considerable degree of anarchy in keloid.

In the natural method of open wound healing there is, first, development of granulation tissue and then growth of scar tissue. This scar tissue multiplies until the open space is filled to the skin level, whereupon epithelium covers it over and scar tissue increase comes to a stop. The wound has healed by scar formation. The scar is visible, but, having accomplished its purpose, it tends to shrink and in rare cases to disappear. If, instead of this course, scar tissue continues to pile up, the result is a keloid.

The writer has just seen a Negro man with a keloid on his neck and face. It looks like a mountain range. It is nearly an inch high, about an inch broad, and is broken up into lobulated masses like individual mountains in a chain.

Keloids are frequently encountered among Negroes. The black skin is peculiarly susceptible to it. In this condition the scar tissue is similar to that responsible for normal healing. It grows in regular arrangement and sequence, but when the time comes to stop it keeps on growing. It is as lawless as a racketeer. And yet we do not think of keloid as cancer. That cancer sometimes develops in a keloid weakens the argument of the opposition somewhat.

GOOD TIME FOR AN HEIR.

Mrs. A. L. writes:

1. I expect my baby in the spring. If I am unable to nurse it, is it dangerous to change milk during the summer?

2. Also, when do you believe is the best time of the year for a baby to be born?

REPLY.

1. Not if you are reasonably careful.

2. In the late spring.

Ten years ago these answers would have been improper. A study of recent statistics shows that young babies have their lowest death rates in summer. Good safe milk preparations and milks are now generally available. However, by all means, breast feed for six to nine months.

DO you know how to shop? So few of us really do! And then all those just too bad things that one has as a result—all those smart things that are smart in themselves but unfortunately aren't smart in the ensemble. Not to mention that really sad moment when you see something that you truly need and want, and haven't the money for it! Is that nize? You know it isn't.

• • • •

You see, my dears, you must never buy anything that you do not know fits—definitely fits—into your wardrobe. That is, unless you "just can't live without it"—in which case buy it for some one else! Buying these things for others is eminently satisfactory, by the way, as it satisfies both your desire to be altruistic and your desire for possession.

But shopping for yourself has to be more restrained. Not only for economy's sake, but for the sake of your elegance. Undisciplined shopping always results in either the forced wearing of inharmonious details, or the extravagance of putting something aside until you have time to complete it with the necessary accessories.

Ever and anon you hear that fans are or are not in style, are returning to favor, are newly elegant, &c. Fans actually never go out of style. Nor are they generally of supreme style importance, falling in the category of individual taste rather than style. Certain personalities, certain countries, will always favor the fan.

There is something not only stylish but very practical about the crystal handled bag. The handle never rubs off and never soils one's white gloves, for example. And the latest fad in crystal-handled bags shows the huge, oddly shaped or carved balls at each end of the handle, as I have illustrated for you today.

Now you just know you'd send a dollar and a half and invest an hour's time if you could make a really good-looking affair in which to keep all of your rubber goods, now wouldn't you? Just imagine, being able to keep them all together where you could find them when they were needed, and have them be hanging all this time so that they would not lose their shape or come in contact with anything else, and out of sight besides! Yes, when I figured the "hot-water bag hidey out, I took all these things into consideration—and Mamzelle took a few more into consideration when she made one, and then made an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make one for yourself. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dare, The Washington Post, and the leaflet will be yours.

Wouldn't you prefer Sunday night to all the other ninety 'leven nights of the week if you could wear a dress like the one I have illustrated today? Tollman has made this of black lace with a demure collar and kerchief-like cuffs of red georgette. Huge black velvet flowers gracefully trim this gown, and they in turn are lined with red, soft red taffeta.

You'll not want to miss our weekly fashion letter. It's always in The Washington Post.

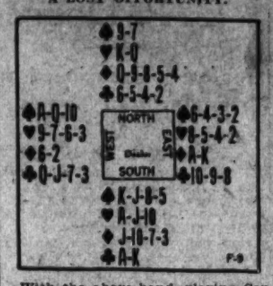
WORK ON BRIDGE

A LOST OPPORTUNITY.



With the above hand, playing Contract, South bid two No Trumps; he had a count of 18 and four suits stopped. After West's pass North, with a count of 8, bid three No Trumps; and that ended the bidding.

In Auction Bridge South would bid one No Trump which would be followed by three passes.

West led the Trey of Clubs and South won with the King. South then led a Diamond which East won and returned the Ten of Clubs. South won and another round of Diamonds cleared the suit, East winning and leading a Club which enabled West to take two Club tricks. Then, as East-West had won four tricks, West led the Ace of Spades and set the Declarer who had bid for game.

East and West were satisfied with their defense and failed to appreciate that a wonderful opportunity for a big score had been lost. Do you see where it was?

The Correct Play.

When West played to East's Club lead at trick 3, he held the Queen-Jack-Seven, the Ten having been led by East and the Ace played by South. East was marked as holding the Nine of Clubs by his play of the Eight on trick 1 and his return of the Ten. West needed two leads of Spades through South, and East, would lead Spades if told not to lead a Club. So West should have signaled at trick 3 by playing the Club Jack instead of the Seven.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the "PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of The Washington Post by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with six cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored. Address Milton C. Work, care Washington Post.

When a player opens his suit against a No Trump and subsequently plays an unnecessarily high card of it, he signals to his partner to shift to dummy's weak suit. Consequently, with the signal made, when East won trick 4 (the second round of Diamonds), he should have returned a small Spade instead of the Nine of Clubs. West would finesse the Ten and lead the Seven of Clubs to be won by East's Nine, and East would lead a second Spade for a second finesse. As a result, East and West would take three Spades, two Diamonds and two Clubs; and the Declarer who had bid nine and made only six would be down three. In this case the Declarer was vulnerable and would have been set 500 points undoubted, instead of the paltry 100 with which East and West were so well satisfied.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

MOCK DUCK.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Select a flank of steak weighing from two to three pounds. Make a stuffing of the following ingredients:

One and one-half cup of stale bread crumbs.
One teaspoon of salt.
One half teaspoon pepper.
One onion, minced.
One-half cup of chopped celery.
Two tablespoons butter or one quarter cup.
Chopped salt pork.

Brown the celery and the onion lightly in the fat. Then mix ingredients lightly combining them with a fork. Spread the stuffing over the steak. Roll the steak crosswise, and tie it, two or three places with clean string. By rolling it crosswise the meat will be carved across the grain and the slices will be more tender. Roll the outside of the mock duck in flour, then sear the surface in a small quantity of fat in a baking pan. Add more flour if necessary, so there will be enough brown gravy. When the meat is thoroughly seared on all sides, add a cup of water, cover closely, and cook until tender. This takes about one and one-half hours. When the meat is done mix two tablespoons of fat with an equal amount of flour, add the liquor from the pan, and enough water to make as much gravy as needed. If the steak had fat on it, there may be enough fat and also flour in the pan to make the gravy without adding more.

Pope Receives Wife of Envoy.

Vatican City, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Pope Pius today received in audience Mrs. Hugh S. Gibson, wife of the American Ambassador to Belgium. The Pontiff knew Mr. Gibson some years ago when the American was Minister to Poland and he himself was papal nuncio at Warsaw. The Pope asked Mrs. Gibson to convey a message of warm friendship to her husband. He then imparted the benediction.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me whether the inclosed leaves are from the mock orange bush. I bought it for a mock orange bush, but it is not self-supporting like a shrub, but clinging like a vine. JULIE B.

The leaves you inclosed were not those of a mock orange, but as they were wilted we were unable to identify them.

Please tell me what to do to get rid of moles in my lawn and flower garden; they are literally ruining my ground. Should regal lilies have winter protection? The plants in question were started from seeds this year. B. L. B.

Mole traps will be of some assistance in getting rid of moles, but the best way to eradicate these pests is to use a poison bait. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you the name of a proprietary preparation that will assist you in getting rid of them. The regal lily is perfectly hardy and therefore requires no winter protection.

I have some really nice straw, or everlasting, flowers. How do I cut them to have them in good condition for winter house decoration? M. A.

Straw flowers should be cut when the flowers are about one-third open, but with as long stems as possible; take off all foliage, tie in bunches and hang head downward in some dark, dry place until the stems are thoroughly dry.

I have a number of roses still in bloom. The buds are not opening as they should and the leaves have the entire season been yellow with brown spots instead of green. Please place. Better try spraying the foliage offer a suggestion to cause an improvement next season, as I feel that it is too late to do anything for them this year. M. F.

Better collect and burn all dead or falling leaves. Your plants are evidently the prey of black spot, a disease with a control but no definite cure. Burning the foliage will prevent a spread of the disease. The plants should also be dusted with Massey dust, a material composed of nine parts dusting sulphur and one part lead arsenate. In addition to the use of Massey dust, you should spray the bushes at this time and again before growth starts in the spring with Bordeaux mixture.

The inclosed leaf is from an ivy vine growing in the house. It has sunlight, plenty of air and is never neglected in any way. Also tell me how to care for a young sansevieria. E. B. M.

Perhaps your ivy is getting too much sun. As a rule, this plant does better in a light but not very sunny once a week with cold, soapy water and, if the plant is growing in soil, give it water every day. A sansevieria demands a warm, sunny location in winter and a great deal of fresh air. Keep the surface soil in the pot quite loose, and water the plant every other day.

Please tell me why all my annuals suddenly wilted and died. M. J. P.

The soil in your garden may be so poor that the plants are not sufficiently nourished. Again it may have been a case of cutworm. Next season it will pay you to fertilize your garden thoroughly and to be sure to keep your plants very well watered. The warm, dry season we had in midsummer this season was very hard on annuals.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SCORPIO."

IF NOVEMBER 11 is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you are from 9 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 6:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. to midnight.

Astrological signs for this date are very favorable, and many valuable opportunities will present themselves, but it depends on you whether they are converted to advantage. It is an especially good time for the launching of new enterprises, and beneficial changes.

Children born on this November 11 will be truthful and successful. They will have an inborn frankness that will not permit of dubious methods, and they promise to be straightforward in all relationships of life. They will, as they mature, be respected by all those with whom they come in contact.

You are not an apostle of progress. You affect to despise the degree of civilization, the modicum of knowledge, the extent of social organization which has been attained. You praise the past, and to a large degree live in it and on it. Tradition and custom mean everything to you, and so far as your limited vision goes, everything new and progressive is anathema. Your conduct is regulated by rules and regulations, and lacks all spontaneity. Needless to say, in present world conditions, you are not a very popular person, and are considered a bit of a freak.

The signs do not denote for you any great measure of worldly success, although your virtues are many. You are honorable, straightforward and truthful. You are considerate of other people and their feelings. You are sympathetic and kind. You refuse, however, to get out of a rut and have no appreciation of the new things that are going on around you, nor will you participate in any of the recreations that modernism has devised for our benefit and amusement.

If you can find a mate who also is willing to "stay put," married life will bring you happiness and in monotony you will find your greatest enjoyment. If you marry, you should choose a partner born either in June or August.

Successful People born November 11:

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES McDONALD

Men Like to Broadcast.

NETTIE is all agog over our advice to girls to talk less and sigh more. Nettie says the men she knows would walk away from there if a girl dared to sigh or even to stop talking to draw breath.

"They are so dumb themselves they wont or can't talk, and they expect the girl to pay her way by doing the heavy conversation. The only thing they can talk about is themselves. And, boy, how they love to do that! They could talk forever about the girls that have died for love of them. I went with a fellow last winter and every girl I would mention, he would say: 'Some affectionate, she is—too much clinging vine for this boy.' And I would find out he never even knew the girl. You may say he is an exception but he is nothing of the kind. My own brother is worse. I heard him myself one night telling a bunch how a certain girl kept calling for him at the house in her car. I know the girl and she has never been near our house in her car. Don't ask me why they do it. Ask them. I really mean it. I wish you would.

"There's another thing they get away with. Telling other fellows and girls how expensive some girl is. That is to give the impression that they are big spenders. It hurts the girl and I can't see what they get out of it. Most of them only have loose change. Honestly I do not blame a girl who has a good salary for going with girls or else handing the money to these tramps. I went to a show with one about a month ago. Our first date at that and believe me, it was our last. He had been asking me for weeks. Well, his big moment arrived. We went to a movie. When we came out it was pouring rain. Just a sudden shower but quite as wet as if expected. A quarter would have got us to my home in a taxi. And a taxi was right at the curb. No, we went the three blocks to my home in a downpour, ruining my new hat. I bet he told his pals the next day what an expensive pastime that Nettie turned out to be. Well, I am one leap ahead of him, for every one I know has been told about the 'walking in the rain' act he staged.

"You may know men who like to sit and think, but the men we see in these parts never had a thought in their lives. If you sit and do not talk, they think you are sore about something, and they do not care whether you are or not. If you do not talk your way to the next date there is no date. Honestly, Mrs. McDonald, I hate every fellow I ever go out with. Ill-mannered, inferior and cheap. And still they can tell you how great they are.

"When it comes to broadcasting they are the ones who can do it if the subject is big 'Me!'"

Well, Nettie believes in letting the fresh air in, anyway. What have the braves to say?

This column is your column. Express your opinion. Offer advice and help all who read this page. You need not sign your name.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—When a movie company goes several hundred miles from its studio to film a picture, preparations are made to meet nearly every emergency.

WILLIAM BOYD

Good weather always is hoped for, but bad weather is a condition that no beforehand cautions can help.

Fair, or "shooting weather," means much to a unit on location. When a company is not far from its studio, it can go onto stages and film interiors if inclement weather is encountered.

In the mountains or the desert there are no stages handy.

A group of players, including William Boyd, Helen Twelvetrees and William Farnum, their director; Howard Higgins, and a crew of 50, have just returned from the Painted desert in Arizona with a picture—they hope.

Their stay of five weeks, at a small Indian trading post, 60 miles from Flagstaff, Ariz., was beset with more difficulties than a movie group usually encounters.

Waterhaul.

An important sequence in the picture, named after the place it was filmed, "The Painted Desert," took place at a water hole.

Water holes are scarce in this particular part of Arizona, so one had to be constructed.

A deep hole was dug in a gorge and filled with water pumped from the Little Colorado River.

The day after it was completed, and before any action had been filmed, a cloudburst filled the gorge with water and washed away the "set." A second time the water hole was dug and filled and another heavy rainfall washed it out.

The crew, confident their third attempt would be successful, again dug dirt and pumped water. But it was again washed out.

Meanwhile the rest of the company waited—with a $9,000 daily overhead to thing about.

Stampede.

Another four days were spent filming a scene in which 500 head of cattle stampede, a small but necessary bit that ordinarily would require but a part of one day. Wind interfered with the sound recording and dust with the filming.

While this scene was being made the cattle, angered perhaps at being overworked, rushed a camera in their mad stampede. The cameraman stood by as long as he dared, but his machine was trampled on and destroyed.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

"Gone!"

The exclamation was uttered by Inspector Linscott as the sound of the fleeing motor became dimmer and dimmer in the warm night air.

"We must get a car and follow him!" insisted the explorer, dragging at the inspector's arm. "I got him both shots, I'm certain. I only fired to maim, not to kill, and both the bullets hit in his legs. . . ."

"No use trying to overtake him in a car," replied the inspector. "I'll get in touch with the Yard and have men waiting for him when he arrives in London."

"He'll expect that," objected Bruce Armstrong. "And make good his escape."

"I doubt it," was the unflurried rejoinder, as Inspector Linscott started toward the telephone. "Anyhow, our men are patient. Some time he will want to return to his house, and when he does they will be waiting for him."

"You don't think he'll try to clear out of the country?" asked Armstrong incredulously.

"I think we took him completely unawares and that he will want something he has in his house before he disappears for good. That's when we'll get him. . . . Or sooner," he added, "if we can find the surgeon he goes to for the marks you left on him."

"I should have killed him," the explorer said ruefully.

"Don't you worry." The inspector smiled quizzically. "The civilized police system of England isn't as helpless as you think. And, quite frankly, I'd rather see the fellow hang!"

"What was it?" Lady Dorothy's quavering voice interrupted them. She, with Lady Gwendolen on her arm, had slipped into the room unobserved.

"Did you get him?" asked Lady Gwendolen breathlessly.

The two men were wiping their perspiring foreheads.

"Did you get him?" Lady Gwendolen had to repeat her question, this time more insistently.

"No! And all my fault," explained the explorer. "I only wounded him, when I should have killed him."

"What are you talking about? Gwen seems to know, but I can't get a word out of her," said Lady Dorothy. "Where is Mr. Flint?" she was quivering with excitement.

"Gone!" replied the inspector ironically as he picked up the phone.

"But . . . but . . . I don't understand," stammered Lady Dorothy weakly.

"He killed Edward," explained Lady Gwendolen very quietly. "I told the inspector. . . ."

"Flint killed Edward? . . . Flint? . . ." she gasped, as if she had not heard aright. "You told the inspector! . . . How did you know?"

"I found his picture. . . . I knew when you called me to go to the garden. . . ."

"So that's what was the matter with you! Why didn't you tell me? I should have called our constable," Lady Dorothy, though slightly recovered from the shock, looked in a bewildered way from one to the other of her guests. "I can't believe it yet. Mr. Flint! Mr. Flint, of all people!"

Inspector Linscott put back the receiver. "That's all right," he explained cheerfully. "He'll have hard work eluding my men. . . ."

"I'm not so sure." The explorer smiled. "I think I could lose myself without so much difficulty. London is a big place!"

"You've let him get away?" Lady Gwendolen looked accusingly from one man to the other.

"He was too quick for us," replied the inspector. "He leapt across the room and smashed through the window like a young athlete. Armstrong got him twice in the leg, but a trail of blood's all he's left behind. However, you mustn't let that disturb you. We'll have him safe in jail in another 48 hours."

"You two such big men, and you couldn't get him," said Lady Gwendolen scornfully.

"He is a tough one, if you'll pardon my saying so," piped up the voice of Gaspard, who was standing in the doorway, "I never did see his like at all. He isn't human. I was waiting for him just outside the window, but he jumped astraddle me and knocked me cold, if you'll pardon my saying so. I've only just come to. . . ."

"Say, I'm sorry, Gaspard," interrupted the inspector contritely. "But, to tell the truth, I'd forgotten all about you."

Lady Gwendolen burst into hysterical laughter.

The explorer put his hand soothingly on her shaking arm. "Come," he said kindly but firmly. "You must control yourself and go to bed. And so must you, Lady Dorothy," he added, turning to the older woman. "For your own peace I advise you to sleep in the same room, and the inspector and I will take turns sitting outside your door, so you can sleep comfortably."

"I'm not afraid!" Lady Gwendolen flung up her head scornfully. "If I'd been here I'd have killed him!"

"There, there, you're not yourself, my dear girl," said the explorer gently. "You and our hostess go up. There will be no further disturbance tonight."

As soon as the women had disappeared the inspector turned to Armstrong. "I'll get a bit of sleep and then I'm off to London. The fun'll be all up there!"

"I'd like to come, too," was the wistful reply. "But my place is here, with the women."

"Right-o! I understand," the Inspector answered cheerily. "Give the poor chap my greeting and tell him he'll soon be allowed to leave his present habitation. I'll let you know when we get our man. Good-by for the time being, and many thanks for your help, old man!" He took Armstrong's hand and they shook heartily.

Left alone, Bruce Armstrong went up the stairs and laid himself before the women's door. The dishevelled butler had long before taken himself off to his own part of the house. Not because he really anticipated any further danger, but just to be on the safe side. Armstrong resolved not to leave the women that night. Bruin Peters, alias Donald Flint, was a desperate man. He was a man at bay, a savage with only a veneer of civilization, who would stop at nothing. So, Bruce Armstrong lay outside the door of the room which held the two women, but he did not sleep.

Inspector Linscott, on the contrary, was asleep as soon as he hit his bed. He would need his nerve and strength on the morrow, he well knew, and he did not intend to waste the five precious hours of sleep before him with any vain regrets.

All the following day Inspector Linscott and two faithful aids combed the higher surgical profession for the man to whom Donald Flint had gone for assistance with his wounds. The Inspector felt confident that he would seek expert advice without a moment's loss of time, as his ultimate prospect of escape depended so much on getting into condition as soon as possible. Lame, he would be spotted at once, he would know that.

Late that evening found the Inspector unsuccessful and discouraged. He was on the point of giving up the quest until the following day, when he noted on his list a surgeon of particular eminence whom he had deliberately put among the unlikely possibilities. Would Flint dare to go to him? To the great surgeon, Sir Phineas Booker? Such audacity seemed inconceivable. Yet Flint was an audacious man. Well, it would be his last try that night, and he would soon know.

He found the surgeon in, and was admitted at once on explaining who he was and the nature of his errand.

"Sit down and rest," suggested Sir Phineas, looking speculatively at the Inspector. "I suspect I'm the man you're looking for. Have a cigar?"

"Thanks." He lighted it and began to puff slowly. "So you have attended a handsome, dark-complexioned man of about forty for accidental wounds?"

"Twice today. Once early this morning and again just half an hour ago."

"I trust that it's more than a coincidence," said the inspector, feeling his spirits rise. "What's your patient's name and where does he live?"

"If I didn't think he was the man you're seeking I shouldn't tell you." Sir Phineas smiled. "His name is Morris Bentley and he lives in a flat on Adelphi terrace. . . ."

"Why do you think he's my man?" interrupted Linscott. "It's a different name and address."

"He answers your description, for one thing . . . and another, if he'd been wounded down in Devon, as he claims, by the way, he's very vague about it. I happened to ask some leading questions, being a man from those parts myself—he'd likely have been treated locally. At least, first aid, you know. But he'd seen no medical man until he saw me."

"Um. . . . Can you manage to go around again tonight and take me with you?" asked Linscott.

"I'll just ring him up and see. I'll tell him I'm uneasy about his leg."

"Thanks."

After a short conversation he turned again to the waiting man. "His valet answered. Say he is still awake and will be glad to see me."

"Splendid! I'll call my two men I have outside and we'll go together."

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.
Directing Reading.

It is only in recent years that there has developed a body of literature really suitable to the tastes and interests of children.

A great many careful studies show definitely not only that children's interests change at different age levels, but also just what kinds of books interest them at different ages.

These same studies have also brought to light the fact that the average child wastes so much time on sentimental, moralistic trash that there is a genuine need for proper guidance.

In order to direct your child's reading most effectively it will be helpful for you to familiarize yourself with such book lists as are gotten out by schools and public libraries and organizations interested in child welfare.

We can not, of course, be guided by these lists alone.

The only way to keep any child from reading trash is to give him books to satisfy whatever cravings for romance, adventure and excitement make him seek out the paper backs.

When your child insists upon devouring objectionable literature, his bad taste should be considered a symtom of other more fundamental difficulties.

An improvement of his literary taste will probably be effected only after the rest of his life has been reorganized on a more wholesome and to him more satisfying basis.

Your Name
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFFERARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Keidall" is of Celtic and Teutonic origin. It means "the dale of the River Kent," and obviously implies an original place of residence. The name of the River Kent is derived from the Welsh "cain," meaning "clear," "bright" and "white." Most families which bear the name "Kendall" have received it because of having once lived in the town of Kendal in Westmoreland. It will be recalled that the famous "Kendall Green" was manufactured in this town. A certain Johannes de Kendall is mentioned in an English document of the year 1379.

The family name "Alger" (also spelled "Algar") may be traced back to three Angle Saxon personal names meaning "old spear," "elf spear" and "noble spear." English thirteenth century documents record the names of an Elena Algar, an Avelyine Algar and a John Algar.

The family name "Henty" is a variation of the original form, "Hendy." It means "polite" and "courteous," and was originally given as a nickname. It is found in English documents even before the time of the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Henly" is of English origin, and may mean either "he who lives at the high lea" or "he who lives at the henles." There are three towns called Henley in England, all of which have given rise to family names. A certain John de Heneleye is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Emmerich" is of German origin. Its source is the old Germanic personal name "Ermanrih," which means "work ruler." This is the same Germanic personal name which has given rise to the Italian "Amerigo" (Latin "Americus"), and which, therefore, is the source of "America."

COSDEN'S MILLIONS AGAIN JEOPARDIZED

Receivers Named for Firm of Oil King Once Host to Prince of Wales.

STORMED SOCIAL GATES

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Another chapter was written today into the colorful career of Joshua A. Cosden by appointment of receivers for the Cosden Oil Co. in the Federal Court at Wilmington, Del. Cosden, once a poor clerk in Baltimore, has made millions and lost them. Once he entertained the Prince of Wales at his million-dollar estate on Long Island.

His oil company said that its assets were ample, but declared that it was unable to pay its current debts when faced with a demand from the Merrick Drilling Co. for payment of $17,735 for drilling a well.

Federal Judge John P. Nields appointed Hugh M. Morris, of Wilmington, and George N. Moore, of Fort Worth, Tex., as receivers for the company, which listed its total assets at $12,812,000 and liabilities, exclusive of corporate stock, at $4,330,000.

Company Formed in 1928.

Cosden organized the company, capitalized at $5,000,000, in 1928. It marked his return to the oil business and the hectic competition of Wall street after a series of reversals had diminished a reputed fortune of $50,000,000.

He made his reputation and his money in the oil fields of Oklahoma. There, too, he met and married his second wife, the former Mrs. Charles Franklin Roeser, of Tulsa. They set out to storm the citadels of Eastern society and chartered a private car to take them and their millions to New York.

Here they cut a wide swath. At the opera Mrs. Cosden wore pearls valued at $600,000. They purchased a 300-acre estate at Port Washington, Long Island. They bought an ocean front estate at Newport and a $2,000,000 villa at Palm Beach. The Cosden Racing Stable became famous.

Prince of Wales House Guest.

To cap it all, they had the Prince of Wales as a house guest at Port Washington in 1924, together with Lord and Lady Mountbatten. A dramatic incident of the visit was a jewel robbery reported a few days after the visit in which Mrs. Cosden said that she lost $150,000 in jewels and Lady Mountbatten was reported to have lost $42,000 worth of gems.

Then came disaster. In 1926 Vincent Astor bought the Cosden show place on Long Island and the sale of the Palm Beach villa followed quickly. Cosden lost control of a company he had organized and for a time dropped out of sight.

Then in the fall of 1927 the oil industry heard that Cosden was "coming back." He did and soon again was playing a prominent part.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

IF there are any others like myself, who have wondered how Paul Hoefler ever succeeded in getting the close-up lion studies that formed the most exciting sequences of his film, "Africa Speaks," recently presented at the R-K-O-Keith Theater, it will be of interest that Charles Cottar, jr., who began shooting wild animals with a camera before Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson ever set foot in the jungles of Africa, has written and published the whole story of the remarkable adventure that took place back in 1928.

The mob of eight or ten lions so intimately pictured in "Africa Speaks" were, it seems, semitame beasts that had been regularly fed by Mr. Cottar and his brother, Mike, for some time before the advent of Mr. Hoefler upon the scene. In the capacity of guides to the Hoefler expedition, the Cottar brothers, naturally enough, led the way to the particular group of "kings of the jungle" that had never been shot at and had only the vaguest notion of why white men, traveling by motor truck, should be feared. Precisely the same animal reaction is to be encountered in Yellowstone National Park, where bears and other wild beasts come and eat out of the hand as long as the hand hands them what they want.

In the case of the Hoefler pictures, the lions were cultivated to an extent that resulted finally in their seeking refuge from the heat of the sun in the shade under the motor truck—as long as the motor was kept idling. As soon as the motor was cut off they fled in fear of the ominous silence that resulted.

These lions, in other words, were tame and tractable only to the degree that they had failed to learn to fear human companionship—and by that I mean human proximity to within a minimum of 15 yards in the open.

The killing of the two male lions by the native spearsmen was bona fide, although the motive was not the murder of a fellow tribesman by the brutes, as the picture would have us believe.

Whether the danger was as great as it appeared to be or not, it is comforting to know that resort was not made to trick photography and that dumb animals are as susceptible to friendly treatment in the heart of Africa as they are elsewhere in the world.

It all tends to make the king of beasts a little more kingly—and Mr. Hoefler's photography is still awfully good.

The tedium of a reportorial Saturday night was delightfully relieved the night before the night before last by a call from those charming revue artistes, Beth and Betty Dodge, stars of the "Nightingale Melodies" unit, providing this week's stage divertissement at the Palace, who joined the revue on short notice and came to Washington unheralded and unsung. That untoward circumstance has since been largely set right by ample heralding and a deal of singing.

On this particular occasion the sisters were wearing a brace of small dogs that look like Pekingese, but, according to Beth—unless it was Betty—are aristocratic members of a breed that antedates the Peke by a century or so. Upon a promised second visit they have agreed to bring in the thoroughbred Russian wolf hounds presented to them by J. J. Shubert.

I know now where the expression "lucky dog" originated.

Speaking of stage revues, the "Busy Bee" idea, sponsored by Fanchon and Marco, is making one of the longest jumps in theatrical history to fulfill its engagement at the Fox Theater here, beginning Friday. Owing to labor difficulties of some sort or other in the Middle West, the "Busy Bee" company is making an unbroken jump from Tacoma, Wash., to Washington, D. C.

And when they get here they will find themselves booked in with "The Big Trail," one of the most pretentious pictures ever made and considerably over orthodox length, which will necessitate the condensation of their revue into about the running time of one short single act, working in one!

And just to beat you to it, in referring to Hal G. Evarts' story that served as the basis of the fictional portion of "The Big Trail," last Saturday, it should have been called "The Shaggy Legion," not "The Shaggy Horde." It was running serially exactly one year ago this month. Yeah, buffaloes!

When this column was informed last Saturday night that an oversize screen was to be installed at the Fox for the showing of "The Big Trail," beginning Friday, it was emphasized that the magnified projection would not serve to introduce Fox's Grandeur Film to Washington.

Although "The Big Trail" was photographed in both standard and Grandeur size—35 and 70 millimeters, respectively—it is the standard film that will be shown here, special lenses, however, enlarging it to dimensions capable of filling the entire proscenium of the theater. Perfect clarity of detail is guaranteed by the new process, I am given to believe, but no claims are set up that the much-discussed third dimension will be made discernible.

A special performance for school children, by the way, will be given Saturday morning at 9:15, opening with the salute to the flag by a picked company of Boy Scouts. The regular children's admission charges will be assessed, but for this one showing the usual age limit has been waived.

When Mr. Daly contributed a series of articles to the Tabloid Magazine of The Sunday Post, several months ago, dealing with the probable Washington of 50 years hence, he gave the movies a very elegant idea.

De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, the millionaire tunesters, have done themselves a picture which they call "Just Imagine," showing how life will be lived in this country in the year 1980.

It was accorded a preview screening last midnight, but as this is written late Monday afternoon I am not sure whether I went to it or not!

Do you really believe Sen-Sen will ever be legal again?

GEORGIAN INDICTED IN POSTAL JOB SALE

$500 Paid for Postmastership in Suburb of Atlanta, Is Charge.

THIRTEEN COUNTS MADE

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—A thirteen-count indictment was returned by the Federal grand jury here today charging John B. Dove with having solicited and received $500 from John Park Benson in return for the use of his influence in obtaining the College Park postmastership for Benson's son, Ernest Berry Benson. Dove, who is a mechanical inspector of locomotives, today described himself as a "former member of the executive committee of the J. W. Arnold Republican faction" in Georgia.

John Park Benson is a railroad engineer and resides in College Park, a suburb of Atlanta. United States District Attorney Clint W. Hager said the grand jury indictment was the outcome of an investigation by Durelle Cheney, an investigator for Postmaster General Walter C. Brown. The indictment was based on a congressional enactment of 1926, forbidding the barter and sale of political offices and the solicitation of funds for such purposes.

Senatorial investigation of the alleged sale of postmasterships in Georgia and the collecting of Republican campaign funds from office holders was made in July, 1929, by a committee headed by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa.

R-101 CRASH BLAMED PARTLY ON PARLEY

Imperial Conference Caused Officers to Carry On Trip, Testimony.

INQUIRY IS ADJOURNED

London, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The public inquiry into the disaster of the British dirigible R-101 today heard testimony linking the ship's ill-fated flight with the imperial conference in session in London at that time.

Squadron Leader R. S. Booth, commander of Great Britain's other giant ship, R-100, expressed the belief that officers of the R-101 permitted their judgment to be biased by knowledge of the wish of Lord Thomson, air minister killed in the crash, and others that the flight to India be made while statesmen of the Empire were deliberating in London.

"If the conference had not been on," he said, "I feel confident they would have insisted on more details."

Describing a trial flight of the R-101, in which he had taken part, he said the loss of gas was "most abnormal." He said he would not have attempted a 50-hour flight in the condition she was in at that time.

He recalled that the R-100 on one of her trial flights, developed defects after 45 hours in the air and pointed out that the R-101 had only sixteen hours of trials after the alterations which preceded her start to India.

F. McWade, chief inspector at the Cardington Airport, testified that while the R-101 was riding out a storm at her mooring mast, a gas bag valve was found open.

At the close of the day's session the inquiry adjourned until December 3 to permit Sir John Simon and his two colleagues who form the court, to sift the mass of material now available.

Paper Firm Buys Chain of Dailies

Bid for South Carolina and Georgia Journals Gets Court Approval.

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Federal Judge William H. Barrett, presiding at a court sale here today, awarded the Augusta, Ga., Chronicle, the Columbia, S. C., Record, the Spartanburg, S. C., Herald, and the Spartanburg Journal to the International Paper Co. of New York. The paper company's bid for the properties, the only one received by the court, was $983,130.90.

At the same time, Judge Barrett issued a permanent injunction, restraining either Harold Hall or William Lavarre, former joint operators of the newspapers, from interfering in any way with the stock in the newspapers now held by the paper company under the decree Judge Barrett handed down today in accepting the bid.

While the price for the four newspapers was $983,130.90, the principal sum involved was $870,000, represented by a joint note signed by Hall and Lavarre on April 27, 1929, and held by the paper company. The difference between this figure and the price bid for the properties, represented the indebtedness accrued in the operation of the papers since the note was signed, attorneys said.

Brazilian Indians Killed Missionaries After Feud

Raid and Triple Murder of Americans Resulted From Bitter Enmity Between Savage Tribe and Telegraph Operators, Church Workers Say.

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Officials of the Inland South America Missionary Session surmised today that the killing of two American missionaries and the baby of one of them, in an attack in the interior of Brazil, was the result of bitter enmity between savage Nhambiquara Indians and a handful of Brazilians who tend telegraph wires at Juruena.

The only word to the union's New York office was a cablegram from John Hay at Posados, Argentina, saying he had received word from Corumba, Brazil, that the Americans were killed in an attack. Hay is general field director of the union.

He listed as dead the Rev. Arthur F. Tylee, his 2½-year-old daughter, Marian Neill, and Miss Mildred Kratz, a registered nurse, of Wheaton, Ill. He reported Mrs. Tylee, the former Ethel M. Canary, of Memphis, Tenn., seriously wounded.

A later cablegram from Albert E. W. McDowell, a British missionary who is presumed to have survived the attack, said Mrs. Tylee was recovering.

The Rev. and Mrs. Tylee sailed for Juruena for the second time in May, 1929. Just previously Mrs. Tylee delivered a lecture on the Nhambiquara Indians at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. She described them as "savage murderers" and called Juruena "the ugliest place I had ever seen in my life."

"We went there," she said, "led of God to reach a tribe of Indians, the Nhambiquaras, numbering from 10,000 to 30,000.

"A sad incident had happened a few months before. Six members of the force at the telegraph station had gone to an Indian village in search of food. They camped out overnight and were murdered by the Indians as they slept.

"From that time on it was warfare between the Brazilians and the Indians."

The Indians as described by Mrs. Tylee wore no clothing and used poisoned arrows for hunting.

"I can never forget the day I rode into Juruena," she said. "The sun was very hot, for it was noon. As I came over the brow of a little hill which slopes down to Juruena I saw four little cottages to my right and three little cottages and a larger building to my left. That is Juruena."

It is three days by mule from the nearest auto road.

CONGRESS IS MOVING ON MUSCLE SHOALS

SEEN GROWING PROBLEM

(Associated Press.)

A familiar legislative question mark, Muscle Shoals, yesterday was moved near the head of the list of problems awaiting the coming session of Congress.

Muscle Shoals legislation was deadlocked in conference last June and yesterday Senator McNary, chairman of the Senate conferees, said he would call a meeting to consider the situation on the first working day of next session. It will mean a reopening of the old discussion of the merits of Government and private operation of the Alabama power site as embodied in the bills before the conferees.

Senate May Stand Firm.

McNary said he thought the Senate would not recede from some plan of Government operation. The Senate passed the Norris bill for Government ownership and operation at the last session by a comfortable majority. The House, however, rejected that measure and passed one for private operation.

Five House conferees and three from the Senate talked for several weeks without arriving at an agreement, although several compromises were suggested.

McNary said he thought the elections showed plainly the water power question was taking shape as one of the most important to be settled. He said the elections also showed the people were thinking about the problem and had begun to register the result.

Reece Loses; Norris Wins.

Representative Reece, of Tennessee, who proposed private operation of Muscle Shoals, was beaten in the election. His attitude on Muscle Shoals was commended by President Hoover, but an Independent Republican who advocated Government operation of the plant, defeated him. Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, long a sponsor of Government operation, was reelected in that State.

Senator Fess, one of the Republican leaders, said yesterday he favored private operation of Muscle Shoals if that were possible, but would vote for Government operation before he would let the power there go to waste.

Half Brothers in Poland Claims Estate of Zuta

Chicago, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Claim that he is an heir to the estate of Jack Zuta, gang leader slain at Delafield, Wis., August 1, was filed today in behalf of Elia Szmul Zuta, of Poland. His counsel said he was a half brother.

Two principal claimants already entered in the litigation are Ike Ginsberg, of Pineville, Ky., and Hirschel Zoots, of Poland.

Oviedo, Spain, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—One woman was killed, 29 women and children were seriously injured and 60 others slightly hurt when the floor of a church at Celorio collapsed during services Sunday. Some of the most seriously injured were removed to Santander, from where word of the accident came today.

Only Lineal Descendant Of Gen. Greene Dies

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The only lineal descendant of Gen. Nathanael Greene in the South died at her home here yesterday. She was Miss Martha Washington Morel, 83, a great-granddaughter of the famous general of the Revolutionary War and was thought to have been his oldest lineal descendant in the country.

She was a great-aunt of Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, national clay courts tennis champion.

Small Dam Dynamited In San Francisco Area

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. officials said today a small wooden regulating dam on Hat Creek, a tributary of the Pit River in Shasta County, was dynamited today.

The dam held about 400 acre-feet of water and was used for regulating the flow of the water to a powerhouse. President A. F. Hackenbeamer said he had no idea as to identity of dynamiters.

Hitz Delays Smith Case Arraignment

Judge Postpones Ruling on Henry's Motion for Severance.

Arraignment of three former officials of the F. H. Smith Co., G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman, and C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., former vice presidents, was postponed yesterday until November 24, when they and Samuel J. Henry, former president, are scheduled to go on trial before Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court on charges of conspiracy to embezzle $5,000,000 of the company's funds and destroy records. The arraignment was scheduled for yesterday.

Henry was arraigned last Friday and, pleading not guilty, asked for a severance of the indictment, which means he desires a separate trial. Justice Hitz took the matter under advisement, but stated yesterday he was not prepared to make a decision.

The Government's bill of particulars is expected to be ready for delivery to defense counsel today. Justice Hitz in granting the motion of Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, Frank G. Raichle and R. H. Yeatman, counsel for Pitts, Edwards and Anadale, specified that the special assistant to Attorney General Nugent Dodds and Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw were to have the paper ready today. It was because of the granting of the request for the bill of particulars that Justice Hitz continued the trial from next Monday to Monday week.

Something new in Christmas Gifts

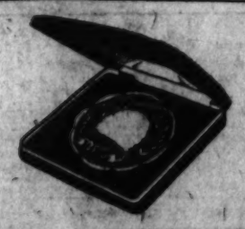
This year you'll want to give her something different from the usual things that change hands at Christmas—something that will be a personal gift, yet a gift that she wants and needs.

And now you can give her just such a gift—a Frigidaire to which is affixed a beautiful sterling silver medallion on which we will inscribe her name or any sentiment you desire. And she will remember the expression of your love years after you yourself have perhaps forgotten the motive of generosity that prompted the gift.

What a happy solution you'll find this to be! And how happy she'll be that you found it! For only a woman can appreciate all that Frigidaire means—the help it brings to the kitchen.

She'll thank you for this aristocrat of Christmas gifts a dozen times each day. She'll thank you for the marvels performed by the "Cold Control" which enables her to make scores of unusual salads and desserts—for the Hydrator which keeps vegetables fresh and full flavored until used—for the Quickube Ice Tray which releases ice cubes instantly—for the cabinet of Porcelain-on-steel which keeps its beauty through the years.

And it's so easy to give her a Frigidaire! You can purchase any model you wish on special Christmas terms—a small down payment—the balance extended over a period of months to suit your convenience. Stop in our showroom and ask for full details today.



The "Medal of Honor" Frigidaire

Here you see the beautiful sterling silver medallion or "Medal of Honor" that's affixed to the cabinet of all gift Frigidaires, at no extra charge.

Thus, to this aristocrat of Christmas gifts, we give the personal touch your jeweler achieves when he engraves a rare piece of jewelry.

This medallion may be engraved with the name of the recipient of the Frigidaire, or with the names of both recipient and donor, as shown in the picture.

Or, if you prefer, you can present the medallion alone (in a handsome velvet case) on Christmas morning and let the fortunate one select her own Frigidaire.

ARMY-NAVY ELIGIBILITY COMPROMISE COLLAPSES

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The pleasant but futile fiction that football belongs to the colleges has been pretty well refuted by the actions of the colleges themselves, and I can not see what harm can be done by admitting the customers as partners. They were invited in to support it and did so. Naturally, the game has suffered some loss in the transaction, but that was to be expected because the public has a way of commonizing all treasures of delicate beauty which are handed over to it.

That is why people, when then get rich, buy up preferred strips of seacoast as at Palm Beach, Newport and so forth, fence them off and put up signs reading "Private property; trespassers will be prosecuted."

All Kinds of People Make Up "Public."

There are all kinds of people in the public, and the average may be a little lower than the average among college students and college graduates.

My illusions as to the superiority of the college people are not as bright as they were once, but they are pretty bright still, at that, and it seems reasonable to suppose that a hundred educated people will assay better sportsmanship, ethics and politeness per head than a hundred uneducated people. If this is not so then the very expensive experiment of college education has been a wasteful failure, for the colleges are very frankly dedicated to the improvement of the breed of human beings.

Far be it from me, however, to seem to be taking a crack at the great American public, as that would be taking in altogether too much territory, so I will contend that as publics run the great American public is unusually intelligent and well behaved. It would have to be unusually intelligent to understand the great American game of football which often defies specialized minds of referees and umpires who have spent months in serious study of the rules.

Loss to Game Confined To Ideals.

For a comparison in behavior I would cite the disorders at the soccer championships in continental Europe, where within the last two years the Italian public was so sore over losing that one word more would have caused a war. Now and again the American public lets go a few rolling boos at some team or individual player in a football game, but on the whole the conduct has been excellent, and I trust that the public will be sensible of the importance of this

Jury to Get Tunney Suit Today

Mara Lawyer Paints Fighter as Deserter of Friends.

$526,812 Is Sought on Contract for Part of Purses.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—One Judge and a dozen referees, a strange array indeed for a retired heavyweight champion to face, took over tonight the question of what part of $526,812.42—if any—Gene Tunney owes Tim Mara.

Attorneys Emory R. Buckner, for the defense, and Martin W. Little, for Mara, a Broadway bookmaker who seeks more than one-quarter of Tunney's ring fortune of $2,000,000 for alleged breach of contract, summed up their cases today before Justice Peter A. Hatting in Supreme Court.

Scene Carried Back to Halcyon Days.

Once more, picking over the testimony, they carried the scene along different lines back to the halcyon days of the prize ring—when the late Tex Rickard ruled the fighters' roost, Jack Dempsey was considered the invincible heavyweight, and Gentleman Gene was just another challenger for fisticuffs' richest prize.

Buckner sought to convince the jury—which will retire to bring in a verdict tomorrow, after hearing Justice Hatting's charge—of the flimsiness of Mara's claims that he "advised, cooperated, and assisted" Tunney in getting his title shot at Dempsey in 1926. Littleton based his assumption on the written contract for 10 per cent of Tunney's purse for a Dempsey fight given Mara by the retired champion in 1926, along with two unsigned contracts for 25 per cent of Gene's future earnings if he became the titleholder.

The latter pair of contracts are bolstered by a letter from Tunney to Mara, dispatched after Mara claims he reached an oral agreement with Gene. This oral pact, he says, replaced the written documents, in which the bookmaker was told, "You may rest assured you will get 25 per cent of Gene Tanney's earnings after he becomes champion."

Mara's Claims Total $526,812.42.

Under the summations, the total sum involved in Mara's claims was set at $526,812.42 by the court. This includes the 10 per cent of Tunney's $200,000 purse for the Dempsey match in Philadelphia, September, 1926, plus $4,950 interest, and $435,000 from Gene's earnings as champion, plus $66,862.42 in interest.

Buckner insisted in his summation that Billy Gibson, at that time Tunney's manager, but working under a contract about to expire, contrived with Mara to have Gene sign all the contracts in 1926 because they included a provision for him to continue for life as Tunney's manager. Mara's attorney replied that Tunney was about to discard Gibson and make Mara his manager.

"This man," shouted Littleton, pointing to Tunney sitting smiling at the counsel table, "marched to glory over the prostrate bodies of his friends. He won the championship, increased his stature on their bodies, and when he needed them no longer he said, 'See my lawyers.'" Of course Tunney can not see now why Mara

Stribling Fights Tonight Dempsey Will Referee

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Making his first appearance in his native southland since the quick knockout victories over Otto von Porat and Phil Scott, W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon heavyweight, meets Arthur Dekuh, New York, here tomorrow night in the feature 10-round bout of an outdoor show.

The Atlanta Baseball & Amusement Corporation is promoting the match and looks for a record State crowd. In 1923 Stribling fought McTigue at Columbus before a $16,000 audience.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, will referee the main bout. Officials announced the fight would be held, rain or shine.

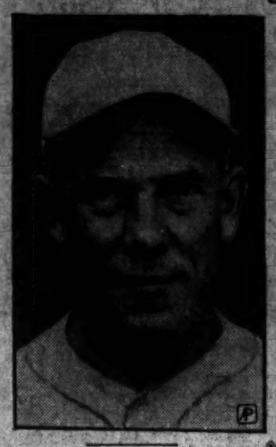
Battalino-Chocolate Sign for Title Match

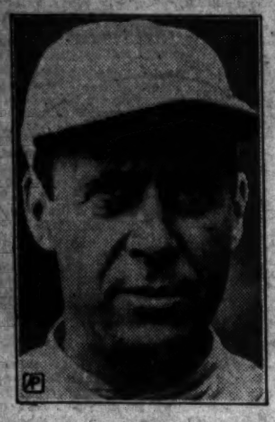
New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Bat Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., will defend his world's featherweight championship against Kid Chocolate, Cuban Flash, in a 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden, December 12. The bout will top the card for the New York American's annual Christmas fund show.

Battalino has held the 126-pound title since September, 1929, when he outpointed the champion, Andre Routis. Chocolate Long has been rated as an outstanding challenger for the crown but suffered a surprising defeat at the hands of Fidel La Barba in his last start.

The Garden announced that Labarba has been signed to meet Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., body puncher, in a 10-rounder at the Garden November 28.

Quinn and Schang Released As Macks Begin Rebuilding





Pitcher Jack Quinn (left) and Catcher Wally Schang were given their unconditional releases yesterday by the Athletics after long careers in the majors as a step in the rebuilding program of Connie Mack.

Veteran Batterymen Let Out; 3 Coast Rookies Signed.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Connie Mack, who sits pretty near the top of the baseball world with eight American League pennants and five world's championships adorning his record, has started in to reorganize and strengthen his team for the 1931 season.

The tall tutor announced today that he had given old Jack Quinn and the veteran catcher, Wally Schang, their unconditional releases and had obtained three young players from the Pacific Coast League to fill the gaps.

Release of Veterans Not Surprising.

After Mack won his fifth world's title last month at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals, he announced he would keep his team intact except for certain of the older players. Therefore, the release came as no surprise. There have been reports that others would go or be benched for younger men, but Mack says he has nothing further to announce at this time.

The three young players who will join the team are Robert L. Johnson, right-handed-hitting outfielder; Hank McDonald, right-handed pitcher, and Joe Palmisano, catcher, all of the Portland (Oreg.) Club.

Mack also announced that Nick Borelli, former Muhlenberg College star, had been released outright to the Dallas (Tex.) Club. Borrelli, a third baseman, although belonging to the As, has not been with the team the last two years.

Whether Schang and Quinn will join other major league clubs of their own choosing was not known here. Schang is said to be at his home in Missouri, while Quinn, whose home is in Chicago, is away on a gunning trip.

Hilltop Clash With N.Y.U. Puzzling

Either Club Can Win, Pregame Experting Shows.

G.U. Begins Workouts for Major Clash at Gotham.

By JACK ESPEY.

THERE are many angles from which to view the Georgetown-New York University clash, to be held Saturday in Yankee Stadium, New York City. From some of them you can see a Georgetown victory and from others a New York triumph. After taking in the entire situation one might well leave his selection of the winner to the flip of a coin.

Pointing to a Georgetown victory are these facts:

1. Fordham, which defeated New York University by one touchdown, was unable to score a touchdown against Boston College, although the Rams won by the margin of a field goal, 3 to 0.

2. Georgetown scored three touchdowns against Boston College and earned every one. Moreover, Georgetown twice penetrated the B. C. 10-yard line in the first quarter. The touchdowns did not come until after the half intermission.

3. Boston newspapermen expressed opinions that Georgetown was stronger than Fordham and that the Hilltop offense was the best seen in Boston this year, while its defense was fully as impregnable as Fordham's.

4. Georgetown has an indomitable spirit. It performed that feat rare in games between evenly matched teams of twice coming from behind to take the decision.

The Other Side of The Question.

Turning to the other side of the question, we note:

1. This is New York University's biggest home game. Chick Meehan's team is burning for revenge for two previous defeats at Georgetown's hands. It is logical to assume the Violet has stored up a lot of explosives to break the Blue and Gray spell under which it has suffered for two years in a row.

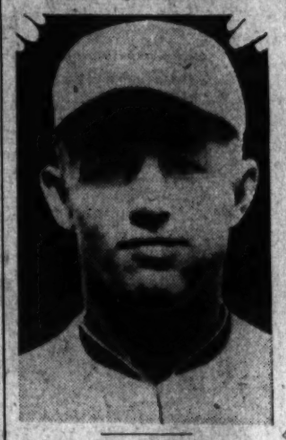
2. Georgetown's head coach, Tommy Mills, readily admits his fear of N. Y. U. Unhesitatingly he selects the Violet as the strongest of Georgetown's remaining foes, the others besides N. Y. U. being Villanova, which defeated Boston College, and Detroit, which bowed to Fordham by no greater margin than did the Violet.

3. It is seldom that a football team can enjoy the peak of its form for three successive major games. Georgetown rose to the heights against, first, Michigan State, previously unbeaten, and then Boston College. Its expenditure of nervous energy, not to mention physical strength, has been tremendous.

4. Georgetown has been scouted by the Violet in all of its games except the opener with Mt. St. Mary's. What Coach Meehan does not know about the Hilltop attack and defense, as already demonstrated, is not worth mentioning. This means that Georgetown will have to bring into use some plays that it has been saving for the occasion but on which it has had little practical drill. Consequently the execution of these plays next Saturday will be to some degree hazardous.

Georgetown yesterday began intensive preparation for the Violet with a return to practice on fundamentals. As Coach Mills was slightly ill, the two-hour session at the Hilltop was supervised by his assistants, Johnny Colrick and Clipper Smith.

Shires Weds at Courthouse When Filming "Deal" Fails



Art Shires, Washington first baseman, and his bride, Betty Greenabaum, University of Wisconsin coed, 18 years old, abandoned plans to be married at dawn before moving picture cameras and were wed yesterday in the Los Angeles County Courthouse.

Producers Refuse to Pay $1,000 for Movie Rights.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Arthur "The Great" Shires, chesty first baseman of the Washington American League Baseball Club, was married to Miss Elizabeth Greenabaum, University of Wisconsin coed, at the county courthouse today.

"Now, I've got a wife, and I'll need more money. Guess I'll have to be a hold-out next spring," the talkative Art said after Judge Hugh Crawford had performed the ceremony.

Shires is 23 and his bride 18.

The bride's mother, Mrs. A. L. Greenabaum, accompanied the couple to the courthouse. Walter Percival, film actor, was best man.

"This is just batting practice," Shires told reporters. "There will have to be a church wedding later, although I'd rather face that great pitcher, 'Lefty' Groves, than do this over again."

The couple did not reveal where they will spend their honeymoon. Shires is under contract to appear in the movies this winter.

He had announced plans for being married at dawn this morning before movie cameras at a film studio, but the arrangements were altered.

$1,000 Gift to Bride Failed to Materialize.

His movie manager, Walter Percival, explained Shires took his bride to the county courthouse because a thousand-dollar gift promised by a studio official, failed to materialize.

Percival let it be known the arrangement had been contingent upon a gift of $1,000 to the bride assertedly for being married before the studio sets.

"He (the film executive)," Percival said, "told Shires there wouldn't be any cash forthcoming—only a lot of film publicity."

So reporters and cameramen who had hung on the heels of film officials, sat on the courthouse steps several hours. Then Shires and the wedding party called for the license.

Service Game Still Topic Of Chiefs

Navy Offer Withdrawn With Settlement of Rupture in Sight.

Secretaries Willing to Consider New Basis for Play.

NEGOTIATIONS for a compromise of eligibility requirements for players necessary to a resumption of athletic relations between West Point and Annapolis have collapsed just as it seemed an agreement was reached.

Following a conference yesterday morning at the War Department, Secretary of War Hurley and Secretary of the Navy Adams issued a joint statement "that no mutual ground had as yet been found for a resumption of athletic relations between the two academies."

Navy Withdraws Offer To Compromise.

It was revealed that Army last week, on the basis of a compromise proposal by Navy, had accepted the offer to resume relations, although not entirely in favor of the agreement, but that a last-minute withdrawal of the offer by Navy balked the compromise.

Both Secretary Hurley and Secretary Adams expressed a willingness to continue consideration of the subject with the immediate objective the renewal of general athletic relations rather than a postseason game for charity this year as proposed by outside agencies. The collapse of the present negotiations was not considered final by the Army, Secretary Hurley said.

In the event that an agreement could not be reached for a game this year, any contest scheduled between the two academies for 1931 would be of a post-season nature, Secretary Hurley said, pointing out that Army had already contracted for all of the dates on its 1931 schedule.

Athletic relations between the two academies were severed by Navy after the 1927 game at New York, despite the fact that the contract between the two institutions had not yet expired. Navy took the stand that unless West Point agreed to abide by the regulation restricting its players to three years of varsity competition, as was the rule among leading colleges, the Midshipmen could not be expected to schedule games with Army.

Break Followed Eligibility Demands of Navy.

The break followed a series of defeats at the hands of Army, which, in many cases, was benefited by the services of players who had competed in varsity ranks with other colleges before entering the Military Academy, while the Navy restricted it players to three years of varsity competition, including whatever service players might have seen on other varsity teams.

Marberry and Jones Lost Series to No Club in 1930

League Pitching Records Show Only Two Teams Got Even Break With Nats' Aces; Earnshaw Failed Against Washington.

PITCHERS "Sad Sam" Jones and Fred Marberry, of the Nationals, did not lose a series to any club in the American League last season, according to records of games won and lost by the moundmen in the junior circuit. Both could do no better than to break even with two clubs, however, Chicago and Cleveland tying Jones and Chicago and Philadelphia getting an even break against Marberry.

These figures bring out a number of interesting facts, as follows:

George Earnshaw, world series iron man and hero, won six out of seven games from Cleveland but failed to break even against New York and Washington.

Bob Grove won eighteen games from Boston, Cleveland and Detroit, losing but two games to those three clubs. He won only one but lost none to New York.

Old Club Hard for Crowder.

Alvin Crowder found his old club, St. Louis, the hardest to beat, losing three out of five. Pitching for Washington, he did not lose to Boston, Cleveland nor New York, but, pitching for St. Louis, he lost one to each.

Hadley, Jones and L. Brown won twelves games from the Yankees.

Ed Wells, Yankees, found the Browns easy, winning four straight. Big Ed lost only three games, all to Washington.

Pitching for New York, Charley Ruffing won fifteen out of twenty games, winning every series except that with Philadelphia with whom he tied, two and two.

The most successful pitchers against Philadelphia were Wesley Ferrell, of Cleveland, and Urban Faber, of Chicago. Ferrell won five out of seven; Faber, three out of four.

Whitehill Not So Effective Against Nats.

Mel Harder, Cleveland youngster, took seven of his eleven victories from Boston and Chicago. Clint Brown, of the same team, won six of his eleven from St. Louis and Detroit.

Wesley Ferrell tied his series with Detroit and New York and won from the other five clubs.

Earl Whitehill won four out of four from Boston and four out of seven from Washington.

Ted Lyons won 17 of his 22 victories from Boston, Cleveland, Detroit and Washington. He lost four and won none from Philadelphia.

Frank Henry, of Chicago, who lost seventeen and won but two games, scored his victories over Cleveland and Philadelphia, acting as a relief pitcher in each instance.

MacFayden, of Boston, lost all of his games with Washington and Philadelphia, but took three straight from St. Louis and three out of four from Detroit. Lisenbee, of the same team, took four straight from Chicago, but only one out of five from St. Louis and one out of five from the Athletics.

G. U. to Play Detroit And N. Y. U. Next Year

New York University and Detroit University will appear on Georgetown's 1931 football schedule, it was learned last night. The N. Y. U. game will be held in Yankee Stadium, New York City, on Saturday, October 10. The Detroit date has not been settled, but probably will be November 28, in Detroit.

Boston College, with whom the Hilltop made a two-year agreement last year, will be met on October 31 in Boston.

For Dear Old Fordham, Rameses Actually Dies

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Give a long Fordham cheer for Rameses III. The good-natured ram which has served as mascot of Fordham's unbeaten football team was killed by dogs last night on the campus, where he was won't to roam.

Rameses was slow to anger, but when all that remained of him was found by students this morning in an out-of-the-way corner behind the tennis courts, there were unmistakable signs that the ram had met his death only after a fight well worthy of the traditions of the Fordham squad.

Hopeful that the ram's demise is not a bad omen for Fordham's success in its battle here Saturday with St. Mary's, of California, Graduate Manager Jack Coffey said a Rameses IV would begin his reign as soon as an eligible ram could be found.

Hilltop's Alumni in N. Y. Honors Mills at Banquet

Head Coach Tommy Mills, of Georgetown University, will be one of the honored guests at a banquet to be given by the New York Chapter of Georgetown Alumni Friday night in New York City. Lou Little, former Georgetown chieftain, now director of Columbia's football destinies, and Chick Meehan, New York University mentor, also are expected to attend.

Notre Dame Seen Superior To 4 Remaining Opponents

Machine Called Rockne's Greatest Team; Rated Better Than Drake, Northwestern, Army and Southern California.

By GEORGE DALEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Notre Dame has four more football games to play this season in the following order: Drake, Northwestern, West Point and Southern California. As it happens three of the four are representative of three different districts which means plenty of competition for a team which rode roughshod over Pennsylvania last Saturday to a score of 20 to 20.

Northwestern is rated the best eleven in the Western Conference, the Army ranks among the leading teams of the East and Southern California appears to stand out on the Pacific Coast even though beaten 7 to 6 earlier in the season by Washington State. Coach Howard Jones must have a team of great power and fine balance to beat Standford 41 to 12 and to bury California under a score of 74 to 0 last Saturday.

Such Coordination Rarely Seen.

Those of us who saw the four rough riders of Notre Dame in furious action against Pennsylvania will string with the fighting Irish and risk our pennies as each game comes along. Such deception in hiding the ball, such speed in getting the plays off, such devastating interference for the ball carriers, such effective assignment work and such remarkable coordination rarely have been seen. The team as it played on Saturday is unbeatable. Knute Rockne has built up his greatest football machine.

Pennsylvania needed an undertaker to look after the remains of what had been considered a football team last Saturday evening after Notre Dame had ripped it to bits. Lud Wray must begin the construction of a new one for Georgia Tech, Cornell and the Navy and should start fresh by getting out the tackling dummy. Of course, it's hard to tackle runners you can't reach, and when boxed up or bowled over the best tacklers are slightly hampered, but there were times when the Quakers missed when the runners were within reach and that made them look bad.

Penn's Ends Easily Disposed Of.

The four rough riders were around the wings so quickly that one wondered what had become of the Penn ends. They were on the field but so boxed, drawn in or taken out by the hard-charging Notre Dame forwards that they were about as useful as a couple of fence posts. Rarely has a major team looked so weak and

Figures Show Power Of Trojans and Irish

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The duel between Notre Dame and Southern California, December 6, will bring together two of the Nation's most formidable elevens.

Notre Dame's spectacular 60-to-20 victory over Penn, and Southern California's crushing 70-to-0 triumph at California's expense afford an interesting basis for comparison. What advantage there was lay with Southern California.

The Trojans, making 22 first downs, rolled up the staggering total of 763 yards gained by rushing and passes. Notre Dame, depending almost entirely on running plays, made 15 first downs and gained 586 yards.

Southern California gained 474 yards on running plays and the astonishing total of 289 yards on passes, of which the Trojans attempted 14 and completed 8. Notre Dame attempted only 4 passes and none was completed.

West Point Rejected Several Compromises

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Although West Point officials were not available for comment upon developments in Washington relative to resumption of Army-Navy gridiron relations, it was understood here the Military Academy at no time has indicated acceptance of any of several compromise proposals advanced by the Naval Academy.

From the time of the break in 1927, Army has consistently taken the stand that a contract was broken by the Navy and that it will resume relations only on an unconditional basis.

The Army, in a published summary of its side of the case, listed several compromise suggestions made by the Navy, all of which were rejected by West Point.

These proposals included:

A resumption of athletic relations based on a one-year waiver of all restrictions; adoption of the three-year varsity rule by West Point, effective for the incoming cadets only; an agreement for relations on a basis of two years under Navy rules, then two years under Army regulations, subsequently alternating; a four-year varsity eligibility rule, that is, allowance of one year's varsity experience before entering West Point.

Savoldi, Notre Dame, Admits Marriage to South Bend Girl

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Joe Savoldi, Notre Dame football star, today admitted he was a married man, but insisted he had not lived with his wife, the former Audrey Koehler, of South Bend.

"It was a mistake I realized as soon as the marriage ceremony was performed," Savoldi said, "and I will get the marriage annuled as soon as possible."

The marriage ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace April 3, 1929.

What effect the marriage will have on Savoldi's status as a student at Notre Dame was undetermined today, although the general opinion was that the university authorities would look upon it as a mistake of an impetuous youth and be lenient in view of Savoldi's statement that he would seek an annulment.

"Savoldi is just a big, good-hearted kid and made a mistake," Coach Knute Rockne said. "He told me he had not seen Miss Koehler since they were married."

Michigan Offer of Receipts Of Charity Game Accepted

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Gov. Fred W. Green today accepted the offer of University of of Michigan to give the receipts of the football game between Michigan and Chicago at Ann Arbor on November 22, to charity.

The governor, following a conversation with Fielding H. Yost, athletic director of the university, said the State of Michigan will undertake to sell 40,000 tickets to the game, at $3 apiece. He said he expected the university to sell an equal number.

The governor estimated Michigan's share of the proceeds would be $120,000, and said this sum would be apportioned to the various counties of the State in direct proportion to the number of tickets purchased in each county.

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—James H. Crowley, one of Knute Rockne's "four horsemen," now football coach at Michigan State College, is willing to cooperate in the proposed charity game between the old Notre Dame eleven and New York University.

"We would do anything for the old man," was his comment on Rockne's suggestion that the "four horsemen" and as many of the "seven mules" of the line as possible be reassembled. Crowley said that he believes the four back field men, all of them now coaches, are in as good condition as average professional football players.

LADDER CAPTURES PIMLICO HOMEBRED STAKES

Salmon Colt Ridden Out To Score

Avalon Is Second in Fastest 2-Year-Old Race of Meet.

Mynheer, Angry and Boot to Boot Long-shot Winners.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 10.—Walter J. Salmon's Ladkin—Panoply colt, Ladder, which won Saturday, came back and turned in a better race today, winning the Pimlico Homebred Stakes, feature here. Howard Bruce's Avalon was second and C. V. Whitney's Pennate third. Ladder ran the .6 furlongs in the fast time of 1:11 4-5, carrying 117 pounds, and paid $15.70. Avalon was $9.60 a place. Magnifico was scratched from the Whitney entry and Mad Career from the Salmon entry.

Some time was lost at the barrier due to the bad actor, Thais. Avalon was off in front, with Ladder second and the two drew away from the others. Aegis, the favorite, failed to show his usual speed, finishing fourth. Schaefer, after getting in front had to ride Ladder out to get the decision by a half length. The net value of the purse to the winner was $2,940.

Mynheer Leads All the Way In Opener.

The weather and the good card brought a large Monday crowd to Pimlico. The track was at its best. This race was run in the fastest time made by a 2-year-old at the meeting and equaled the time for the distance made by Balko Saturday.

W. E. Caskey's Mynheer led all the way to win the first race by a length, with Garner up. Garlic was second and Fervid third, heads apart. W. R. Coe's Bronco fell with Leishman at the eighth pole. The horse appeared to be badly injured. Leishman escaped injury. The winner paid $21.50. Mynheer got the best of the break, went into a long lead and held the rail. Garlic and Fervid were gaining in the stretch, but never seriously menacing the leadeer. The track was lightning fast.

H. Baker's Cabellsdale got a head decision over Jane Rinehart in the second race, a mile and a sixteenth. Daddy Nelson was third. The winner paid $28.40. The field of ten was off to a good start, after a delay caused by Corposant resulting in that plater being taken to the outside. Robertson sent Jane Rinehart to the front from the gate. She led to the sixteenth, with the exception of an instant on the back stretch, when Artie Kay got her head in front.

Jane Rinehart Is Passed Near Wire.

Cabellsdale moved up threateningly on the turn into the stretch and Mainsheet challenged on the outside. Watters made his run at the sixteenth and finally overhauled Jane Rinehart with the ultimate winner.

Division Farm's colt, Mucker, led all the way in winning the third race by a head, with L. Pichon up. Mrs. Olive Curtis' Swatter was second and Sun Hatter third. Ormonbird was fourth in the six-horse field, Meridian Queen being withdrawn. Mucker took the lead from the gate, saved ground at the first turn, and drew away into a long lead, but was ridden out to withstand the closing challenge of Swatter. Yankee Doodle was the contender to the far turn, but quit badly. Ormonbird failed to show expected speed. Black Patricia ran well for six furlongs. The winner was the favorite and paid $4.80.

G. L. Stryker's filly, Aziz, champion maiden, was at last graduated from the maiden class after leading all the way in the fourth race under a hustling ride by Robertson. Fifteen times during her racing career she had been in the money, but something always had happened to her to keep her from winning brackets, until she was placed today in one of the cheapest maiden races in which she had ever started. She was odds-on, paying $3.90 in a nine-horse race.

Race Is Two-Horse One All the Way.

It was a two-horse race all the way, Gun Man being the contender. She won by four lengths. Tailspin was third and Mirage fourth. She is by Trojan-Accara. It was said that Aziz would never pass another horse in a race. She did not in this.

C. V. Whitney's Angry won the Patapsco Purse by a length, sixth on the card, overhauling Irish Polly in the stretch. Montanaro was third, closing fastest of all, and probably would have won, had he escaped interference. My Sis was close to the leaders on the back field, but was pocketed in the stretch. Angry, which was ridden by the apprentice Wells, paid $24.90, the longest price hung up in many a day on a Whitney horse. My Sis was the favorite, with Pious second choice. The start was good with Angry showing keen speed all the way.

E. R. Bradley's aged horse, Boot to Boot, which was among the good stake horses as a 3-year-old, but is now competing in slower company with only indifferent success, today ran one of his good races to take the seventh event on the day's program.

Boot to Boot went to the front at the start, shook off all challengers, and won by a length and a half.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MYNHEER, $21.50, $8.90, $6.20; GARLIC, $8.90, $7.10; FERVID, $3.40.

MYNHEER drew away in the run down the back stretch, saved ground at top of home stretch and hung on well when put to a drive. GARLIC made a bold challenge at furlong pole, but hung in last sixteenth. FERVID, a forward contender all the way, was hard ridden all the last furlong to stall off RELIC. BRONCO broke down in the race and fell after being straightened out in home stretch.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:47. Off at 1:51½. Winner, H. Baker's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CABELLSDALE, $25.40, $8.40, $6.30; JANE RINEHART, $3.80, $3.10; DADDY NELSON, $6.20.

CABELLSDALE was not hurried when the leaders sprinted into a commanding lead, reached his opposition gradually and, without making a drive willingly, was up in the last sixteenth. JANE RINEHART had a lot taken out of her racing ARTIE KAY into submission, but held on determinedly. DADDY NELSON, badly messed about for six furlongs, was finally taken to the outside and finished with a belated rush. He would have been a keener factor with better handling. MAINSHEET hung after a bold move entering the home stretch. ARTIE KAY was made entirely too much use of and had nothing left when the final issue came. CORPOSANT raced very dull.

THIRD RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:20. Off at 2:20½. Winner, Diviana Stable's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUCKER, $4.80, $3.10, $2.80; SWATTER, $5.70, $5.20; SUN HATTER, $9.80.

MUCKER, possessing most early speed, took command going to the first turn, was given a breathing spell when leaving the back stretch, went to a stout drive the last furlong and just lasted. SWATTER entered contention swiftly and closed full of run. SUN HATTER, on the outside all the way, held on well. ORMONBIRD was unable to menace the leaders. YANKEE DOODLE was used up forcing the pace. BLACK PATRICIA tired.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:51. Off at 2:53. Winner, G. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AZIZ, $3.90, $2.90, $2.30; GUN MAN, $4.90, $3.40; TAIL SPIN, $4.90.

AZIZ began quickly, assumed command at once and, rated along thereafter, was never in danger, winning with much to spare. GUN MAN, kept forwardly placed, was unable to reach the winner when put to a drive. TAIL SPIN began very slowly, settled in his stride and closed stoutly. MIRAGE was hard ridden all the way and finished fast the last quarter mile. MULLAH was never a factor. UNDERCURRENT stopped badly after five furlongs.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,500 added. Pimlico Homebred Autumn. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:21. Off at 3:25. Winner, W. J. Salmon's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADDER, $15.70, $8.50, $6.50; AVALON, $9.60, $6.40; PENNATE, $2.80.

LADDER, forcing a rapid pace from the start, wore AVALON down steadily to get up in the final sixteenth. AVALON displayed high speed, saved ground the entire trip and held on stoutly. PENNATE, hard ridden all the way, was bearing out at the finish. AEGIS was unable to improve his position. THAIS faltered after a stout bid at the far turn. ST. BRIDEAUX was never a factor.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:56. Off at 3:59. Winner, C. V. Whitney's b. c. (3), by John P. Grier—Vexatious. Trained by T. J. Healey. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANGRY, $24.90, $14.20, $7.80; IRISH POLLY, $9.20, $5.40; MONTANARO, $4.20.

ANGRY, going in improved fashion and following IRISH POLLY closely, moved into command entering home stretch, began tiring near the end and had to be stoutly urged to last. IRISH POLLY had good early speed, lost some ground after being displaced and came again at the finish. MONTANARO closed stoutly after being slow to settle in his stride. FANTAD passed tiring horses. MY SIS and PIOUS stopped.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:33. Winner, E. R. Bradley's b. h. (6), by North Star III—Padula. Trained by W. Hurley. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:13 2-5, 1:39, 1:43 4-5.

LITTLE NAP	105	5	6	3nk	5d	6d	6½	7	Adams	12.85

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOOT TO BOOT, $24.00, $8.80, $5.70; OMAREEN, $9.70, $5.00; SUNVIR, $3.20.

BOOT TO BOOT, racing smartly improved, went to the front at once, was rated along under slight restraint, shook off COLOSSAL, saved ground and held OMAREEN safe. Latter, prominent throughout, met with interference when leaving the back stretch, recovered and finished with a bold rush. SUNVIR, forced wide at both turns, came with good energy under punishment. VOLTEAR, shuffled back going to the first turn, made up a lot of ground the last half mile. COLOSSAL weakened when the real test came.

Pimlico Notes

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 10.—Trainer Freddie Hopkins has shipped Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Equipoise back to the farm at Red Bank, N. J., where he will be rested for several weeks before going to winter quarters at Benning, where he will be prepped next spring.

Equipoise wound up his 2-year-old career with eight victories, five seconds and one third in sixteen starts for a money winning total of $156,835, which placed him at the head of his division. As Jamestown is also retired for the year, there is no other 2-year-old in a position to oust Equipoise from the honor of being the year's largest money winner in his division.

Miller Henderson, who handles the division of the Audley Farm now racing here, is confined to a Baltimore hospital with ear trouble. As a result, his pet dog Beaver goes about this course like one lost. Beaver shows up every morning during work hour and goes from one end of the plant to the other. Being unable to find his master, he starts back to the stable at 10 o'clock to remain there until another work day arrives.

There are 25 horses on the schooling list, the weather has grown milder and the horsemen have a better chance for schooling their bad actors.

At the conclusion of the Bowie meeting, which opens on November 17, William Milholland will ship the Brandywine Stable's horses to winter quarters in Delaware.

Tim Donohue returned from Belmont Park, where he saddled J. E. Widener's Arc Light for his second consecutive victory in the Temple Gwathmey Memorial Steeplechase, Jockey Francie Slate, of altimore, who rode Arc Light, returned today.

Word coming from Laurel, where the Nevada Stock Farm is quartered, has it that Tarpaulin, Dry Dock and Siskin are not in the best of condition.

Track Superintendent John Ryan received word today that Fletche D'Argent, which finished second in the Latonia Cup; Best Man, and Uncle Henry are now on their way here from Latonia, Ky.

Normal Kennedy was an arrival from New York with Land Boy, a candidate for the Master of Fox Hounds Steeplechase to be run on Thursday.

Gorge Ross has joined the local riding colony, coming down from New York.

Jazz Rogers, former chief rooter for the Baltimore Orioles, and Billy Ashton, former owner of the Reading Club, International League, are daily visitors.

Edward J. Brennan, of Baltimore, has been named racing secretary of the Harford Hunt meeting, to be run Saturday, November 22, over the estate of Van Duzer Burton, at Taylor, Harford County.

was of any value to him, nor can he see why Billy Gibson was any good to him."

Gibson Declared Incompetent By the Court.

Gibson, declared incompetent by the court, originally was a joint defendant with Tunney, but the action against him was dismissed for lack of evidence earlier in the trial.

Littleton charged the defense had taken three years to think up its contention that Mara gained the 10 per cent contract on the provision that he exert enough influence to bring the fight to New York and overcome the objections of the New York State Athletic Commission. It also took that much time, he insisted, and three sets of lawyers to find out that the Tunney letter substantiating the 25 per cent contracts allegedly was written because Mara threatened to halt the bout unless "cut in."

"It was the old game," Buckner countered for Tunney, "the old racket of making a sucker out of a man. Its perfectly apparent that Gibson and Mara were equally anxious to make Gene Tunney sign those contracts."

Buckner outlined the evidence offered in the telegraphic correspondence between Tunney and Rickard. These indicated Tunney and the promoter reached an agreement on the Dempsey match long before Mara's alleged oral agreement.

"Would Gene Tunney, with all this in mind," Buckner demanded, "go to Timothy J. Mara and say 'I'll give you half a million dollars if you'll help me get a match with Jack Dempsey?'"

Fort Meade Eleven Bows in Area Finals

Fort Meade, Md., Nov. 10.—The gridmen of the Carlisle Medical School trounced the Fort Meade Tanks, 28 to 13, to secure the championship of the northern division of the Third Corps Area, in a hard-fought game here Sunday afternoon.

Woods, Nowe and Roth were the stars of the Medicos, who made nearly all of the scoring gains on aerial attacks. However, the Tanks' forward wall seemed a bit weak and the visitors tallied eleven first downs against the Tanks' two. The Tanks had Siciliano, Miller and Krosulak for their luminaries, with the latter tearing off a long run to hang up a tally just before the final whistle blew.

NOTRE DAME SEEN AS CHAMPION AGAIN

wobbly, both offensively and defensively.

Notre Dame does not use the huddle. The field general crouches down under the center in giving signals and then moves away for the backfield shift to one side or the other. The running attack gets away from a balanced line and the shift carries no momentum. The players come to what seems like a two-second stop, but the timing is perfection. No effort is made to beat the latest rule on shift plays. No doubt the weakness of Penn magnified the strength of the Notre Dame attack but let this also sink in—the power, smoothness and precision of the Notre Dame offense magnified the weaknesses of Penn.

Rockne Rebuilt New Rush Line.

The wonder of the Ramblers grows when it is recalled that Rockne lost practically his full front wall of last season and had to build a new one. He also lost two fine backs. The unbeaten team of this season is quite different in make-up from the unbeaten team of last year. Incidentally, only two men will be lost to the forward wall this fall. Capt. Conley, a brilliant end, and Kassis, at one guard. Four of the seven are sophomores, including Bert Metzger, already a guard of the first rank. He weighs only 155 pounds, but is rugged and speedy. The way he came out of the line to help in the interference against Penn was a revelation.

When the four Rough Riders are in action three are dependable ball carriers. Carideo can run with the ball also, but against Penns took it only once himself in a quick shot through the center for one of the nine touchdowns. Notre Dame does not have a one-man offensive ace, as is the case with so many teams. It has a four-man back field working as one.

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Pimlico Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 10.—Good weather and a fast track seems in store for the running of the Bowie Handicap, $10,000 added, at 1½ miles, which features another splendid card at Pimlico. The king of the handicap division, SUN BEAU, carrying the colors of Willis Sharpe Kilmer, looks like the logical winner. It is the dream of Mr. Kilmer to see SUN BEAU displace Gallant Fox as the foremost money winner of the world, and the Sun Briar horse is now above the $200,000 mark.

After SUN BEAU finishes his stake engagements in Maryland, it is the plan to start him in the New Orleans Handicap at New Orleans, and make this trip the first stop on his way to Agua Calliente for the $100,000 Agua Caliente Handicap, and should the Kilmer plans work out that way, SUN BEAU would be the top winner of all time. SUN BEAU will carry 130 pounds in the Bowie, four more than he had on his back when he so easily won the Washington Handicap at Laurel on November 1.

Capt. Rai Parr, of Baltimore, seems to have the contender in his grand filly, HER GRACE. This mare ran second to Spinach in the Riggs, at a mile and a half, on opening day at Pimlico. Taking up only two pounds, a total of 113, she will not be bothered with impost, and she closed very fast in that race to displace Erin as the contender. The mare has won seven races out of fifteen, and has been out of the money but twice, and in one of these she fell. At the distance, YARN, may cut quite a figure, and is tabbed for third over DR. FREELAND, HOT TODDY and PETER WRACK also are to be considered.

FIRST RACE—Two-year-old maidens start in the first race. This should be easy for Mrs. Herte's GUIDE LEFT. He was beaten a head at Laurel by Brains, and Mine Sweeper was third. That race repeated will win this. WESTKO, second to Batty at Aqueduct, appears to be the contender. YARROW, third last out to Backwoodsman, should be in the money. The field is a large one. GREEN LIGHT might cut a figure. FLAMMA is a bad post actor, but has a chance.

CENTRAL FACES EASTERN TODAY MINUS PINCKNEY

Ankle Injury To Keep Ace On Bench

Rauber Team, Aiming to Clinch 2d Place, Is Favorite.

Eastern Win Would Revive Interest in Series.

SERIES STANDING

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Tech	1	0	0	1.000
Eastern	1	0	1	1.000
Central	1	1	0	.500
Western	0	1	0	.000
Business	0	1	0	.000

GAME TODAY.

Central vs. Eastern at Central Stadium, 2:45.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

FOR the first time in two years of interhigh competition Central will enter a game today without the services of Larry Pinckney, full back. The big Blue and White back is temporarily laid up with a twisted ankle, received in the game against Business last week.

Pinkney's ailment became apparent in the third quarter of the Business game when he sought the sidelines for aid in fixing a loosened padding in his uniform. Coach Rauber sent in George King to replace Pinckney for the moment, but it was not until the big back was again called for service that the bad ankle was discovered.

Pinckney's "iron manning" has covered a period of four years, having played in every game during his two years at Gonzaga.

Central Seeks Second Place Today.

Central makes its final appearance in the high school series today when Eastern is tackled in a game which should go a long way toward clearing up the question of which team will gain the runner-up post in the league ratings.

Central's appearances in the series to date have not been eminent. Western was beaten 14-7 and Business licked 24-0. The Blue and White lost to Tech by an 18-0 count. Besides Coach Rauber's inability to find a worthy line, Central has been dogged with wholesale injuries and has been recently hit by scholastic difficulties. The team has wobbled through a season made distinguishable only by the yeoman service of Ed DeLisio, Pickney, and until he was injured, Paul Hinkel. But even with the loss of men, Central is easily the second best team in the circuit, and is favored to exhibit that today.

Rauber Plans No Changes.

Coach Rauber will use the same team he played against Business a week ago, a squad made up of the best reserve material, with DeLisio the only regular in the backfield. Henry Gibbons, who has recently become eligible, is an acquisition to the squad, being a good kicker, an ambitious tackler and a good influence to a team which does not seem always to be fighting its hardest.

Eastern in its two appearances in the series to date has managed to beat Business and tie Western for an average equal to that of Tech, but there is little doubt that Coach Kelley's young men are equal to Coach Hardell's team only in point of statistics.

Only the barest outside chance exists that Eastern will hold second place, until the end of the series. Today it faces Central, and a week from today engages Tech itself. An Eastern victory today might give great interest to the battle a week from today, but that is hardly likely to occur.

Eastern Has Shown No Offensive.

Eastern, while a greatly improved club since the start of the series, possesses little or no offensive drive. Defensively it is sound enough with Shorb, McAboy and Campbell holding together a stiff line, but Wells and Corridon, the two best ball carriers on the team, have not improved along with the line.

Charlie Mades, the only Lincoln Parker who saw service during the 1929 series, is out for the season because of a badly twisted foot received in scrimmaging yesterday. His tackle post will be filled by Carl Sansbury, a young heavyweight whom Coach Kelley gained by the recent publication of scholastic marks.

Georgia in "Make or Break" Tilt With Tulane Saturday

Bulldogs Show Result of Road Trips and Play on Foreign Fields as "Big" Game Nears; Vanderbilt-Tennessee Clash.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—After their long train ride from New York, Georgia's Bulldogs returned to Athens today with a 7-to-6 victory over the Violets of New York University. The triumph rated Georgia as the only Southern Conference team to stage double victories over major Eastern opponents. However, Duke downed both the Navy and Villanova.

Since their home-coming tilt with North Carolina a month ago, Georgia has been a road club. First it was an all-night trip to Columbus, Ga., to meet Auburn, then another train trip to Savannah to play Florida and last week a third long journey to Gotham for the New York University engagement.

Road Trips, Foreign Fields Strain on Bulldogs.

Coach Harry Mehre admits the strain of these trips and of playing on foreign fields has taken something out of his players, and is doubtful if they will be at top form to face Tulane in the make-or-break skirmish this week. With only two days of real practice, the Georgians must board another train for the long ride to New Orleans.

Notwithstanding reports that Georgia will be weakened by these series of long trips and hard games, Coach Bernie Bierman, of Tulane, plans to take no chances and has a full week of work outlined for his Greenies.

Wallace Wade probably will allow his Alabama Crimson Giants to slow down their training activities somewhat this week for the Louisiana State game Saturday. Wade has had to push his men to the limit in preparation for Tennessee, Vanderbilt, Kentucky and Florida, and with the Georgia game Thanksgiving, Wade realizes the players need to relax for a few days before starting the tough grind again for Georgia.

Although both teams are out of the running for the Conference title, the annual State clash between Vanderbilt and Tennessee will be overshadowed only by Tulane's engagement with Georgia.

Tennessee Coach and Stars Scout Vanderbilt.

While the reserves were trouncing Carson-Newman last week, Coach Bob Neyland and a half dozen of his star players were in the stands in Atlanta scouting Vanderbilt in its meeting with Georgia Tech.

Clemson apparently found its lost scoring power against V. M. I., Saturday and will be set to give Florida a hard tussle in Jacksonville. Defeated by Alabama, Florida hopes to finish its slate with victories over Clemson, Georgia Tech and Tennessee.

Tonight a bench show was given, which was largely attended.

Newport News Soccer Team Affiliates With Local Group

Virginians Enter Team in Cup Tie Tourney; Other Clubs Expected to Follow; Washington S. L. Meets Tonight.

AT least part of a goal long set by Washington soccer officials has been reached. The Newport News, Va., Soccer Association has entered the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association cup tournament and at the same time affiliated with the local governing body.

Pollock, manager of the team, submitted his entries for the cup and affiliation with the fee covering the same yesterday. Mr. Pollock stated that there are two other clubs in the vicinity, which no doubt will enter the local elimination tournament, namely, the Langley Air Field Squadron and the Ocean View Club. A fourth team now being organized is a possible entry in the Washington games.

Club Plays Night Games.

Pollock stated that his club plays Saturday afternoon, Saturday night and Sunday afternoons and is seeking games with local clubs. The Saturday night games, under lights similar to those at Griffith Stadium, appears to particularly appeal to local teams. Pollock can be reached at 216 Palen avenue, Hilton Village, Va.

Since the United States Football Association granted Washington a charter in 1927, covering the District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, local officials have been endeavoring to interest the State teams in forming leagues. The entry of the Newport News Club is a direct result of these negotiations.

Matches to Start In December.

The local cup matches will start early in December and drawings will be made at the association meeting next Tuesday night. This body will not gather this evening, but the Washington Soccer League will hold its weekly meeting in room 2, District Building. At least three of the W. S. L. teams are expected to enter the cup games.

Minnesota Prepares For Michigan Contest

Minneapolis, Nov. 10(A.P.).—All hands were present today as Minnesota began polishing up for its game at Michigan Saturday. Always great rivals, the Gophers are particularly anxious to trip the Wolverines Saturday. Victory would more than square up for earlier defeats. Dilmer and Kresowski, ends, and Ken MacDougal, back, returned, having recovered from injuries and illness.

game for 30 years, first attracting attention when playing with Connellsville, Pa., in 1901. He is one of the few spitballers left in the major leagues. Jack played with many clubs before he came to the A's in 1925. He was a source of strength to Connie Mack in building up his teams to world's championship caliber. Last year Jack, who only smiles when asked his age, did not do so well and Mack decided to make room for a younger man.

Wally Schang broke into baseball fame on the Athletics, having been the catcher for that famous trio of hurlers, Plank, Bender and Coombs. He was let go in a trade years ago and came back to the A's last year. He was used mostly for coaching young players.

The three players that come to the A's from the Portland Club are said to be of major league caliber. Johnson, who is a right-hander and lives in Tacoma, Wash., is a brother of Roy Johnson, of the Detroit Tigers. His season's batting average, it was said at Shibe Park, was not very impressive, but in the last three weeks of the season on the coast he is said to have hit the ball hard.

Pitcher McDonald's home is in Santa Monica, Calif. He is 6 feet 4 inches tall and is said to be promising. Catcher Palmisano's home is in Oakland, Calif.

Lightning Bolt Winner In Feature at Latonia

Latonia, Ky., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The Greentree Stable's Lightning Bolt, in a driving finish in a heavy drizzle, captured the Sedamsville Purse, the featured number on today's program. It brought together some of the best 2-year-olds in training here, some of which were eligibles for the Queen City Handicap to be run Saturday. Black Comet, from C. C. Van Meter's stable, was a close-up second, with C. B. Hamilton's Sun Mask third. Nine juveniles started.

The Sedamsville Purse was an allowance affair for 2-year-olds over the 6-furlong sprint distance and was worth $900 to the winner. He covered the distance in 1:13 flat and paid off at $7.80 to $2 in the mutuels.

Lightning Bolt suffered from crowding shortly after the start, worked his way up consideably to the stretch, where, closing strong, he was up to win in a hard drive by a neck. Black Comet, always closest to the pace, could not withstand the Wrack colt when he shot out near the end and was second by a length and a half. Sun Mask set the pace to the stretch drive, where he weakened, but held on to take third money.

Mid-South Pro Golf Play Starts Today

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Golf's touring professionals who swing to the South and its money tournaments during the winter months were assembled here tonight for the mid-South open.

Divided into two events, the mid-South carries $2,500 in prize money. The first of the events is a 36-hole best ball match tomorrow for which the winning pair will draw $600. Tomorrow's play will be followed by a 36-hole open Wednesday with $400 top prize.

The entry list totalled 90 tonight, including every winner of the national open for the past ten years except Bobby Jones, Atlanta amateur.

Philly Hockeyists Make League Debut

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—A new national hockey league season, the fifth since the circuit reached its present size, will open tomorrow, bringing perhaps more changes than any year since the 1926-27 season.

The first new club since that year, the Philadelphia Quakers, will make its bow in one of the three opening night games. The Quakers, who replaced the Pittsburgh Pirates and took over most of the playing talent from that club, open at home against the New York Rangers. At Boston, the Bruins, runners up for the world championship last spring, meet the revamped New York Americans, and the Montreal Maroons play at Ottawa.

The New Philadelphia team merely brigs a change of Benny Leonard's hitherto unprofitable franchise to a new location where Leonard has hopes of producing a championship contender. Cooper Smeaton, former referee-in-chief of the league, has been engaged as manager. Another change is the name of the Detroit club from the Cougars to the more easily pronounced title, The Falcons.

Auburn Captains Seek Honors on Grid Team

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The lure of football got the captains of three of the four major sports at Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

The trio of leaders, who are on Coach Chet Wynne's varsity squad, are: Dunham Harkins, football captain; Frock Pate, leader of the baseball team, and Ralph Jordan, captain of the cage quintet.

COAL PRIZE OFFERED.

A ton of coal is being offered by the management of the Mount Rainier Bowling Alleys for the highest games rolled on those drives from November 8 to December 8, inclusive. Regular league games will not count. The prize is open to both men and women.

G. W. DEFEAT NOW GOAL OF C. U.

Cards Likely to Save Themselves Against Manhattan.

WHILE its immediate objective is the Manhattan game scheduled Saturday in New York City, the Catholic University eleven is giving plenty of thought to its annual battle with George Washington listed for Friday night, November 21, in Griffith Stadium. Having finally discarded its losing ways by swamping American University, 60-0, last Saturday, the Brookland outfit views its future optimistically.

There is a chance yet for Catholic to make its season a success; that is, from its own viewpoint. If it can defeat George Washington, which on paper looks to be several touchdowns stronger, then Coach Dutch Bergman's crew will feel it has been well rewarded for three months of hard, mostly unpleasant toil.

That Catholic probably is more concerned right now about the G. W. fray than about the Manhattan game seems evidenced in the fact that no C. U. scout has been assigned to any of Manhattan's games while the entire coaching staff has been closely watching the Colonials.

Bergman and Assistants Saw Colonials.

Head Coach Bergman and Assistant Coach Lou Gross were box-seat spectators at the George Washington-New York Aggies game last Friday night. Previously they had scouted the Colonials in their contest with South Dakota. Again next Saturday one of the Brookland "eyes" will be fastened on G. W. when it engages Albright at Reading, Pa.

If there has been any feeling of despair at Catholic regarding the possibilities of defeating George Washington, there is no trace of it now, what with the decisive defeat of American and the return to form of several valuable players who had been injured. It is altogether likely that the Cardinals on the day of the G. W. meeting will be spouting confidence.

So well known is Catholic's desire to continue its past mastery of G. W. elevens that in some quarters it is suspected that the Cardinals will not go beyond taking the Manhattan contest in stride, or in other words, that they will not sacrifice any chances they have of beating G. W. by breaking their necks to down Manhattan.

Manhattan Stronger Than A. U.

Manhattan should prove stronger by far than American did but not as strong as any other earlier C. U. foe with the possible exception of Loyola, of Baltimore. The New York team has lost two games and tied one in six starts and has no especially creditable victory to point to. It has defeated Seton Hall, 21-0; Rensselaer, 18-7, and Baltimore U., 52-0. Defeats were received from Rider, 14-7, and Oglethorpe, 19-0. City College, of New York, was tied, 6-6.

Catholic U. Freshmen Play Training School

Safely home on the short end of a 20-0 defeat by St. John's freshman eleven, Catholic University's rookies will meet the surprising team from the National Training School today on the field the Training School boys built on Bladensburg road. The game commences at 3 o'clock.

Past performances and experience favor the Cardinals. In the only relative scoring tests Catholic and Devitt played a 6-6 tie and Devitt beat the Training School, 6-0.

Coach La Fond was pleased with the work of his line in the St. John's rout and expects that it will thwart the assaults of the alleged incorrigibles today. But Catholic's back field has been a source of worry all season. Tom Campbell, Frank Lauer and Charlie McVean, all regular backs, are out for an indefinite period because of injuries. Their places will be taken by John Jankowski, quarter back; Dan Pyne, a made-over end at the full-back post, and Bob McVean, at half. The other half will be named before the game.

Dr. Parshall Likely To Set New Record

The Ohio teamster, Dr. H. M. Parshall, undoubtedly will set a new record for winning races this year, for his total victories for the year is near 70 and he is now continuing his campaign over the half-mile tracks in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Starting in May at the Urbana (Ohio) meeting, Parshall scored eight victories out of twelve of the races on the program, to open the season, and his stable continued successfully throughout the season.

Among the stars of his stable this year were Legality, 3, 2:02; Counterpart, 2:02¼; Miss Marian Toddler, 2:03¾; Bin Direct, 2:05¼, and others who won consistently for him.

A large part of Parshall's campaign was conducted over the half-mile tracks, but members of his stable performed impressively whenever they matched odds with the stars at some of the grand circuit meetings this year.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Nov. 10.—The St. Mary's Lyceum Basket Ball Team will hold an important meeting at Lyceum Hall on Prince street at 7:30 o'clock, Tuesday night. All players are requested to attend. The Lyceums plan to begin their court season the first of December.

The proposed Alpha Delta Omega football game for Armistice Day, November 11, with either Emerson Institute or the National Training School teams, of Washington, has fallen through.

"Doc" Piddesop, Celts trainer, returned to the gridiron game Sunday when the Virginians met the Frederick Pros. Piddesop played a guard position. This was his first game in 11 years. He formerly performed with the old Mercury A. C. of Washington.

Jeff Williams, former Alexandria High School gridder, is performing as a wing for the Hargrave Military Academy team. He scored his first touchdown in last week's game against Randolph-Macon Academy.

Gerard Edwards, Alexandria ball player, is organizing a bowling team to take part in matches this week. Edwards has signed several leading bowlers.

PERHAPS you doubted me yesterday when I pictured a candle fired through a pole. One would think a candle would squash itself first. But even a straw can be driven into a tree trunk! That's if there is enough velocity behind it—the velocity of a tornado for instance. It's the velocity that does it. Velocity can be a stronger force than the resistance of wood, no matter what the driven object may be. A waterspout at Calcutta once drove a bamboo cane through a 6-foot, brick-covered wall.

In yesterday's drawing there was also pictured the largest natural arch. It's in Utah and the Indians believed, because of its shape, it represented the rainbow. They also believed that if you passed under it you couldn't safely return unless you uttered a certain prayer. The arch stands 308 feet high, 278 feet long—larger than any masonry arch built by man.

If there's anything in today's picture you want to know more about, ready my story tomorrow.

VA. GROOMING PASSES FOR W. & L.

Cavaliers Expecting Hard Fight From Generals.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 10. Virginia's Cavaliers are getting down to the intense work of preparing for the contest with Washington and Lee next Saturday afternoon on Lambeth Field, the "Big Home Game" of the 1930 schedule.

Coach Earl Abell and his boys are not one bit fooled by the none-too-impressive showing made by the Generals against Maryland in College Park. They recollect seeing some of the W. and L. crack players watching them in the game against V. P. I. on Miles Field last Saturday.

Consequently they are preparing for as stiff a struggle as they have had this season. The Generals haven't been able to gain a victory in the last four games, and for just this reason they'll be all the more difficult to defeat this fall.

Virginians Escaped Serious Injuries.

Aside from stiff joints and bruised muscles, the Virginians came out of the Tech game little the worse for wear. Most of the men will be in condition by tomorrow, or Wednesday at the latest, and Coach Abell will probably find it possible to start much the same team against W. and L. as faced V. P. I. at the kickoff.

Virginia's passing attack worked well against the Gobblers. Statistics of the Blacksburg affair show an average gain of a fraction more than 12 yards for each time the Cavalier backs, Thomas or Sippley or Sackett or Bryant or Pinder, undertook to throw the ball through the air. One pass, Thomas to Bryant, yielded a touchdown.

Gus Tebell, assistant coach in charge of back-field play, will doubtless continue to stress the air route during the remainder of the week. For several seasons the Cavaliers have found the Generals' defenses vulnerable to aerial attack, and they hope to make the passes effective again this week-end.

Dixie Loop May Add To Its Membership

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, world's largest athletic conference, probably will admit two new members and bring its roll to 35 at the annual meeting in December.

At last year's meeting applications were received from the Mississippi State Teachers College, of Hattiesburg, Miss., and the Murray State Normal School and Teachers College, of Murray, Ky.

These schools were placed on a year's probation and in all probability will be admitted this year.

Both schols have played a number of football and other games with nearby S. I. A. A. schools in their section.

As present there are 33 members of the association—eight in Kentucky, six each in Louisiana and South Carolina, four in Florida, three in Tennessee and Alabama, two in Mississippi and one in Georgia. Thirty-one of the schools have football teams.

CAGERS WANT GAMES.

The University Shop 100-pound cagers desire to book games with other quintettes in their weight class. Manager Sol Emanuel's phone number is Adams 8433-W. The team will practice tonight at 7:15 o'clock in the Boys' Club Gym.

Buffalo Withdraws Intercity Ring Entry

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Buffalo's team of boxers has withdrawn from the big intercity amateur tournament to be held in Madison Square Garden Monday, November 24, and Wednesday, November 26, it was announced today by the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union. The Buffalo association announced it could not send its representatives down in the best of condition and preferred to withdraw its entry.

Buffalo's withdrawal leaves seven cities represented in the tournament —Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Montreal and New York.

NAVY PRIMES FOR EXANS' INVASION

Scrubs Demonstrate Aerial Attack of Sou. Methodist.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 10.—Disappointed but not disheartened at their crushing defeat by Ohio State, Navy gridders settled down today to prepare for another big obstacle. They will play host to Southern Methodist in Baltimore Stadium on Saturday and in consequence there will be no let up in stiff practice sessions.

The usual Monday respite from work did not prevail today. Instead the regulars lined up for a part scrimmage session against the shock troops of squad B. The Texas Mustangs are heralded as great exponents of the overhead game, hence today's program was defensive work against the Texas style of attack through the air, scrubs going through plays based upon what scouts gathered from the game played by the Methodists against Notre Dame early in the season.

Tschirgi Only Casual.

Except for a slight injury to Joe Tschirgi, one of the best of back-field men, the Middies came out of the gam with the Buckeyes in good shape, and physically they should be in good trim for the Texas invaders. But there is room for decided improvement in offensive and defensive work of the varsity.

The Buckeyes, led by their smart captain, Wes Fesler, hammered through all points of the Navy line in a manner that no other team has done this season, stellar work of the second line defense at stages stopping a number of advances.

Over on the St. John's College campus Coach Tody Riggs began a hard driv with his charges to get them in fine shape for their old rivals of Johns Hopkins. These teams will clash Friday night on Homewood Field, Baltimore.

G. U. Plans Excursion To New York U. Game

Georgetown authorities are conducting a special excursion for the New oYrk University game in New York next Saturday. The party will leave Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock over the Pennsylvania Railroad, returning Sunday evening. About 1,000 students and alumni are expected to make the trip. Low-rate excursion tickets are on sale at the Hilltop and at A. G. Spaulding's.

SAKS CLOTHIERS DRILL.

The Saks Clothiers Basket Ball Team, formerly the De Luxe A. C., will hold its first drill tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the Boys Club Gymnasium. The Saks courtmen will enter the unlimited division of the Boys Club League. Willis Fisher has been elected captain for the year.

V. P. I. MAKES READY FOR MARYLAND

Gobblers Escaped Injuries in Virginia Contest.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 10.—V. P. I.'s squad faced toward Norfolk today and sketched its plans for the annual Tidewater game with the University of Maryland. While gridders were warming up for their drive at the Old Liners, the V. P. I. cadet corps was just as busy getting ready for their semiannual invasion of the Tidewater city.

The Techmen looked back on the Virginia game today and found that they had few scars to show for the impressive homecoming victory. Red Jones, Gene Hite and Capt. Bird Hooper went light on rough work, but all three were in uniform and will be ready tomorrow for a full share in the training grind. Like the coaches and every member of the squad, they will be working with but one idea, to maintain the driving pace with which they swept the Cavaliers aside in the final half.

Because V. P. I. was so long unleashing the pent-up force of its attack, the players are confident that the Polytech machine will still be in high gear when it faces the brilliant touchdown-makers of Curly Byrd.

Gobbler Line Showed Improvement.

While the new back field of Capt. Hooper, Hardwick, Owens and Howard scintillated in shining individual performances, the Polytech coaches credited a large share of the win over Virginia to improved work of the Cobbler linemen. Time after time the forwards opened gaps for the backs and pushed the Cavalier line back toward its goal. But the Gobblers know that the homecoming triumph will be an empty echo unless they can maintain the pace and all efforts will seek to keep the drive going this week.

Bill Grinus, Phil Spear and Early Dyke will be ready for duty when Tech faces the powerful Maryland eleven but it will be mighty hard for any of them to break into the lineup as long as Mark Ritter, Sam Hardwick and Red Jones play the type of ball they showed against Virginia. Hardwick raced around the ends and off the tackles for consistent gains and Ritter was one of the big reasons for it.

Jones Played Star Role in Line.

Red Jones, six foot guard from Gloucester Courthouse, was the driving force of the Tech line, and is sure to get another chance at the Old Liners this week. Henry Redd, director of freshman athletics, is authority for the statement that "Red Jones last Saturday was the greatest guard that ever played in Miles Stadium." Helmetless, his fiery red hair became a by-word in the stands. When Hooper kicked off after the fourth Tech touchdown, Jones fought his way through a solid phalanx of Cavalier players to down Bryant with the ball on Virginia's 25-yard line.

If the Tech forwards can play this brand of ball at Norfolk this week they will battle the Maryland scoring aces on even terms.

PREPS IN MEETING.

Coach Wondrack will give out several new plays tonight at a meeting of the Northern Preps which will be held at the home of Manager Ted Otte, 5213 Georgie avenue.

TUDOR, NEW ALCOVA COACH.

Don Tudor, former Clarendon Lyons player, has been appointed coach of the Alcova Motor Co. eleven. The Alcovas will practice Thursday night at 8 o'clock on the Fire Department Field.

HEAVY WORK SCHEDULED FOR G. W.

3 Scrimmages on Program Before Clash With Albright.

SCRIMMAGE today, tomorrow and Thursday is the program for George Washington's Colonials, who meet the strong Albright eleven Saturday afternoon in Reading, Pa. Coaches Pixlee and Walsh, who scouted the Pennsylvanians as they defeated Davis-Elkins last Saturday, reported yesterday that Albright is fully as powerful as Tulsa, which defeated G. W. by one touchdown.

Despite the weak opposition encountered in the New York Aggies last Friday night, the Colonials did not escape without injuries. Bill Wells, star quarter back, and Lee Carlin and Joe Carter, half backs, all suffered ailments which prevented them from practicing yesterday.

The Colonial outlook is not as bright as it might be on account of these injuries. In addition to the three mentioned, Buga Bagranoff, 205-pound guard, and Fred Mulvey, promising end, are complaining of shoulder injuries received in the Tulsa game. It is doubtful that they will be able to perform against Albright. The others are expected to return to action within a day or two.

Walter Slaird, husky tackle, who was injured before the season opened, reported in uniform yesterday and immediately aroused hope that he would be ready to see service in the forthcoming game. He was regarded the best lineaman in the squad during the preseason training.

Seaton Hackney Holds Lead in Horse Show

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Two famous stables from opposite shores of the United States continued their battle for blue ribbon supremacy at the National Horse Show today as the Seaton Hackney Farms, of Morristown, N. J., brought its total to eleven and Mrs. W. P. Roth, of Redwood City, Calif., accounted for her seventh.

Taking advantage of the few remaining opportunities for high-gaited harness horses to score, the Seaton Hackney Farm sent out its great undefeated stallion, Seaton Pippin, to win the first leg on the Garvan Challenge Cup for Hackney stallions, mares or geldings, 15 hands or over and bred in America.

Mrs. Roth relied on the consistent Spirit of St. Louis to keep her "Why Worry" colors in the midst of the battle with the Eastern stable. The beautiful chestnut gelding stepped into the Tanbark with the class of the three-gaited saddle horses, over 14.2 and not exceeding 15 hands, but easily departed with his third victory of the show. The Pacific Coast stable also picked up one third with Glory of Spring in the class for saddle horses over 15.2. Mrs. Roth was astride both of her horses.

St. Johns and Gonzaga To Play on Saturday

The annual game between St. John's and Gonzaga, scheduled to be played Friday afternoon, has been postponed until Saturday, according to an announcement from Gonzaga College High. The tilt will start at 2:30 o'clock at either Central Stadium or Griffith Park.

Gonzaga disbanded practice yesterday because of the death of the father of Ed Banjamin, regular end.

Today practice in earnest starts for Saturday's game. It is expected that among those reporting will be Ernest Vlau. Mitchell's pile driving full back, who has been out for injuries since the LaSalle game.

Another scholastic grid game postponed is the St. Alban's-Baltimore Friends tussle, scheduled for St. Alban's Field Friday afternoon. The game will be played a week from today at Baltimore.

STOCK QUOTATIONS SLUMP, THEN RALLY

Market, However, Averages Nearly Three Points Lower at Close.

4,426,250 SHARES SOLD

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—With the largest turnover in a month, stocks extended their declines today. Bonds and commodities accompanied them downward.

Late covering by professional shorts reduced the extreme losses of 1 to 10 points in share prices and a few issues squeezed out of the active trading with small plus signs. However, the market averaged nearly three points lower at the close. Sales totaled 4,426,250 shares, the heaviest volume since the 6,000,000-share day on October 10.

Wheat, breaking 4 cents a bushel to the lowest prices in 24 years, was a feature of the generally gloomy day in financial circles. This wide decline was based partly on bearish crop news and partly on the weakness of the security markets. Corn's losses were smaller, averaging about a cent, but cotton lost $1.45 to $1.70 a bale net.

Bonds Sold to Protect Shares.

The bond market dropped to a new low for the year, as measured in the composite price of 30 issues. Only a few of the highest grade issues held up under the selling that obviously represented liquidation to protect commitments in stocks.

Opinion in conservative banking circles was that pessimism was being overdone and that bearishness was running to extremes comparable to the excesses witnessed during the bullish ballyhoo last year. Most of the leading commission houses had expected a fair rally today on the theory that a technical recovery was overdue. The market did move upward during the first hour, but when pressure began to pinch the rails and utilities selling was resumed throughout the list and the trading became brisk. A climax was reached early in the afternoon after new lows had been recorded and the pace slackened appreciably. Most of the turnover was in the first three hours.

The uncomfortable position of the oil industry was brought out from two or three angles. Receivers were appointed for one small company and for a royalty concern, but a more somber note was sounded at the meeting of the Royal Dutch shareholders, who were told that the situation had not improved and that predictions for the immediate future could not be made in view of the withdrawal of the American import price schedule, an action generally interpreted as a step toward a large-scale price war abroad.

Several Oil Issues Lose.

Oil stocks were in marked disfavor. Standard of New Jersey broke to 49 after a stubborn fight just above the famous support level of 50. Phillips, Royal Dutch and Texas Corp., were weak and made scant recovery.

U. S. Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage report for October showed a gain of 57,425 tons, which was better than had been expected. Perhaps of more importance, however, was the announcement by a steel corporation subsidiary of a minimum price for bars, plates and shapes. Leaders of the industry have insisted that the establishment of minimum quotations was a prime necessity at this time, and today's stand was the first important development along that line.

It was another hard day for the high priced rails, most of which sold 6 to 10 points lower before the declines were reduced. Nevertheless, a rail—Central of New Jersey—had the distinction of being the only active stock to remain in the 200 points group, which at the height of the bull market had some two score members.

American Phone Off 1¾.

Liquidation in the utilities went forward vigorously, and stocks like North American, American Water Works and Public Service of New Jersey retained 3 to 4 points of larger extreme losses. American Telephone made a new low at 184⅜, where it was off more than 3 points, and closed 1⅝ down.

U. S. Steel, after touching 138, closed at 140, a loss of only half a point. General Electric, General Motors and Westinghouse were off a point or less at the finish, but National Biscuit, Liggett & Myers and American Tobacco "B" showed losses of 3 to 5. American Can, Eastman Kodak, Kennecott, Vanadium, Stone & Webster and Coca Cola closed moderately higher. Specialties were mostly weak.

Foreign exchanges ruled irregular and dull. The French franc was firm.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Cotton was lower today under liquidation or reselling by recent buyers who appeared to be influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables and the weakness of the domestic grain and stock markets.

Arch contracts, which had sold up to 11.63 right after the publication of the Government crop report on Saturday, broke to 11.16 during today's trading, making a net decline of 34 points from the closing quotations of last week and of 78 points from the high price touched on the advance of last month. That delivery closed at 11.20 or 4 points up from the lowest with general market closing barely steady at net declines of 29 to 34 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 8 to 14 points on response to the relatively easy Liverpool cables. Initial offerings were well enough absorbed by the trade and some scattered buying through commission houses to cause slight bulges right after the opening but this demand was soon supplied and the market became weak and unsettled later in the morning.

Liquidation by Wall street and houses with Western connections was active, while the demand was comparatively light after the early buying had been satisfied. Some stop orders were uncovered on the decline which carried the price of new December contracts down to 10.75 and May to 11.41, making net declines of 30 to 35 points on the more active months. Closing quotations were within a point or two on most positions.

Some Southern selling was reported here during the day, but the decline was attributed largely to liquidation and reselling by recent buyers who were supposed to be influenced by the weakness in grain and stock markets. There was little further comment on Saturday's Government crop figures, but the opinion appeared to be that they had been discounted before the close of business last week.

Liverpool cables said the market there was influenced by a poor off-take combined with hedging, local and continental liquidation. There were also reports that there had been selling of American futures in Liverpool against purchasing of Egyptian uppers. Exports today, 97,335, making 2,594,928 so far this season. Port receipts, 67,624. U. S. port stocks, 3,803,424.

1929 CRASH LEVELS BROKEN BY STOCKS

Survey's Index Shrinks 16 Per Cent Below Last Year's Minimum.

UTILITIES SOFFER LEAST

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

A year after the market collapse, which culminated November 11 with the 1929 low level of stock prices, the Standard Statistics Co., composite index of stock market values stands today some 16 per cent under the 1929 low.

The descent from the 1929 high to the low was accomplished in a period of two months, with the greater part of it occurring in the last two weeks. The 1930 decrease has been a long drawn out one extending over a period of more than seven months.

Of the major groups included in the index, the utilities have made by far the best showing, at present being less than 5 per cent below the 1929 low. The divisions of the industrial group naturally show some diversity although with the single exception of the tobaccos, every group has fallen below its 1929 low.

Federal American Co. Data.

Officials of the Federal American Co., said yesterday that October net earnings, reaching approximately $13,500, were the largest since those of April 1928, which was one of the best months in the history of the company.

Noting an apparently increasing interest in low priced stocks, the current Investment Bulletin of Alexander Hamilton Institute warns against their indiscriminative purchase during hard times. It reminds that experienced investors know that comparative prices are not only an unsafe but a positively misleading guide.

Showing that if the stock of a company, which once sold over 100, sells later at 20, it is because the position of the company has changed radically; it points out that if its earning power has declined in the meantime from the equivalent of $10 per share to that of $2 a share, the stock is no cheaper at $20 than it was at $100.

It reminds furthermore that when extensive changes in earning power have occurred, the full effect can not be gauged immediately and that recovery rarely occurs with great rapidity. For these reasons, it explains, it is desirable, as a rule, to avoid the apparent bargains presented by greatly deflated stocks.

Compromise Plan Offered.

The review concludes that it is better to pay $50, for example, for a stock after it appears that the worst is over than to buy the same stock at $20 with the possibility that the company's affairs may not turn for the better—that the new condition is lasting rather than temporary.

Department store sales in the Fifth or local Federal Reserve District made the best record in the country during October, this district being the only one showing increased sales for the month in comparison with the month a year ago.

This comparison, contained in a report of the Federal Reserve Board yesterday, reveals further that the eight local stores reporting announced a 2.4 per cent increase over the month a year ago but a .9 per cent decrease for the ten months' period compared with 1929.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Big selling and sharp breaks in values today tumbled wheat down to the lowest price level since 1909, with rye outdoing it to bottom since 1898. Oats, too, reached new depth records.

Much of the selling deluge that swamped the wheat pit and pulled down other cereals came from houses with stock market connections. Corn kept up better than other grains, many corn traders holding off to await the Government crop report, which, however, when issued after the day's business was complete, proved to be bearish, showing that 1930 corn production was $4,000,000 bushels larger than the average of recent private estimates.

Wheat closed demoralized at almost the day's minimum prices, 3½ to 4¼ cents a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed ⅞ cent to 2 cents off, oats 1¼ to 1¾ cents down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 20 cents.

Practically from start to finish, the wheat market was headed downward, only during rallies shown at times by stock exchange quotations. About the last straw for friends of higher prices of grain was word that at the end of the week that the United States wheat visible supply was increased 755,000 bushels for the week, whereas a decrease was expected. Earlier the depressing influences had succeeded each other with 1-2-3 hammer-like jolts, the first being news that weather and crop conditions were suddenly perfected in Argentina and that less damage from rust was threatened than of late had been looked for.

A particularly disconcerting subsequent development in the wheat market was a report that the Canadian growers pool would only advance 60 cents a bushel on wheat and that consequently rural holders in Canada would be under 5 cents' greater handicap than indefinite pool. Meanwhile export demand for North American wheat was again at about the vanishing point, and the amount of wheat on ocean passage was announced as totaling 44,728,000 bushels, against 42,232,000 bushels a week ago and 35,408,000 bushels at this time last year. Stop-loss selling of future deliveries of wheat in Chicago continued right up to the closing song, with about the sole support coming from traders who were in a position to collect a profit.

Corn showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure, but gradually weakened owing to sympathy with wheat. Oats and rye followed.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to weakness of hog values and of grain.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Bangor & Aroostook.

T. V. L.—Kindly give me some information regarding Bangor & Aroostook.

Answer—At current prices this stock is selling for about 6½ times 1930 earnings of $9.50 a share, and the yield from the $3.50 dividend is about 5.8 per cent. Gross during September, with the exception of 1929, was the highest ever reported by the road, while gross for the nine months was the highest on record. The same was true of net operating income. Considering the record earnings and prospects that earnings improvement will continue into next year, these factors make the stock suitable for long-term holding.

Lee Rubber & Tire.

G. B.—Being a constant reader of your interesting column, I am writing for some facts regarding Lee Rubber & Tire.

Answer—The company closed its fiscal year ended October 31st with sales showing a drop of 14 per cent from 1929. Plants are running at low levels and inventory and operating losses are expected to continue, with no prospects of any immediate improvement. The company is expected to start the new year with inventories pared down to the bone, and will not be in a position to work two years to clean up inventories as some of the larger companies may have to do. Last year Lee earned $1.62 a share on the 300,000 shares of stock outstanding. The stock is highly speculative and not suitable for investment.

Union Oil.

G. B. W.—What information can you give me regarding Union Oil of California?

Answer—The company has written off about $100,000,000 in the last 10 years, and, as a result, the company can be more liberal during the present unsettled conditions in the oil business. Net earnings for the first nine months equaled $1.84 a share as against $2.94 in the same period last year. The $2 annual dividend is expected to be earned this year with something to spare, and there is no thought of any unfavorable action toward payments to stockholders at the present time. Around current prices the yield is about 7 per cent and the stock may be considered suitable for long-term buyers.

Yale & Towne.

G. B. H.—What can you tell me about Yale & Towne and what is your opinion of the stock?

Answer—The company has been in business for about 90 years and has an excellent dividend record. Directors, however, are being forced to dip into surplus this year to pay dividends. The company started off this year with approximately $2,000,000 more inventories than the year previous, which was a handicap for a year of depression. Although retrenchments have been made, profits have been on the decline since January, and for the three months ended September there was a small deficit, as against $589,464 income for the same period last year. For the first nine months 30 cents a share was earned as compared with $3.81 last year. The dividend was cut not long ago from $4 to $2 per annum. The stock, while paying dividends, is considered highly speculative.

Hudson & Manhattan.

R. D. A.—I have been told to buy Hudson & Manhattan as an investment, but before doing so I would like your opinion of the stock.

Answer—Passenger traffic and earnings of the Hudson & Manhattan in the first seven months this year closely approximated those for the same time last year. Common share earnings for 1930 are expected to approach $5 per share as a result of economy measures and efficiency, which have increased the proportion of gross to net income. Despite increasing competition, earnings should continue to run close to a $5 annual earnings basis for the stock, as compared with the $3.50 dividend. The stock appears desirable for long-term ownership.

Hayes Body.

M. M. H.—Please give me some facts and an opinion of Hayes Body.

Answer—Valuable contracts were lost in recent months. Hayes no longer supplies Chrysler or Reo with automobile bodies, and the only customers it has are Peerless, Marmon and American Austin. For the first six months' period, operations were carried on at a loss of $385,768, as against net income before taxes equal to 25 cents per share for the initial half of 1929. Hayes has no preferred stock or funded debt. Despite this no dividends are paid on the 217,248 no par shares of common. A stock offering was made last fall which has impaired the financial position. At the end of 1929 cash amounted to only $223,125. The stock is highly speculative and not suitable for an investor.

Certain-teed and Others.

L. H. T.—I hold Certain-teed, Servel and Tide Water Asociated. What is the outlook for the three companies?

Answer—The outlook for all three is hazy. Both Certain-teed and Servel are operating at a loss. No improved income for Certain-teed is likely unless there is a boom in the building industry, while prospects for Servel the remainder of the year are not good because spring and early summer are the best time for sale of refrigerators. Tide Water may show modest earnings, but conditions in the oil industry at this time are not likely to bring any great improvement the remainder of the year.

Certain-teed and Servel are speculative because they are nondividend payers. Tide Water pays 60 cents a year, but is also speculative to a certain extent.

Burroughs Adding Machine.

W. B. O.—I have been advised to buy Burroughs Adding Machine. However, I would like your advice before doing so.

Answer—Until this year profits increased rapidly, but per share earnings have been cut down through capital readjustments and earnings for 1930 are not expected to equal the $2.34 a share reported for 1929. Selling around 33 the yield from the $1 annual dividend is about 3 per cent, and earnings are not making any great progress, although Burroughs is one of the oldest manufacturers of office calculating machines. The stock must be considered a fair speculative investment, but with a somewhat uncertain outlook.

BOND INDEX RESTS AT NEW 1930 LOW

Decline in Stocks Seen as Reason for Slump in Nearly All Groups.

INDUSTRIALS HARD HIT

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The sensitiveness of bonds to the trend of stocks was sharply delineated today in a very active session in which selling pressure extended to all sections of the market except United States Governments.

Bond prices as gauged by the average for 30 bonds rested at a new low for 1930 at the close. The average of 98.0 for 30 domestic bonds represented a one-half-point drop from Saturday's close and compared with a previous year's low of 98.4, established early in the year, and is only sixtenths higher than the price level prevailing a year ago, when security prices were falling sharply.

While high-grade issues that remain virtually impervious to the unsettled conditions in security markets and industry were steady to firm, sharp recessions developed in other domestic bonds. Railroad obligations, both liens and those with stock privilege features, led the decline as pressure against equity issues influenced further hasty selling of investments.

Similar Friday Session Recalled.

As on Friday, when bond prices were sharply reduced, the liquidation increased the turnover to proportions comparatively large for the fall season. Reflecting the hesitancy of investors to purchase bonds during the period of unsettlement, the market has had its busiest sessions when under pressure.

Losses of 1, 2 and 3 points were sprinkled throughout the list, carrying many bonds, particularly rails and industrials to new 1930 minimums, and very few foreign bonds moved contrary to the general trend.

In the rail list St. Paul adjustment 5s of 2000 sagged 2½ points to a new year's low at 33½, and the 5s of 1975 lost nearly as much. Bonds of the Chicago & Northwestern, Denver & Rio Grande Western, Missouri Pacific, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Northern Pacific, St. Louis, San Francisco, Seaboard Air Line and Wabash were among the issues that dipped sharply. In contrast was the steadiness of such gilt-edged issues as Union Pacific 4s and Atchison general 4s.

Few Utilities Advance.

A handful of utility bonds attracted buying support and moved higher, but the gains were more than offset by losses elsewhere. Large losses were registered by Brooklyn Manhattan 6s, Columbus Gas 5s, Federal Light & Traction 6s B, General Public Service 5½s, Interborough Rapid Transit 6s, International Hydroelectric 6s, International Telephone 5s and 4½s, New Orleans Public Service 5s B, and Peoples Gas & Coke of Chicago 5s. Western Pennsylvania Power 5s sagged 10 points to 95⅝ on one sale.

Speculative industrials and convertibles were hard hit by the liquidation and declines were generally measured in points. Foreigns were irregularly lower. German 7s dipped 1½ to 101½. The tone of Latin-Americans was the weakest in several weeks. Bolivian, Brazilian, Peruvian and Colombian issues lost ground.

The firm spot in the whole market was the Government list, where the Liberty 3½s reached a new high for the year.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

'AD IMPROVEMENT WILL BE DEMANDED

Arlington to Ask That Work Be Done on Stretch of Route of New Bridge.

GAS RATE CUT IS SOUGHT

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With a view of obtaining for Clarendon and Ballston a direct outlet to the new Memorial Bridge by the time it is opened for traffic next year, Arthur Orr, president of the Straight-to-the-Bridge Boulevard Association, accompanied by State Senator Frank L. Ball, will appear before the State Highway Commission today at Orange, Va., where that body is holding its annual hearings on the question of allocation of road funds for construction during the coming year.

Mr. Orr will be armed with copies of resolutions adopted recently by the Arlington County Civic Federation requesting the State to make the improvements above mentioned. The resolutions point out that the Lee Boulevard, which is to be constructed across the county during the coming year, "will be of no service as an outlet to the bridge for residents of Clarendon and Ballston, two of the most thickly settled areas of Arlington County, unless and until that portion of the straight-to-the-bridge-boulevard from Clarendon to Porter's Woods is opened up and improved, and that the residents of Clarendon and Ballston, by reason of their location and by the fact that they have contributed largely in gasoline taxes to the fund from which the State proposes to build approaches to the Memorial Bridge, are entitled to have an approach road to that bridge by the time it is ready for public use."

The portion of the straight-to-the bridge road which the State will be requested to improve next year begins at the intersection with the Lee boulevard in the Porter woods and extends to Clarendon Station, a distance of five-eighths of a mile. In view of the small amount of highway involved and of its importance to the thickly populated portions of the county, Mr. Orr and Senator Ball are hopeful that their mission will be successful.

In addition to Mr. Orr and Senator Ball, Edward Duncan, chairman of the county board of supervisors, and County Engineer C. L. Kinnier will appear before the commission and request that sufficient funds be allocated to the Lee highway in order that it may be widened from Falls Hill to the corporate limits of Fairfax County, passing through the town of Falls Church.

A reduction of at least 26 cents per 1,000 cubic feet in the retail gas rate of the Rosslyn Gas Light Co. to its consumers in Arlington County was demanded yesterday by the Public Utility Commission of Arlington County, according to an announcement made by Maj. Calvin Kephart, secretary to the commission.

The principal reason why these rates have been so high in the past, according to Maj. Kephart, is that the Washington Gas Light Co. charges its local subsidiary a wholesale rate of 85 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, which is only slightly under the retail rate now effective in the District of Columbia. In consequence, Maj. Kephart says in a signed statement, the Rosslyn Gas Light Co. is earning approximately 15 per cent on its investment.

A thorough investigation of costs of manufacture transmission and distribution of gas has been made by the commission, which claims to have found that the Arlington subsidiary should impose a wholesale rate not to exceed 47 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. While this would be a reduction in the wholesale charge of 38 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, after making due allowances for pipe line depreciation, taxes and other items, including a 7 per cent return on the investment, a reduction in the retail rate equal to 26 cents per 1,000 cubic feet results.

This rate is based upon an average monthly consumption per household of approximately 3,500 cubic feet. Large commercial users are entitled to rates graduated to a still lower basis, the commission believes.

The demands of the commission were presented by Maj. Kephart and James W. Head, chairman of the commission, to G. A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., in connection with the fixing of the proposed reduced rate for Arlington County. The Public Utility Commission of the District of Columbia also has been asked to approve the wholesale rate of 47 cents to the Rosslyn Gas Co.

While vested with no authority to hold official public hearings on the rates as proposed, the Arlington County Public Utility Commission has been authorized by the County Board of Supervisors to make investigations of all public utility matters in the county and if necessary to place their findings and demands before the Virginia State Corporation Commission for their consideration.

Hearing of the suit of William H. Angle, of Hagerstown, Md., contractor, against the county board of supervisors for $1,200, which he alleges was withheld from him in the settlement for the installation of the county water system before Circuit Judge Walter T. McCray yesterday was continued until the December term of court. The agreement for a continuance was reached between Attorney H. Bruce Green, counsel for the plaintiff, and Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, counsel for the county board of supervisors.

The plaintiff had numerous expert witnesses ready to testify that the work had been completed in full compliance with the contract entered into between himself and the county board of supervisors for the construction of the water mains for Arlington County. The State had witnesses from the State Highway Department ready to testify.

The monthly meeting of the Clarendon Citizens Association will be held tonight in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce now located in the offices of the Brumback Realty Corporation in the Rees Building at Clarendon.

Carrying out its usual custom, the Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, and the Auxiliary Unit to the Post will hold open house to its members and prospective members tonight at the Lyon Park Community House.

The evening's program will include card games and dancing.

The Beta Chapter of Chi Delta Gamma Sorority will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night at the home of Miss Christine Jackson, Preston avenue, Cherrydale.

With the hunting season opening Saturday, County Clerk William H. Duncan announced yesterday that his offices at the county courthouse will remain open from 8:30 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Friday for the purpose of issuing hunting licenses.

Henry C. Morris, owner and developer of Aurora Hills, in Jefferson District, announced yesterday that he has deeded to Arlington County the right to lay and maintain gas mains in the alleys in section two of the subdivision.

"This removed the supposed controversary against the laying of the gas mains in the subdivision, which resulted by the authorities not first taking the mater up with me with the view of reaching a reasonable agreement when the work of extending the gas mains was first started in other sections by the Gas Co." Mr. Morris said.

C. B. Laycock, of Clarendon, district deputy grand master of Masons in Virginia, will pay his official visit to Henry Lodge at Fairfax tonight. The master Mason's degree will be conferred upon a class of candidates.

Meeting last night at the home of Mrs. Agnes Conradi, chairman of the finance committee, the executive committee of the Arlington Sumter Business and Professional Woman's Club perfected its plans for its dinner meeting to be held the evening of December 20. The place of meeting has not yet been determined.

Mrs. Geline Bowman, of Richmond, national vice president, is announced as the honored guest and principal speaker.

The tax equalization board will hold public hearings at the courthouse today and tomorrow. The meetings will be held in the county board of supervisors room in the morning at 10 o'clock.

Chairman Emery N. Hosmer was asked that all persons having claims to present to the board to attend the public hearings as this is the proper time to take up such matters.

ALEXANDRIA COURT SETS TRIAL DATES

Shooting and Manslaughter Cases Will Be Heard on November 24.

LEGION DANCE TONIGHT

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Two cases of felonious shooting and one of manslaughter, on the docket of the corporation court, were set for trial yesterday.

The manslaughter charge was placed against William J. Shea, of Washington, who is alleged to have been the driver of the automobile in which Maurice ("Mickey") Kelliher suffered fatal hurts on September 7. According to the story told the police, an automobile alleged to have been driven by Shea, and in which Kelliher, Earl J. Garrison and William McKeever were riding, struck an automobile driven by Stephen Kania and occupied also by Joseph Dodruchny, both of Sparrows Point, Md., near Four Mile Run, within the corporate limits of Alexandria. Kelliher died in Emergency Hospital, Washington. Shea, Garrison and McKeever received minor injuries. All three were named in a murder warrant, although a certificate of accidental death was issued shortly after the accident by Acting Coroner Joseph Rogers. The case is set for trial November 24.

Robert G. Brafford, indicted on a charge of shooting Policeman John L. Stuart, also will be tried November 24. Stuart was attempting to place Brafford under arrest for an alleged infraction of the dry ordinance when Brafford, it is charged, shot the policeman and threw him into the river. Stuart regained the street and drew hisrevolved and fired, seriously wounding Brafford. Stuart's wound was slight. Brafford has been confined to the Alexandria Hospital since the date of the shooting, September 14.

Enoch H. Roland is charged with shooting his brother-in-law, E. H. Clayton, at the old Bromilaw brickyard, on Hunting Creek. The two men were alleged to have been at odds for some time, and Roland, apparently without warning, fired at Clayton with a shotgun, wounding him in the thigh. The wound was not serious.

The auxiliary board of the Alexandria Hospital will hold a meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Nurses' Home, when plans will be outlined for the winter. The president, Mrs. George E. Pickett, states reports will be made on a new undertaking of the organization, to raise funds for necessary work in the hospital.

The American Legion Auxiliary will sponsor a dance in the armory tonight in celebration of Armistice Day and will be assisted by members of the legion post. Proceeds will go toward helping the auxiliary in its charity or rehabilitation work. Mrs. Forest Ramschel and Mrs. R. Samuel Luckett are in charge.

The annual pilgrimage to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington, will be made by a committee from the post and auxiliary.

The banks in the city will be closed all day today.

At the recent Boy Scout Court of Honor, awards were made to Raymond Gallegher, Earl Myers, Jack Dienelt, of the Southern Methodist Troop; Edward Hitt, of the Del Ray Troop; Charles Tennesson, Alfred Moss, Edward Ticer, John Quarles, of Christ Church Troop; William Adkins, Aubrey Ayers and Oliver Beasley, of Annandale, and Clarence Wilkinson, of Grace Church Troop.

Jack Weaver, of Christ Church Troop, was given a life award for athletics, basketry and first aid to animals.

Raymond Gaskins, Negro, arraigned in police court yesterday on a charge of shooting and killing his wife, Ida Gaskins, Sunday, pleaded guilty and was held for the grand jury. Coroner T. Mrashall Jones held an inquest last night and found that the woman came to her death from a gunshot wound which penetrated her right lung.

The motive for the shooting has not been disclosed. Gaskins came into the kitchen of the house where the couple boarded and finding his wife sitting in the room, opened fire without a word, it is alleged. Three shots were fired in the kitchen, and a fourth as the woman ran for the stairs, the last bullet striking her in the back. She was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, and died five hours after the shooting. Gaskins made his escape, but was captured in a house on Wolfe street.

Emmett Stout, 20 years old, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of turning in a false alarm of fire. He was alleged to have confessed when arrested but denied his guilt and stated that when he was arrested the police threatened him with conviction on circumstantial evidence ugless he signed a confession. Stout said he was informed that he would get a very light sentence if he admitted the charge, while, he alleged, he was informed the police had sufficient circumstantial evidence to warrant his conviction.

F. G. Duvall, attorney for Stout, moved that the court strike out the alleged confession and cited a similar case before the Appeals Court where such a confession was not admitted. City Attorney Carl Budwesky resisted the move, and Police Justice W. S. Snow took the case under advisement, pending arguments and also to look up the decision.

Miss Kate Maupin, aged 81 years, one of the best known residents of the city, died yesterday morning at the Alexandria Hospital, where she had been a patient for several weeks, although she had been in failing health for several years. She has no surviving relatives, and for a number of years past has made her home with former Mayor and Mrs. James M. Duncan, 916 Prince street. The funeral will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from Demaine's chapel, conducted by the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Union Cemetery.

Miss Maupin for many years conducted a millinery and notion store, and the last few years before her retirement from business, conducted a toy shop in the 700 block King street.

Eugene Lechenet, aged 58 years, an automobile mechanic, died yesterday morning at his home, 5 Chapman avenue. The funeral will be held in Richmond at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, with burial in River View Cemetery.

TRENARY IS BURIED WITH MASONIC RITES

Winchester in Mourning as Revenue Commissioner Is Laid to Rest.

EVERY OFFICIAL PRESENT

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester Va, Nov. 10.—Scores of Masons from other parts of Virginia, who were fraternizing at a Mystic Shrine ceremonial in Harrisonburg, Va., last Friday evening, when Charles W. Trenary, city revenue commissioner and prominent churchman and business man, was stricken with angina pectoris in a hotel, gathered here this afternoon for his funeral. They joined hundreds of local citizens, who thronged Christ Episcopal Church, where rites were conducted by the rector, the Rev. Robert B. Nelson. The sanctuary of the edifice was filled with floral tributes, those from business, civic and fraternal societies being especially elaborate. The City Hall flag was flown at half-staff in memory of the late official. Offices in the building were closed, and every city official attended the funeral.

GRAND JURY HEARS PRAISE FOR COUNTY

Judge at Rockville Charges Jurors for November Term of Court.

PERRY'S BROTHER FINED

Montgomry County's fredom from serious crime and escape from invasion of the sporting element was stressed in his charge to the Montgomery County grand jury yesterday by Judge Robert B. Peter in Circuit Court at Rockville. The county is to be congratulated upon its freedom from major crime, Judge Peter said, pointing out that the county is contiguous to the City of Washington and that its escape from the criminal element is therefore more to be praised.

Donald A. DeLashmutt, Rockville automobile dealer, was chosen foreman of the grand jury for the November term. Other grand jury members are Robert S. Moxley, Walter T. Allnutt, Howard C. Roberson, Thomas E. Hampton, Charles E. Shouffer, William P. Jones, Walter M. Butler, C. Clyde Harris William C. Brown, Walter L. Brown, Robert C. Myers, Frank Counselman, William Klausman, John B. Nicholson, Charles A. Boyer, Raymond King, William E. Morgan, Benjamin O. Woodward, Clayton Rabbitt, Frank J. Welsh, Harry J. King and Zadoc M. Cooke.

Walter E. Perry, Bethesda hardware merchant, who is a brother of Dr. Bnjamin C. Perry, president of the Montgomery County Commissioners, was fined $25 for contempt of court by Judge Peter when he failed to appear on time to be sworn in as a member of the grand jury. Because of his failure to appear, another venireman was assigned to the grand jury.

Mr. Perry told the court that he did not believe he had been summoned, but the court ruled that he had and imposed the fine, declaring that the processes of the law must be respected.

The grand jury immediately began investigations after it had been sworn and the charge given.

Judge Peter announced the appointment of John Huless, of Silver Spring, as stenographer to the grand jury.

Petit jurors who also were sworn yesterday are: Matthew J. Trimble, Elmer E. Stup, Alexander Lowry, William H. Hoskinson, Joseph W. Woodfield, George Mills, Charles T. Johnson, Charles E. Oland, Harry T. Bissett, Edward H. Carr, Maurice J. Stabler, William O. Hamilton, Norman M. Gassaway, Elmer K. Rub'e, Carl W. Corby, George F. Bonifant, Leland L. Fisher, Carson W. Pope, George Lawrence Jones, Walter B. Wallick, Walter B. Buxton, Thomas C. Owens, Morgan J. Boteler and Walter E. Perry.

There are 241 cases scheduled for trial on the docket, 183 civil, including 5 appeals and 2 removed here from another jurisdiction, and 68 criminal, of which 31 are appeals from decision of the county police court.

The most important criminal cases scheduled for trial is the now famous Brady bombing case. The Brady brothers, Lawrence Leroy Brady and Herman Brady, both of Mitchellville, are charged with murder of Herman's wife, Naomi Brady, 18-year-old expectant mother, and her little brother and sister. The deaths were caused by a bomb disguised as a Christmas package which was opened in the girl's home New Year's Day.

Leroy Brady was tried by a jury in Rockville after the case had been removed from Upper Marlboro, but the trial resulted in a disagreement. Herman has not been tried as yet.

Funeral services for Joseph Curran, 23 years old, of Four Corners, Md., who was killed in an automobile crash Thursday night, were held yesterday at St. John's Catholic Church, Forest Glen. Burial was in Forest Glen Cemetery.

Pallbearers were the members of the county police force at the Silver Spring Substation—Sergt. Guy L. Jones, Corpl. Roy Snyder, Policemen George Windham, Charles Barnes, Joseph Nolte and Windsor Poole. The Rev. C. O. Rosensteel, pastor, officiated at the requiem mass. Nearly 300 persons attended the services.

Mr. Curran was a special officer at the Chevy Chase Lake and had aided the police at the substation many times. He was a favorite with all of the county employes and many of the residents of the Silver Spring area and had many friends throughout the county and in Washington. He died shortly after his auto became unmanageable while rounding a curve and crashed into a telegraph pole at Seven Oaks, on the Colesville pike.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Curran; his wife, a 5-year-old son and three brothers, Marian Curran, chief of the Kensington Volunteer Fire Department; Paul Curran and Robert Curran and a sister.

Cup and Revolver Stolen.

Harry Kite, jr., of 2220 Wyoming avenue northwest, yesterday told police that a silver cup and a revolver had been stolen from his home at that address since October 31.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

CAUSES OF THE POLITICAL UPSET.

REASONS for the widespread reversals are not hard to find. Unemployment and prohibition played a big part in the upsets, of course, but there were a thousand and one other causes of real unrest in American life. This department today attempts to set them down:

1. Excessive Bridge Lessons.

Slowly but surely the people of America have been working up to a point of revolt against the How to Play Bridge articles by newspaper, magazine and radio. This wasn't so bad when a handful of authorities on the subject were giving the instructions, but during the past two years there have been as many teachers as players. The people could not be expected to endure this sort of thing forever.

2. Radio Time Signals.

It has become practically impossible in these United States to turn a radio dial without being told to look at your watch, await the tingle of six little bells and get the correct time. The Republicans have failed to realize that there are millions of Americans who know what time it is and almost as many others who do not care to know.

3. Tom Thumb Golf Courses.

Has President Hoover lifted a finger to cure the country of this form of insanity? Has a Republican Congress even turned a hair to keep every corner lot in the country from becoming a booby-hatch? Has any G. O. P. leader as much as expressed the opinion they should be limited to at least four to a city block? No. And again no.

4. Policy With Respect to Tree and Flagpole Sitting.

During the past summer America was swept by an epidemic of tree and flagpole sitting. Along about August 15 it got on the nerves of every adult. It was one of the major contributing causes to unrest. Did the Hoover administration take any courageous action to abolish the custom? Very well, then.

5. The Return of Backgammon.

The ablest editors in the country are failing to see in this a reason for the recent landslide. This is a serious reflection on their powers of analysis. It was a foregone conclusion that any party that sanctioned or permitted the resurrection of this antediluvian pastime would feel the people's wrath. So be it.

6. Tie Football Games.

It may seem silly at first thought to suggest that the American people feel any resentment over the many tie contests in major football games. But you ask anybody.

7. African Hunt Pictures and Duplicated News Reels.

It has become impossible to go into a picture house without seeing two things: An African hunt picture (taken in Bayonne, N. J.) and the same pictures of the battleship Texas that you saw in five other theaters. There was just bound to be a public uprising.

8. The Lighter Golf Ball.

Ask any golfer who has tried the new ball if it helped his game any. Well, then, what could you expect when he got a chance to get even at the polls by smashing somebody?

* * * *

THERE are but a few causes of the upset. Among others may be listed musical horns, paper drinking cups, adagio dancers, Edsun questionnaires, inferior razor blades, 20-cent orangeades, animated cartoons, paper towels and defective openers on sardine cans.

LIMERICK ON THE CONNECTICUT ELECTION.

There was an ex-dean in Connecticut
Whom the State G. O. P. was all set
t' cut,
But they swiftly gave ground
When they presently found
That the vote in that State was too wet t' cut.

The Democrats carried Calvin Coolidge's own town, which goes to show that when a fellow becomes a newspaper columnist anything can happen to him.

Mr. Pinchot must have had his own private cyclone cellar.

THE vote against the Republicans may not be so significant after all. Remember it was the first chance a fellow who lost a little in the stock market had to go out and take a swing at somebody.

THE RUNNING BROAD JUMP.

"FOR EXCHANGE—Wedding and engagement ring for any stock listed on New York Stock Exchange. M. 654. Inquire office."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Determined to sacrifice 'domestic bonds for almost anything.

Senator Heflin insists he was robbed at the polls. A charge that Rome had something to do with it is momentarily expected.

"Police Don't Know What to Do With 'Legs' Diamond."—Headline. Why not sell him for the old metal in him?

The dean of Princeton has suspended 40 students for street rioting, which included the holding up and rocking of a passenger bus. Evidently the new university slogan is "Don't Rock the Bus!"

This department knows a man who refused to vote this year because a careful reading of all the platforms failed to find a single pledge to fix a minimum thickness for the chicken in drug-store sandwiches.

1,000 ATTEND ROAD ALLOCATION SESSION

Virginia Highway Body at Harrisonburg Hears Sections Claims.

CULPEPER AREA NEXT

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 10.—More than 1,000 good roads advocates and farmers from eleven Shenandoah Valley counties gathered here today to present their claims for road construction to the Virginia State Highway Commission at one of the series of four hearings which will determine the highway conference next year. Henry G. Shirley is chairman of the commission.

Augusta County had the largest delegation, being represented by five groups seeking as many projects. Demands of Rockingham and Page Counties for additional State highway funds next year added to the sharp fights made by other delegations over the distribution to be made under the Porter-Rhodes act, which adds 2,500 miles to the State highway system in the next two years.

In the discussion of 1931 allocations representatives of Allegheny, Bath, Clarke, Highland, Rockridge, Augusta, Warren and Frederick asked that the tentative allocations by the State commission be made permanent, while Rockingham asked for additional funds to reconstruct the Valley pike, from Harrisonburg to New Market and Page requested money to build the link in the hard-surface, the Elkton-Shenandoah link in the Eastside highway, and Page asked for funds for the construction of the Stanley-Luray link in the same highway.

Request was made for funds for the Shenandoah County line on the north. The completion of the Lee highway, which was opened to travel Sunday night, they declared, will increase the load on the Valley pike.

Culpeper District Allocations.

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 10.—Delegations from the thirteen counties which comprise the Culpeper district of the highway department will attend the hearing which will be held by the commissioners at Orange Tuesday.

Two hearings will be held during the day, one devoted to the tentative allocations of highway construction funds for 1931-32, and the other on the location of the mileage to be taken into the highway system under the Porter-Rhoades bill, which was passed at the last session of the Legislature.

The tentative allocations made in the Culpeper district by the commissioners cover the $950,000 available for construction in the district during the fiscal year beginning July 1. About $270,000 of this amount is required to cover overexpenditures made during the current year.

If the commission makes final its tentative allocations the remainder will be distributed as follows: Route 17, Spotswood Trail, will receive $130,000, to be spent between Stanardsville and Swift Run Gap. Completion of this route will provide a new crossing over the Blue Ridge in a region of great scenic beauty.

$100,000 for Lee Highway.

There will be two allocations on route 32, one between Gordonsville and Orange, and one between Palmyra and Cunningham Creek in Fluvanna County. The total of these two allocations is $215,000, which will be used to eliminate several miles of old narrow road and at least two grade crossings. The Lee highway, in the thickly settled territory adjacent to Washington, will receive $100,000, this being the only allocation made to the northern part of the district this year, other than those to cover overexpenditures.

Route 16, which runs through an orchard section in the P. T. Valley, will receive $72,000 on two projects, and there will be $50,000 for a project on route 28 south of Madison, all these allocations being contingent on the final approval of the commissioners.

DANVILLE STRIKER SENTENCED TO JAIL

Union Member Convicted on Charge of Attacking Mill Ficeman.

JURY IMPOSES TERM

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 10.—The first jail sentence to be imposed on a Danville textile striker came at 6 o'clock this evening, when a Corporation Court jury imposed a fine of $50 and a jail term of 60 days on Roscoe Pell, young union member, for attacking Wiley Hughes, a Negro fireman, three weeks ago when Hughes was emerging from the mill. Tried in police court, Pell was fined $25 and received no jail term but the case came up on appeal today, being the first case involving the strike to go before a jury. Despite Hughes' positive identification of Pell as one of three men who attacked him, Pell produced witnesses to say he was elsewhere at the time of the affray and that Hughes, when first taken before Pell, failed to identify him as his assailant.

Commonwealth's Attoney John W. Carter in his summation made allusion to insidious influence, referred to by defense counsel, and declared every man has the constitutional right to pursue the even tenor of his way and that "law is going to be sustained in this community if we can get disinterested juries." The jury was out but a few minutes. Motion to set aside the verdict was made by defense counsel.

In selecting the jury the State asked for a permanent disqualification of all employes of the local mills, all members of the union, all holders of mill stock and the husbands of women who might own such stock. Many were stricken off on this account.

The opening of the seventh week of the strike today was marked by renewed reports of conferences with the management and the turning of expectant eyes by union people toward material relief from the American Federation of Labor. No report came from F. J. Gorman who is understood to have seen William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, in Washington.

Irregularity Alleged In West Virginia Poll

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—L. R. Vis, Democrat, who on the face of unofficial returns was defeated for Congress in the Fourth West Virginia District by Robert L. Hogg, Republican, said today he would contest Hogg's election in the event the official canvass of the vote showed any irregularities.

Vis said he had received representations from friends that certain irregularities had been noted.

Ice Cream Manufacturers to Meet.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 10 (Special).—Local committees are making final arrangements for the annual convention of the West Virginia Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers which will be held November 25-26 at the Waldo hotel here. Two hundred manufacturers and others will participate. A feature will be a dinner

HYATTSVILLE FIRE GROUP WILL ELECT

Only Office to Be Contested; Noble Rushe Unopposed for Chief.

TWO DIE IN TRAFFIC

Only one office of the Hyattsville Volunteer Firemen's Association will be contested in the election next month, as two men were nominated for the position of captain by a special nominating committee, which made its report last night. Earl Dorrelle and Ernest Davis will contest for the honor of serving as captain of the company.

Noble P. Rushe was chosen by the committee as chief and none was nominated to oppose him. All other nominations were likewise unanimous. They are: For assistant chief, Harry Deggs; lieutenant, A. Deggs; fire marshal, C. O. Proctor; secretary, Earl Dorrell; superintendent of machinery, George Wilcoxen; treasurer, J. J. Painter.

Traffic in Prince Georges County took two deaths over the week-end and was responsible for the injuring of two more persons. Those killed were Fenton Tippett, 5 years old, of Silver Hill, Md., struck by a truck, and Mrs. Ida Young, 23, of Gallant Green, killed when her car overturned.

The woman was an occupant of a car driven by her husband, Willard Young. She was carrying her baby in her lap. Neither the child nor the husband was hurt when the car struck the dirt shoulder of the road between Brandywine and Baden and overturned. The woman, however, was pinned beneath the machine and received a broken neck. Judge Henry B. Contee issued a certificate of accidental death.

A coroner's jury last night exonerated John P. Bean in the accident which resulted in the death of the Tippet child. Bean was driver of the truck which struck the boy as he ran across the road. Testimony offered at the hearing before Judge Thomas D. Griffith showed that the child ran into the path of the truck without looking for approaching traffic.

Another week-end victim of automobiles was William A. Brooke, former Mayor of Hyattsville. Brooke was hit by a car Saturday as he was crossing the street in front of the postoffice. He was taken to Sibley Hospital.

His injuries were diagnosed as a broken arm, a wrenched back and a possible fractured skull. His condition is not thought to be serious, however. Lyle Simmons, of Mitchellville, Md., also was treated at a Washington Hospital for lacerations of the face. He received his injuries when his machine struck a pole near Upper Marlboro.

Funeral services were held yesterday for Miss Ella Sasscer, of Upper Marlboro, who died at her home there after an illness of several years. She was buried in Trinity Churchyard after services conducted by the Rev. J. C. M. Shrewsbury.

Miss Sasscer was the aunt of the newly reelected State senator, Lansdale G. Sasscer, J. Selwyn Sasscer, Dr. Reverdy Sasscer, Dr. Fred Sasscer and Mrs. T. Van Claggett were her brothers and sisters.

Charges of threats and assault with a dangerous weapon were placed against Mrs. Tirza L. Bolin, of Bladensburg, yesterday on complaint of Harold Rohrback, a county game warden. Rohrback told police that Mrs. Bolin broke a window at his home and when he went to investigate she declared her intention of shooting Mrs. Rohrback.

The game warden succeeded in disarming the woman, but later filed charges against her. During a hearing before Judge Reta Morris, in the judge's office, a bystander knocked a container from Mrs. Bolin's hand. It proved to contain, however, medicine for a nervous disorder.

The biennial census of the children in Prince Georges County started yesterday and if is hoped that the count will be completed within a month. The work is done by the teachers with such assistance as is rendered by members of the parent-teacher associations and other women's organizations.

The census includes not only children of school age, but all persons below the age of 18. The inclusion of children of preschool age enaures that they will be started to school as soon as they are old enough, gives the health officer a chance to see that they are vaccinated before the beginning of school, and gives school officials an idea of what attendance may be expected within the next five or six years. This last is necessary so that funds may be budgeted and building programs maped out.

The survey divides children into six classes. There are the children above the compulsory school age, those below the entrance age, crippled and defective children, children in parochial schools and children already in the county school system. The names of crippled and defective children are sent to various State agencies, who make sure that proper care and training is given them.

For the first time in the history of the county, Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, said yesterday, the monthly contribution to the teacher's retirement fund has gone above $2,000. The size of this sum, which includes a part of the salary of about 265 teachers, is due to the unusually large number of teachers which have been necessary this year.

James Scrivener was arrested yesterday by Washington police and turned over to Prince Georges County authorities, who want to question him in connection with the theft of an automobile in the county Sunday night. Scrivener, police say, boasted that he had stolen a car and asked a friend to go to Baltimore with him to help him sell it. A car which fitted the description of the one stolen was in his possession when found, according to Washington authorities.
